High schools riddled with drugs, violence, panel told

Learning taking back seat to survival?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students and teachers alike told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday of high schools throughout the country that are riddled with violence and drugs and where learning is second to survival.

"You wouldn't believe some of the things that go on," 17-year-old Kevin of Adelphi, Md., told Sen. Birch Bayh, chairman of the subcommittee on juvenile delinquency.

"Nine out of ten people are getting high" on marijuana and pills, Kevin said, while 18-year-old Debbie of Akron, Ohio, said that "most kids carry a weapon," usually a knife, sometimes a gun.

Robert, 16, from Chicago, described the combination of the two: "They sit around, get high, drop pills, smoke marijuana, get on these bad trips and then they go to shooting. They don't know who they're shooting, they're just shooting and having fun."

New York City school teacher Shiela J. Gutter said she has suffered a fractured cheekbone as the result of an assault by a student. She said that "it is very difficult to function as a teacher ... when you must concentrate on creating an atmosphere of safety and order in the classroom first and teaching a lesson second."

According to statistics presented by Bayh, 251 teachers and administrators in the Los Angeles school system were the victims of serious physical assaults last year while in Philadelphia 278 students were assaulted.

"We're not meeting their needs," Peggy Cochran, a teacher in the rural community of High Ridge, Mo., said in an effort to explain why there had been ten cases of drug overdose in her school last year. "They become bored, they drop out, they cause trouble," she said.

She also complained that school administrators try to hush up the problem.

The students also cited boredom as the principal cause of school violence and use of drugs. "They get bored," Robert said.

"They just don't feel like going to the same class everyday."

William Bell, a high school teacher in Fairfield, Conn., who had himself been assaulted by a student, said most of the trouble was caused by only a small portion of the student body. "I'd like to get in a plug here for the 95 per cent of the kids who are good kids," Bell said.

The students seemed to differ on the number of their classmates who go to school armed, but they all agreed that use of marijuana and various types of pills during school hours was almost universal.

Dust storm descends suddenly on drivers

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — One motorist was killed and 13 others were injured when a sudden dust storm descended like nightfall on stretch of state Route 99 near here, causing several chain-reaction collisions on the busy highway, authorities said.

California Highway Patrol spokesman Daniel Dean said today that the dust storm lasted about three hours Tuesday evening, reducing visibility from 20 miles at 6:30 p.m. to near zero in about 15 minutes.

He said more than 50 cars were involved in chain reaction collisions and all lanes of the busy highway were blocked about seven miles south of Bakersfield.

"The dust was so thick for a time the sun was obscured," a CHP official said.

Identity of the dead motorist was being withheld until his family could be notified.

Weather forecasters said the storm whipped through most of the southern San Joaquin Valley and was touched off by a low pressure system over southern Nevada and southern Utah.

To the southeast, 50 mile-per-hour winds blowing sand and dust were reported also in Southern California desert areas forcing CHP officials to close Interstate 10 from Indio to Cabazon and Interstate 15 — the main highway linking Los Angeles and Las Vegas — from Barstow to Baker.

Also closed for a short time was State Route 111, from Banning to Palm Springs.

CHP dispatcher Sylvia Schell said there were no reports of any accidents or injuries on desert highways.

However, many motorists caught by the high winds were said to be stranded on the highways.

"We still have some people who don't believe what we're telling them and so they got themselves stranded out there," said a CHP spokesman in Indio. "You just can't see."

The high winds also frustrated firemen battling a fire burning out of control in the Inyo National Forest southwest of Independence. The flames were spread over at least 60 acres in a rugged, wooded area in the Mt. Whitney District, fire officials said.

"Right now we're involved in a holding action. The wind is so high, we can't do much else," said one U.S. Forest Service official.

However, firemen had better success with Southern California's first reported timber fire this season, containing a blaze in Acorn Canyon in San Bernardino County.

Residents of homes near the Wrightwood area hosed down their roofs and prepared for possible evacuation. But the flames were stopped by aerial tankers which dropped fire retardant chemicals on the blaze.

Prince beheaded?

King Faisal's assassin is executed in public

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The young Saudi Arabian prince found guilty of assassinating King Faisal during Moslem religious celebration last March was publicly executed today, the Saudi state radio reported.

There was no indication whether Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, a 27-year-old nephew of the slain king, was beheaded with a sword or shot in the back by a sole executioner. Both methods have been used in recent years, though an earlier announcement said the prince would be beheaded after predusk prayers.

The brief radio announcement said the execution occurred in front of the government palace, which faces the main city square of Riyadh, the Saudi capital.

The state radio said the U.S. educated prince was judged guilty by a Sharia — religious — court and the death sentence approved by King Khaled, Faisal's successor.

Faisal, whose age was variously given as 69 or 70, was shot to death at close range on March 25, as he celebrated the feast of the Prophet Mohammed's birthday.

Immediately after the assassination the Saudi royal family issued a statement describing the prince as mentally deranged. However, a medical panel examined him and declared him in full control of his mental faculties.

Saudi Arabia's strict Islamic law prescribes the death penalty for murder unless the defendant is found to be insane.

Normally executions are held on Friday after noon prayers, the major religious service of Islam.

Saudi sources in Beirut speculated the execution was being held today with short notice to avoid a scene of mass hysteria and a flood of spectators pouring into Riyadh from other towns.

Witnesses said Prince Faisal approached his uncle in audience with a Kuwaiti delegation led by Oil Minister Abdul Mutalib Kazemi, an old friend of the assassin from his American college days. Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani was also watching as the prince pulled out a pistol and pumped two bullets into the monarch's brain.

Kills himself after hearing jury verdict

BOSTON (AP) — The chief engineer of a state agency died early today after he shot himself in the head in front of a jury which convicted him of extortion.

Mason J. Condon, 49, died after he was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital for emergency surgery.

Condon was seated at the defendants' table in federal court when the jury announced its verdict Tuesday night. He reached into his briefcase, pulled out the pistol and shot himself before Judge Walter J. Skinner, the jury and several spectators.

The jury convicted him on 19 of 20 counts charging conspiracy with two other Metropolitan District Commission officials to extort money, materials and services over a seven-year period from companies doing business with the commission.

The MDC is a separate state agency with its own police force. It is responsible for a number of parks, and parkways in the greater Boston area, some of the Boston Harbor islands and the Quabbin Reservoir system which supplies most of greater Boston with water.

The two others indicted with Condon last Oct. 31 — Henry J. Lally of Boston, senior commission general contracting inspector, and Robert B. Michelson of Wilmington, an MDC engineer — pleaded guilty earlier, according to the U.S. attorney's office.

The case after 17 days of trial had gone to the jury in late afternoon. The jury returned to announce its verdict at about 10 p.m.

Condon faced a maximum penalty of 20 years and a $10,000 fine on each of the counts.

The prosecution contended Condon received about $62,000 in extortion payments and $50,000 in services on homes he or his family owns.

He was convicted on one count of conspiracy, 16 counts of extortion and two counts of filing false income tax returns.

He's clip artist, but honest man

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — "There was no question about keeping the money," said barber Lambros D. Alamond after he gave authorities $6,000 he found along a road here.

Alamond said he and his wife were driving in nearby Lansing Monday afternoon when he spotted a canvas moneybag at the side of the road and decided to stop.

He opened the bag and discovered $1,800 in cash and $4,200 in checks made out to a Holiday Inn. He reported the find to state police and turned over the money.

George Kurz, the manager of the local Holiday Inn, said he had placed the bag atop his auto momentarily just before going out to deposit the funds at a bank, then left without retrieving the bag.

He said that when he realized he had left the bag on the top of the car, he retraced his route. He reported the loss to authorities when he could not find the bag.

Russians warn Japan on treaty With Chinese

MOSCOW (AP)-The Soviet government today cautioned Japan against concluding a treaty of peace and friendship with China that might harm Soviet-Japanese relations.

The statement was issued by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, and apparently was conveyed to Japan's Moscow ambassador by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko last week.

"Attempts of the Chinese leadership to exert influence on Japan in order to complicate her relations with third countries, including the Soviet Union, have become increasingly clear of late," the statement said.

It accused Peking of trying to impose on Japan a provision in the Chinese-Japanese peace treaty "which, as the Chinese leaders themselves admit, is aimed, first and foremost, against the Soviet Union."

Although the statement did not directly mention it, the provision that concerns the Soviets in the treaty is China's insistence on stating that Japan and China oppose any nation's "hegemony" in Asia.

The Soviets have seen the hegemony clause as aimed at Russia and consider it an attempt to force Japan into an anti-Soviet line.

Huge nuclear test delayed

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — The underground explosion of a nuclear device with at least 10 times more force than the atom bomb that devastated Hiroshima in World War II was postponed today because of high winds and tentatively reset for Thursday.

The Energy Research and Development Administration said the gusting, shifting winds posed a possible danger.

Hughbanks new city manager of Ontario

Roger Hughbanks, 46, has been selected to become Ontario's next city manager.

Now serving as assistant city manager, he will be elevated to the new position Sept. 1, when Ken Hunter, city manager, retires.

The City Council made the appointment early today after a short personnel session which followed the regular council meeting.

Hughbanks came to Ontario in March 1966 after having served San Bernardino County eight years as senior administrative analyst. He previously worked for the University of Kansas in a government research center.

His Ontario assignements have included work on city budgets, federal grants and transportation.

"I am pleased the City Council made the decision on my selection," he announced.

Hughbanks will head a city staff of 441 full-time employes and 200 hired under a federal program.

He and his wife, Barbara, have two children, Dean, 17, and Roger, 15.

Father of girl in rape-murder case a suicide

LONG BEACH (AP) — The father of a 19-year-old woman who is facing trial for the murder of a man whom she said raped her was found dead in a motel room here.

Officers said Tuesday Robert Boyd, 45, died of an apparent drug overdose. They said Boyd had a fresh needle mark in his arm and he had consumed a half-pint of whiskey.

Boyd, who lived in nearby Bellflower, also left a note to his son, authorities said. But its contents were not disclosed.

Boyd was scheduled to testify at the forthcoming trial of his 19-year-old daughter, Deborah Kantaeng, who has pleaded innocent to a charge of fatally shooting Danny C. Allen, 21, of Santa Ana when he came to her Long Beach home last Oct. 3.

Officers said Boyd was by his daughter's side in the drawing room when she allegedly opened fire on Allen as he walked in through the front door.

Chino Mex-Am group urges Moreno for police chief job

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

A Mexican-American parents group Tuesday night strongly urged the Chino City Council to appoint Capt. Louis Moreno as the next police chief.

The parents, who make up the Chino Community Action Council, had support from 29 local citizens who signed a petition asking that Moreno be named chief. Some of those who petitioned are CAC members.

Frank V. Meehan, the current chief, is leaving Chino June 30 to accept a job as police chief in Redondo Beach.

The CAC request and petition came on the heels of an announcement by City Manger Robert Fast that the city will hire an outside consultant to help recruit a new chief. The search reportedly will be conducted statewide.

"The goal of the city is to obtain the most qualified candidate available, and to obtain him in the most fair manner," said Fast.

The consultant, Griffenhagen and Kroeger of Los Angeles, will help in advertising for the job until late August, the cutoff time for applications to be received. Examination for the post will be in September, with the job to be filled in October.

CAC spokesman Louis Monsivais, addressing the council, asked that Moreno be "seriously considered" for police chief. "In his 18 years of service, rising from patrolman to captain, he has demonstrated his ability to work with the comminity and the people have also expressed willingness to work with him," he said.

Monsivais indicated "sensitivity" has played a great part in the Chino community. He added that it is "untimely" to bring in an outside person as chief "just when a great majority of people have shown their trust towards the Chino Police Department."

The CAC does not want to see a "setback" after "the hard work accomplished by Chief Meehan."

Monsivais protested the decision by councilmen to hire an outside consultant. "The CAC feels the city has unique problems unlike those of a larger community where the practice of hiring an outside agency is used."

Mayor Bob McLeod said he "appreciated" the CAC request, and moved to receive and file a letter presented by the group. "We won't bypass anyone within our family group," McLeod said. "Lou Moreno has done an outstanding job."

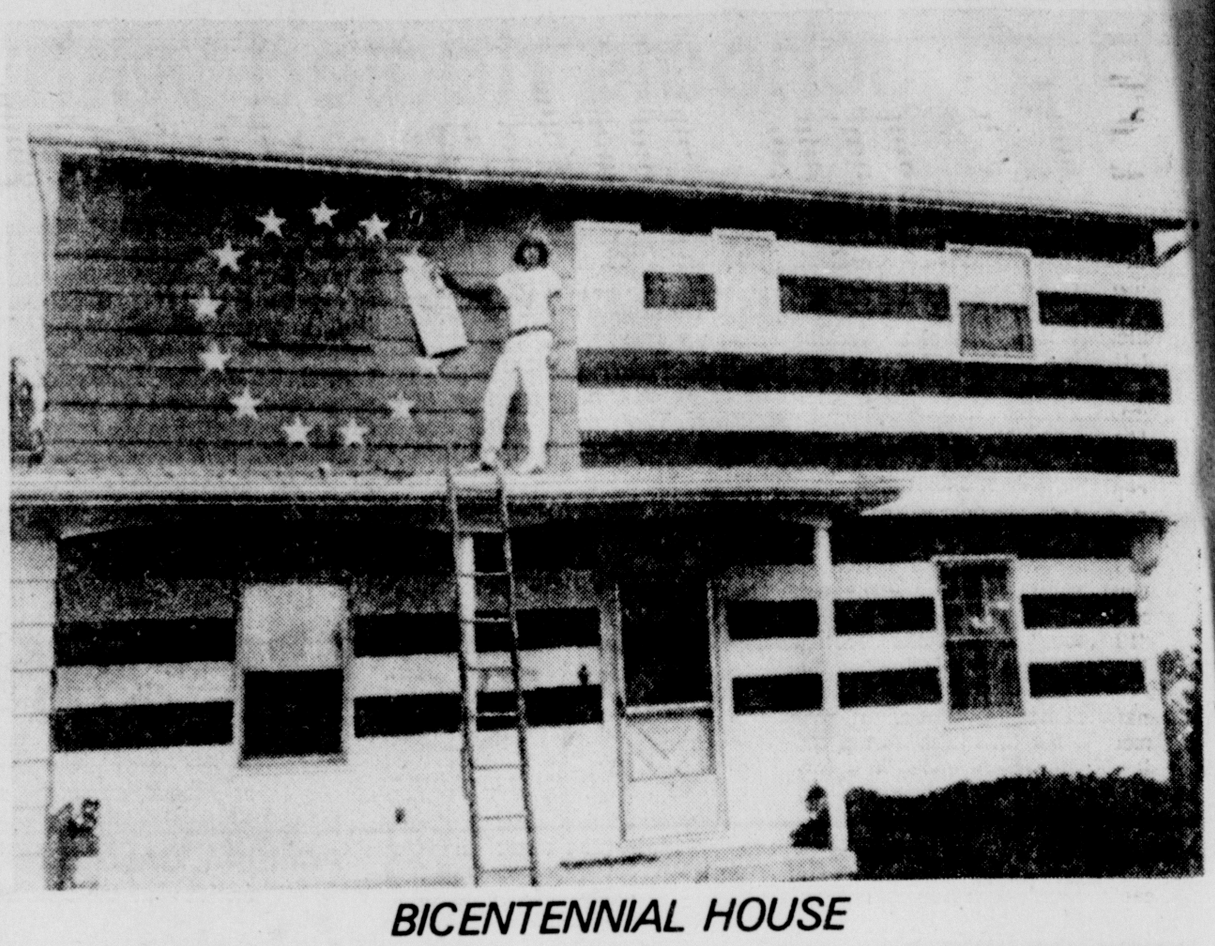
The mayor added, however, that the council had approved an ordinance establishing the procedure for selecting a new chief, which includes use of an outside consultant.

McLeod said he hoped candidates within the city staff would apply but "we also are getting inquires from outside the state."

"I hope politicial appointments will never be made. We want the best qualified person for the job."

He recalled that, years ago, the only requirement for promotion to a top city job was being "a member of the Chino family."

Fast said that the oral board which will make final judgment on the new chief will include the city manager, current chief, the consultant, and representatives from the business community and the community at large.



BICENTENNIAL HOUSE

While his parents were away, Jon Beasley, 20, decided to play. He painted a 13-star flag on the front of his De Kalb, Ill., home. Returning from vacation, his mother was shocked but his father thought it "was kind of cool." Young Beasley, who was supposed to paint the house green, wants to leave the flag painting on at least until the Fourth of July.

355 refugees in U.S. to return to homeland

CAMP PENDLETON (AP)— A total of 355 Indochinese refugees will be processed for repatriation here by United Nations representatives, a senior State Department official said.

The refugees seeking repatriation are all South Vietnamese except for one Cambodian.

Ninety of them are presently staying at this Marine facility and the remaining 265 are scattered in refugee centers elsewhere in the United States, Nick Thorne, head of the Interagency Task Force here, said Tuesday.

Meanwhile, reports reaching United Nations officials in New York indicate another 2,300 Indochinese refugees at camps in the Pacific or in Thailand also have asked to be returned to their homes.

Thorne said processing will begin as soon as refugees at other centers in the United States begin arriving at Camp Pendleton.

Among the refugees asking to be returned, Thorne said, was a pregnant South Vietnamese who had asked for an abortion. She and 14 other refugee women wanting abortions will be given counseling before abortions are scheduled, possibly at University Hospital in San Diego.

Thorne said Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica and Uruguay have offered to admit some of the refugees.

Chino Hills dump idea dumped

A landfill operation proposed for the Chino Hills has been dropped.

This was done Monday when the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors adopted the Chino Hills general plan which didn't include a dump operation.

That 1,000-acre site eyed by the county refuse will remain on the general plan for development of low density residential structures.

County officials had proposed purchasing property near Los Serranos for use when the Milliken Avenue dump in Ontario is filled.

But county Supervisor Robert Townsend proposed the county purchase another 40 to 50 acres at the Milliken dump to prolong its life by 12 to 15 years.

By then, he is hopeful that technology will have developed a system to recycle most of the wastes now taken to the dumps.

Some success has been voted in recycling as the amount of refuse at the Ontario dump has dropped from 681,000 tons during the 1972-73 fiscal year to 626,000 tons this fiscal year.

Townsend attributed this increase to the aluminum and tin can drives and newspaper collections.

Another factor for dropping the Chino Hills site was an alternate operation being planned to dispose of dairy wastes. Under the Chino Hills plan, 600 acres would be designated for diary wastes.

But the Chino Basin Municipal Water District (CBMWD) has applied for a federal grant to set up a recycling operation similar to one being conducted in Colorado.

The Colorado program, started three years ago, is salvaging 90 per cent of the wastes by using them for building materials, fertilizers and feeds, said Townsend.

The Chino supervisor said the Milliken site may be aided by work on the Cucamonga flood control channel. He proposes using excavated dirt in the fill operation.

Under the Chino Hills general plan, no land is earmarked for additional industries. Townsend said nearby Chino had allocated 3,000 acres for industrial use which should be sufficient for that area.

Two existing operations, a brick plant and the Aerojet-General Corp. testing facility, would be permitted to remain as legal, nonconforming uses, he added.

The Chino Hills generally extend west of the Corona Expressway to the Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside county lines.

Based on a recent special census, this is the fastest growing area within San Bernardino County, he said. The number of residents went from 4,965 during the federal 1970 census to 7,584 last month, for a 52.7 per cent hike.

Montclair qualifies for Bicentennial

Montclair has been named an official Bicentennial community by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, according to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

"I'm very pleased to have Montclair as an official participant in the 200th Bicentennial celebration of the United States," Lloyd said.

To become a Bicentennial community, Montclair had to organize a special committee that is representative of all segments of the community.

Montclair also had to plan a Bicentennial program that will have at least one permanent reminder of the special effort that the community expended for the celebration.

City Council approval was also required, according to Lloyd.

Welfare dropout attempt opposed

QUINCY (AP) — The state is trying to stop Plumas County from dropping out of welfare programs.

The California Health and Welfare Agency filed a suit Tuesday aimed at preventing county supervisors from putting into effect their May 27 resolution to stop spending money on certain welfare programs.

Show slated to aid child care service

Girls Unlimited will give a benefit pop concert for the Pomona Child Care Information Service on Thursday.

Vocal and instrumental numbers will be presented at the 7:30 p.m. program at Palomares Community Center, Pomona.

Members of Girls Unlimited are Sally Duff, Deliene Charett, Doreen Romo, Andrea Randall and Cathy Ledesma. Mrs. Lona Lawson is director.

The group has appearances scheduled at the Long Beach Naval Hospital, the Soroptimists and the July 4 fireworks show at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

The Pomona Child Care Information Service is a new agency jointly sponsored by the City of Pomona and Region 2 of the United Way. It provides information to parents who need quality child care to meet special needs of the child and family. Information is also provided to potential and existing providers of child care.

Mrs. Roberta King Watts, as director, inspects providers of child care, including family day care homes, group care centers and nursery schools.

A steering committee of local people has assisted in determining policy, obtaining publicity and is the executive body.

Funds from the benefit concert will help pay for printing, resource material, postage, telephone and office supplies.

Parley at colleges to mull state land uses

Lawyers, economists, planners and government officials will debate hard problems of land use in California during a conference at the Claremont Colleges Thursday through Saturday.

About 75 invited delegates will examine such subjects as the use of coastal areas, the relationship between land use and pollution, how taxation affects land use, recycling urban land, and what to do about increases and decreases in land values brought about by plans for highways and public improvements — the windfalls and wipeouts of planning.

Branaby C. Keeney, president of Claremont Graduate School, will preside at the conference, called the Claremont-American Assembly Conference on Land Use in California.

The conference is sponsored by the graduate school with the American Assembly of Columbia University and the John C. Lincoln Foundation. Sessions will be held in McConnell Center at Pitzer College, Claremont.

The director is Colin Wright, associate professor of economics at CGS and director of the John C. Lincoln Institute.

Six months on job and Rocky likes it

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending his first six months as vice president, Nelson A. Rockefeller says he has adjusted to being the No. 2 man while developing "a close working relationship" in his self-defined role as "a staff assistant" to President Ford.

The former New York governor, who often had said he would never accept the federal government's second highest job, was asked during an anniversary interview if he was glad he had accepted Ford's bid last August to become the nation's 40th vice president.

"I'll say," Rockefeller replied with typical gusto during an interview that began outside the Senate chamber in the Capitol, continued in his limousine during the ride downtown and ended in a corridor outside his suite in the Executive Office Building.

Rockefeller, who was inaugurated six months ago Thursday, made clear he feels his usefulness has not been damaged by a series of controversies during that period, including the recent flap over his commission's report on the Central Intelligence Agency.

But he repeated that he doesn't think Ford "ought to be bound in any way" to put him on the 1976 Republican ticket, insisting that "whatever he decides is fine with me."

During the interview, the 66-year-old vice president also said:

—President Ford "is an extraordinary man. He is totally secure inside and relaxed, which is unusual. I've never seen him ruffled. His patience is unbelievable. His interest is truly cosmopolitan. He and I have a very close, working relationship."

—He "can't conceive" that Republicans will deny Ford their nomination for a full term and believes that, if Ford still wants him on the ticket at that point, "the show is going to be over" so far as an internal party challenge is concerned.

—Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, a possible conservative challenger to either Ford or Rockefeller, is "a great guy, and he's getting around the country and doing a lot to preserve interest and the vitality of the party."

—While being vice president is "totally different" from the 15 years he was governor of New York, "I'm one of those people who decides what I'm going to do and then, when I do it, I've made up my mind, I've conditioned myself totally to accept the realities."

Rockefeller, noting that he has known every vice president since Henry Wallace, who served from 1941 to 1945, and has known "the frustrations of all of them," said he was conditioned for the job in part by a study he headed during the Eisenhower administration on what jobs should be entrusted to the vice president.

"We came up with the conclusion that, except for the constitutional responsibilities of presiding over the Senate, there really wasn't any job that could be given to him because the president had all the power, that it would have to be the president's power through delegation, and that it could very well create two competing political centers for loyalty within the administration, which would be impossible," Rockefeller said.

When Ford asked him to serve as vice president following Richard M. Nixon's resignation as President, Rockefeller said he told the President, "I would be delighted to perform any service that he wanted as a staff assistant.

"I said I was perfectly aware of the situation, and we started with that, and I've kept that as the focus ever since, to only do what he asked me to do," he said.

When asked what he hoped to accomplish in the office, Rockefeller said "to be helpful to him and, through him, to be useful to the country at a very, very difficult time, and to support the secretary of state," his old friend and adviser, Henry A. Kissinger.

As for continuing opposition by some Republican conservatives, Rockefeller replied: "We're a minority party and they're a minority of a minority.

"On issues, I try to do what is right," he said. "I'm not down here to play politics." He added he thinks "this whole business of liberal and conservative is totally outdated.

"I think you guys who write this stuff are really a little out of touch," he added. "The substance of the issues doesn't break down into liberal and conservative. The whole framework of the problems, the structures of the problems has changed. They don't fit into ideological categories."

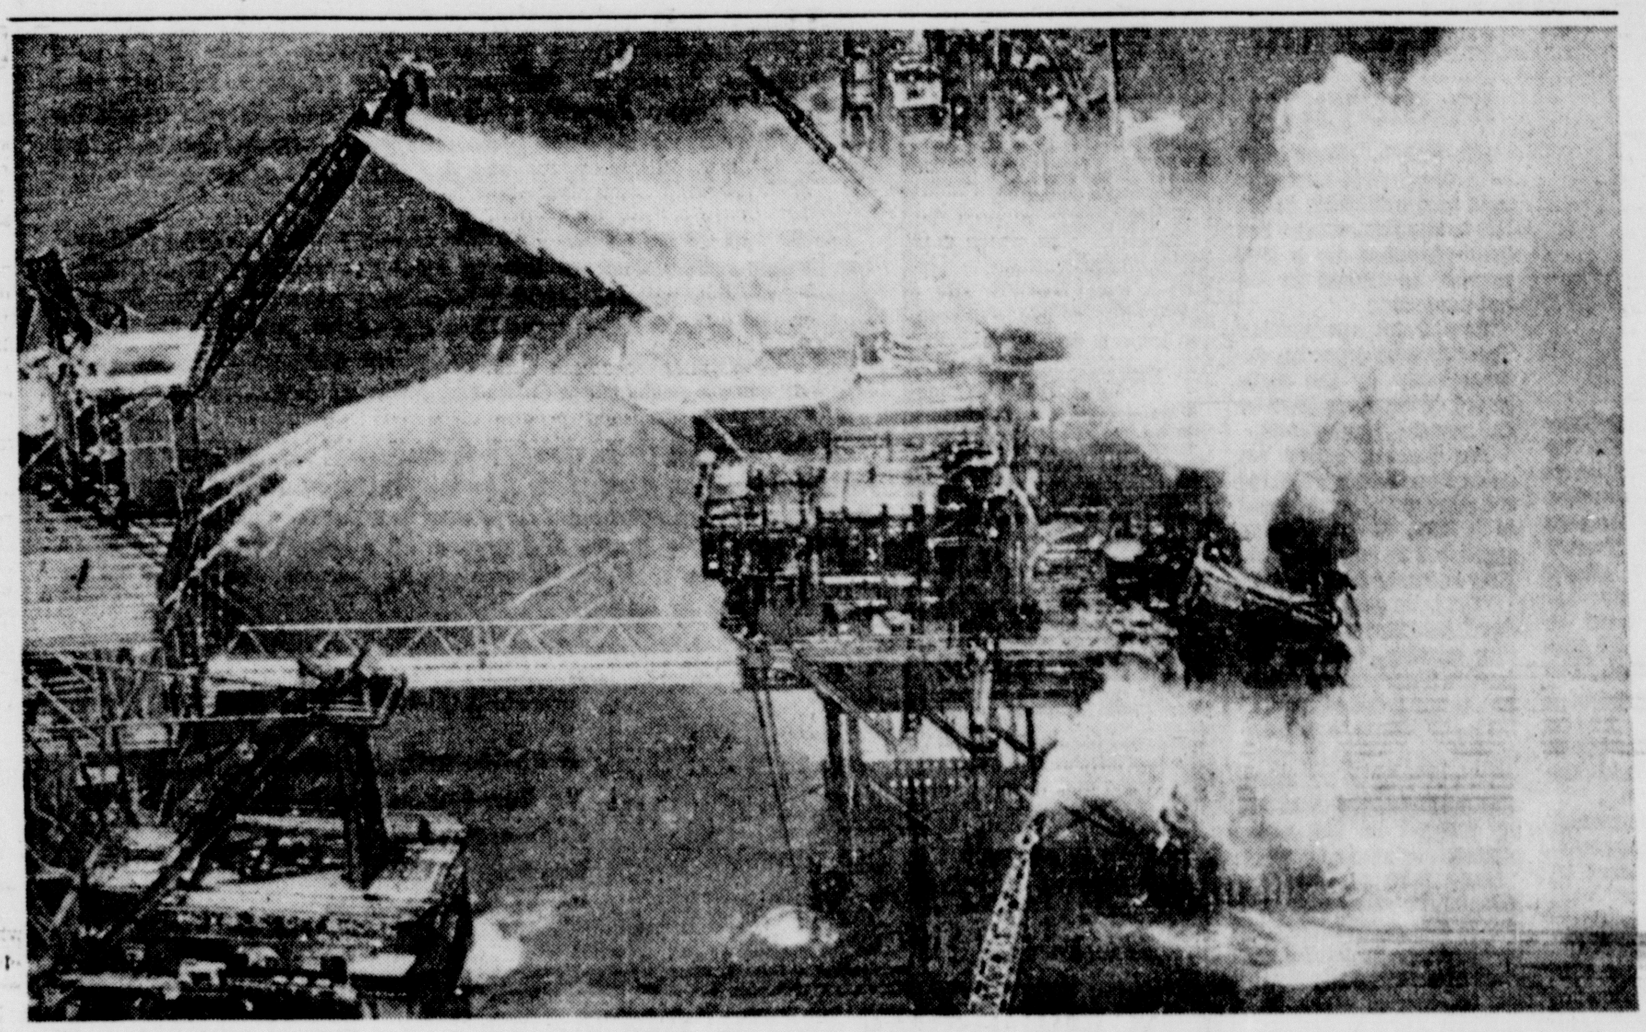
5 votes short — dissidents block budget OK



HEAVY SPRAY

Some 20,000 gallons of water per minute are being sprayed on an Amoco Production Co. drilling rig 80 miles out in the gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast. The water is being used in hopes of preventing another fire while the well is being capped. Pollution from the rig that is spraying gas at right was minimal during an aerial view Tuesday.

Defeated in Assembly, but Senate passes it

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Dissident Democrats and Republicans teamed together and blocked final passage of an $11.56 billion state budget in the Assembly.

Late Tuesday, the budget fell five votes short of the number needed to send it to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk despite Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy's strong one-on-one lobbying.

After the 49-20 vote, the San Francisco Democrat said he would try again Thursday for passage of the $11,566,420,336 spending proposal. He refused to comment on why the bill was defeated.

McCarthy instead told reporters clustered around him "all options are open" when he was asked where he would find his needed five votes. The Senate voted 32-5 Tuesday to send the bill to Brown.

But the Assembly's battle on the budget bill got off to a rocky start immediately. Some Democrats wanted more money in the bill. Some Republicans wanted less.

In a behind-closed-doors fight, McCarthy found himself facing an odd coalition — 20 GOP "no" votes and a handful of Democrats who are generally critical of his speakership.

During the hours of wrangling, Republicans also met with the Democratic governor in his office but came away without changing their solid "no" vote bloc on the bill.

A vote finally came 5½ hours after Assemblyman John Foran, a San Francisco Democrat who sponsored the bill in the lower house, set the tone for the budget battle in debate when he said:

"There are those who will be unsatisfied because they think the budget is too low, and there are those who will be unsatisfied because they think it is too high."

If the budget bill fails again, a new budget writing committee will be set up. If that happens, it will mean a fatter budget, said state Sen. Anthony Beilenson, Senate author of the budget bill.

"The next bill has to cost more money," the Los Angeles Democrat said in an interview. He said Democrats would push for additional expenditures in exchange for their votes.

During Senate debate, Beilenson said there was almost nothing in the budget that could be cut "without hurting people in need."

But Assembly GOP minority leader Bob Beverly repeated his concern that the budget should be sliced down by millions and said Gov. Brown failed to assure him definitely about how much he will cut.

"Brown reiterated his pledge of no tax increase next year," Beverly said in an interview after meeting with the 37-yearold governor..

But Brown's comments on how much he would cut were too vague to be reassuring enough to pry out some "yes" Republican votes on the budget, Beverly said.

McCarthy also said he planned to meet with Brown before Thursday's floor session to discuss specific budget items and learn the governor's feelings.

Here is a brief outline of some key items in the budget:

—An average 8.5 per cent cost-of-living pay raise for civil service employes, state college and University of California employes. Included is a $400 bonus for employes making less than $753 a month.

—A $65 million appropriation for a 9 per cent cost-of-living hike for the state's aged, blind and disabled. Several Democrats feel strongly this amount should not be cut by Brown, who proposed a 6 per cent hike.

—A $4 million bilingual education appropriation above the $4.3 million requested by Brown.

—A $67 million cap on additional money for state adult education programs, which critics argue have been growing at an out-of-control rate.

The bill is SB 199.

Man dies of stab wounds in gang melee

A 19-year-old man, stabbed during a clash of Compton gangs early Sunday in La Puente, died Tuesday afternoon at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital in Los Angeles.

The victim, Joel Hernandez of Los Angeles, was stabbed in the chest during a melee in which two brothers also were stabbed and 11 persons were arrested.

The clash was between members of the Elm Street Gang and the Largos Gang and took place in front of 17351 Main St. where the victims had attended a party. The victims were Elm Street Gang members.

Of the 11 persons booked by Industry sheriff's deputies, three remained in custody today. One, a 15-year-old Los Angeles youth, was charged with murder after Hernandez' death. Two others, Frank Ortiz and Paul Cobarubio, both 19, were charged with attempted murder. All three are Largos gang members.

The other two Elm Streeters stabbed in the battle were in fair condition at County-USC Medical Center. They are Lydell and Andrew Burge, 17 and 18, who are brothers.

In Pomona, a man armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed the Baskin-Robbins 31 Flavors Ice Cream Store at 1066 N. Garey Ave., Tuesday and about an hour later police arrested a suspect after stopping his car at Hamilton Boulevard near Center Street.

The store proprietor, Shirley A. House, 42, said the robber entered while she was alone in the store, handed her a paper sack and ordered her to put the money inside. After she did, he walked out the front door.

Police later stopped the suspect, David Angelo Ayala, 23, of 2057 W. Kathryn Ave., as he was driving his car and took him into custody. They said he matched the description of the robber, but no weapon was found.

Three Pomona youths were arrested Tuesday night after an off-duty Pomona policeman spotted two of them burglarizing a Claremont home.

The three, two 15 and the other 14, were booked on suspicion of burglary and later released to their parents.

The burglary was at 361 Marygrove Avenue. The officer, Lt. D.L. Liming, said he was passing when he noticed a glass panel in the front door broken and one youth acting as a lookout.

The youths saw Liming and left the house, pursued by the officer. They were nabbed nearby on Arrow Highway, west of Indian Hill Boulevard, by Claremont police who had been summoned.

The three admitted the burglary later and one said they had planned to carry off a portable television set, but it was too heavy to carry.

An Upland cab driver was robbed of a small amount of cash Tuesday night on a call to pick up a man at Pine Street and Campus Avenue in Upland about 10:11 p.m.

Police said the robber used a knife to force the Yellow Cab driver Robert Cole, to hand over a small amount of cash. The robber was described as a Caucasian in his early 20's, 5 feet 11, of husky build, with dark brown long straight hair. He was wearing a stocking cap over his face and a dark jacket.

A thin, young man wearing a yellow dress robbed Espiau's restaurant at 1542 W. Holt Ave. Monday night of cash before fleeing bare foot across Holt Avenue.

The cashier, Beverly Overton, said the man entered, demanded the money and then pulled a short-barrelled, .22-caliber revolver from beneath his sweater when she remarked, 'You must be kidding." The cash was placed in a paper sack.

A 19-year-old Montclair man has been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon after allegedly throwing a beer bottle at another man, who may lose his eye as a result of the injury.

Howard Gordon Haynes of 5155 Harvard St., Montclair was arrested Tuesday by Montclair detectives after a week-long investigation of the incident that occurred at a graduation party in the area of Mills Avenue and Evart Street in Montclair last Wednesday. Haynes was booked in the San Bernardino County Jail pending arraignment on the charge.

Police said the suspect threw a beer bottle at Steve Lopez, 23, of Montclair after being refused entrance to the party. The beer bottle struck Lopez in the left eye.

Record shift

Payments balance moves out of red

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an all-time record shift, the nation's balance of payments moved sharply out of deficit into near balance during the first three months of this year, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the payments accounts were in deficit by $475 million in the first quarter this year, contrasted to a $6.57 billion deficit in the final three months of last year.

A department spokesman said it was the biggest shift on record, surpassing a move in the second quarter of 1974 from a $2.38 billion deficit to a $1.62 billion surplus.

The department attributed the change to improved trade performance and a slower flow of investment money out of the country.

The balance of payments accounts are designed to measure the flows of money in and out of the United States.

A sustained outflow of dollars erodes the value of U.S. currency and makes American goods more competitive overseas, but the effect can also be inflationary on the domestic economy when the dollars turn around and return home.

Economists consider the ideal situation to be long-term stable performance without wide swings in either direction.

The latest quarterly performance of the U.S. balance of payments accounts represents the fourth consecutive three-month deficit. In the first three months of last year the accounts showed a $1.6 billion surplus, but then deteriorated into a $10.9 billion deficit by year end.

The key element in the improved performance was a $1.8 billion surplus on the nation's foreign trade ledgers, reversing a $1.45 billion deficit at the close of last year.

Also helping cut down the size of the deficit was a slower flow of investment funds out of the United States.

Long-term private capital flowed out at a $5.54 billion rate in the last three months of 1974, but that rate slackened to $2.13 billion in the first quarter of this year.

The Commerce Department said the investment change was the product of petroleum industry transactions which resulted in lower U.S. investment abroad and higher foreign investment in the United States.

The flow of U.S. investments overseas totaled $900 million, a decrease of $2.2 billion from the previous quarter. The numbers reflect the fact that Middle Eastern and other oil-producing states are nationalizing the oil interests formerly held by U.S. corporations.

Militant strike stand by AMA?

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The American Medical Association has moved closer to a more militant position on the question of doctors' strikes.

Without using the word "strike," the AMA House of Delegates voted Tuesday that "it reserves for itself and its members the right to protest."

Before taking that action, the delegates to the AMA's annual convention rejected nearly unanimously a resolution that said: "The AMA opposes in principle the use of organized strikes of doctors as a means of seeking solutions to problem areas in the rendering of medical care."

The delegates took the action after lengthy and often confused debate and tangled parliamentary moves. Then, after adjournment, a spokesman said officials were going to look at what was done "in the coolness of the evening." He said it was likely some move at reconsideration would take place at today's session.

Dr. Tom E. Nesbitt of Nashville, Tenn., the speaker of the AMA house, told newsmen he felt the action lent support to doctor's protests in California and New York. These protests were mostly concerning malpractice insurance problems.

The AMA already had voiced sympathy for the strike by interns and residents against more than 20 New York hospitals.

In the house action, delegates reaffirmed the right of an individual doctor to decide when to practice medicine and called for a study by the board of directors of the subject of group action.

Here is the resolution as finally approved:

"Resolved, that the American Medical Association recognizes that it is the inalienable right of each individual physician to decide for himself the circumstances under which he can or cannot continue to practice his profession.

"That the Board of Trustees study under what circumstances, if any, group-sponsored action may be justified.

"That the primary commitment of the AMA is to the essential health needs of the people of this nation,

"That the members of the AMA will at all times continue to deliver emergency and urgently needed medical care for all the people, but the association reserves for itself and its members the right to protest in behalf of patients when intolerable and unwarranted burdens — financial or otherwise — are placed upon our patients, the association or its members."

In other actions, the AMA:

—Rejected a proposal that would have defined death by the cessation of total brain function. This is but one of various criteria, a report contended.

—Supported repeal of laws that make criminal any form of noncommercial sexual conduct between consenting adults in private. But it rejected a proposal that said such behavior should not be a bar to employment.

—Supported a U.S. Senate bill to allow unlimited income for persons 65 or over without reduction in Social Security benefits.

Brown wins support for bargaining plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. won support from labor and government leaders for a compromise collective bargaining plan affecting 1.5 million public employes.

The agreement Tuesday followed the same pattern as Brown's personal negotiations last month which produced the Democratic governor's landmark farm labor bill.

The collective bargaining bill is intended to reverse the trend toward more public employe strikes by setting up bargaining rules and a state review board.

However, this time the circumstances surrounding the compromise were less dramatic than the farm labor agreement last month.

And the collective bargaining bill involves neither the fundamental change nor the long history of conflict which added drama to the farm labor agreement.

The public employe bill was endorsed by the California AFL-CIO and representatives of California cities and counties.

It does not give public employes the right to strike, and it does not require binding arbitration. But it establishes new ground rules for labor negotiations between firemen, policemen, teachers and other government employes and local and state government.

The major endorsements came the afternoon following a final round of negotiations in Brown's office which lasted until 3 a.m. Tuesday morning. That meeting capped four months of off-and-on negotiations.

On the labor side, the California AFL-CIO, the California Teachers Association, the California State Employes Association and the California State Firemen's Association all endorsed the Brown plan.

The League of California Cities and the County Supervisors Association also approved the collective bargaining bill.

One management and two public employe groups remained in opposition to the Brown plan.

"It's a delicate balance, as is any bill that affects such a multiplicity of interests," Brown told The Associated Press. "This is a bill that has solid support. It's a compromise bill," he added.

"The right to strike has been dropped. The binding arbitration has been dropped. The definition of supervisors has been expanded," Brown said.

"Unless the right to strike is granted, it is prohibited. That authority is not in any way changed by this bill," Brown said.

Still opposed to the plan were the California School Boards Association, the California School Employes Association and the Peace Officers Research Association of California.

1924 crime

Man, 76, pardoned in slaying

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A 76-year-old man who says he's waited his entire life to see justice done has been pardoned for a 1924 murder he claims he did not commit.

Roy Page, presented Tuesday with a pardon extraordinary by the state Board of Pardons, says he can now die a happy man.

The Pardon Board set aside Page's conviction for the murder of Grace Mogul of St. Paul. The pardon was presented to him in his St. Paul rooming house.

"It's been with me every day," said Page. "I've had this craving, craving for justice. That was my whole life, to see justice done."

The pardon extraordinary states that his conviction should be set aside and nullified, and that he be purged of the conviction.

Page was paroled in 1963, but he was unsuccessful in numerous attempts to win a pardon until a St. Paul attorney, Jack Nordby, interceded in his behalf last April.

When he finally received the pardon Tuesday, he turned the paper over and over in his hands, then said:

"I can die a happy man now that justice has been done. This is justice."

AN OPEN LETTER FROM YOUR BOARD OF EDUCATION

"We, the members of the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District, would like to take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Pomona and North Diamond Bar, on behalf of some 20,000 young people, for their support in the special election last May 27.

"In the wake of that success, we have been able to restore some $1.8 million in programs, services and personnel which had been carved from the 1975-76 budget and which would have drastically impared the educational programs underway in this District.

"It is imperative, however, to realize that massive restructuring of the present system of financing public education is mandatory, and we must all work toegther to urge the Sacramento Legislature to devise an equitable plan which will prevent the inequities inherent in the current methods and which will allow Boards of Education and district staffs to plan realistically for each following year, without having to go to the local property taxpayer for help year after year.

"There can be no doubt that the citizens have averted a disaster in our schools, as evidenced by the terrible dilemma being faced in other school districts involving massive cutbacks and layoffs. It is safe to assume that the entire community would have suffered from such a devastating blow to the quality of life for every resident within the District boundaries.

"There is much to be done, however, and we, as your elected representatives, pledge to do everything possible to enhance the educational processes here and to make this District one of the finest in the State. We urge each of you to continue your interest in the welfare of our young people, and to help us with the task at hand."

Obituary

James Hilliard

James T. Hillard of 676 N. Towne Ave., Claremont, died Monday evening in Pomona Valley Community Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Hilliard was born April 12, 1932 in Denver, Colo. He came to California from Denver in 1936 and lived in the Santa Monica area before moving to Claremont in 1973. He was a member of Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church, Claremont.

Mr. Hilliard served with the U.S. Navy during the Korean War and had been an engineer with Aerojet General Corp. for 15 years.

Surviving is his mother, Eleanor S. of Claremont; a sister, Mrs. Roberta Wetenkamp of Claremont; and five nephews.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be celebrated Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church. Private burial will be made in Holy Cross Cemetery, Pomona. Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona is in charge of arrangements.

The Oregon Territory was acquired by treaty from England, terminating joint occupation of 255,580 square miles in 1846.

Supervisors OK 59-mile transit line

LOS ANGELES (AP)—County supervisors gave the nod to a 59-mile highspeed transit line route that will link the San Fernando Valley with San Pedro and Long Beach at a projected cost of $485 million.

Supervisors voted 4-1 Tuesday on the proposal only hours after the Long Beach City Council announced its approval of the starter route.

County officials anticipate a total of $900 million will ultimately become available for the highspeed transit project, mostly from federal Urban Mass Transportation Administrations funds and from local gasoline sales taxes.

However, neither the supervisors nor the Long Beach councilmen took action earmarking gasoline taxes for the project.

The supervisors were scheduled to take up the matter today, with about $53.1 million in gasoline taxes over the next six years at stake.

A Long Beach City Council spokesman said the city would hold off action on its $2.25 million in gasoline taxes until the Southern California Rapid Transit District formally adopts the proposed starter route.

"We do not want to pledge our share (of gasoline taxes) and then have the RTD perhaps adopt a route out Wilshire Boulevard from downtown Los Angeles," said the spokesman.

The highspeed transit starter route approved Tuesday would start in Canoga Park, run east through Burbank and Glendale, sweep under downtown Los Angeles and then resurface to run toward Huntington Park and Compton, before branching off to Long Beach and San Pedro.

The adoption votes by the supervisors and the Long Beach councilmen came in the wake of a warning from federal transportation officials that unless they were informed by Aug. 1 of agreement on a starter route and the pledging of local funds, matching federal funds may not be forthcoming.

On Monday, the Los Angeles City Council tentatively committed $31.1 million in gasoline taxes for the project and called for a committee recommendation within two weeks on a starter line.

Tunney fears SST shock waves on economy of nation's airlines

SEN. JOHN V. TUNNEY, D-Calif., has requested an economic impact analysis on proposed foreign SST air travel into this country on domestic carriers.

Tunney said he was concerned that regular commercial flights of foreign SSTs may severely endanger the already fragile economic condition of the nation's transcontinental domestic jet fleet.

Pan America and Trans-World Airlines already have consolidated routes to save money and could lose revenues as a result of commercial Concorde flights into the United States, he added.

The Environmental Protection Agency has published a proposed rule that would permit the Concorde, the Anglo-French SST, and the Tu-144, the Soviet SST, access to U.S. airports on a regular commercial basis.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., has supported a measure aimed at lowering the legislative vote necessary to change the taxes of banks and corporations from two-thirds to a simple majority vote.

The measure was recently approved by the Assembly and sent to the state Senate. This was a key plank in Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s tax reform program.

McVittie said the matter may eventually end up on the June 1976 ballot and thus negate the need for the citizens' initiative program now underway.

"The state constitution now makes it easier to tax the average citizen than giant banks. It's a blatant loophole that has cushioned some of our state's wealthiest special interests for most of this century," said McVittie.

STATE SEN. H. L. RICHARDSON, R-19th Dist., has had his measure that would permit development of recreational facilities along flood control channels in Los Angeles County approved by the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Water Resources.

The bill was introduced on behalf of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District. It amends the Flood Control District Act to allow the district to add recreational features to its properties, provided the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors approves.

The measure would allow the district to collect admission or use fees where appropriate.

If approved and signed into law, the measure is expected to help in development of a valley bicycle trails system which involves six cities and Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

STELLA EPSTEIN, the southern woman's chairman of the California Democratic Party, will be speaker at the United Democratic Women's Club program today at 8 p.m. at the Western Federal Savings and Loan Association building, 10 Fashion Square, La Habra.

She will discuss the expanding role of Democratic women in politics and also install new club officers. They are Rose Schmidt, Hacienda Heights, president; Vivian Collipreist, Whittier, vice president; Winifred Westcott, Whittier, recording secretary; Cathy Moses, La Mirada, treasurer; and Linda Williams, Norwalk, corresponding secretary.

The club was recently formed to provide Democratic women in the 33rd Senate District an opportunity to participate in social and political activities.

ANNE RAINERI has been appointed promotion and advertising manager at the Montclair Plaza. She previously worked at a San Fernando Valley shopping center and also had a radio show.

Rookie cops going on TV as part of witness training

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — The rookie policeman, watching himself testify on a videotape of a mock trial, was surprised at the dazed look on his face and the way he dipped his head to the side at each question.

"I didn't know I did that," he said, embarrassed.

He was a member of a miniacting class required as part of a police training course in this Milwaukee suburb.

"Actually, we call this part of the course courtroom demeanor," instructor Gene Conahan said.

He said the course is designed to help policeman become professional witnesses when they have to appear in court.

Conahan admonishes the rookies, many of whom have never been in a courtroom before making their first arrest, not to wear sunglasses or show any emotion.

"Don't chew gum on the witness stand and especially don't pick your nose," he warned.

Conahan said most rookies are nervous about their court appearances and it often shows in their attitudes toward the attorneys, the way they answer questions, voice inflections and even nervous habits.

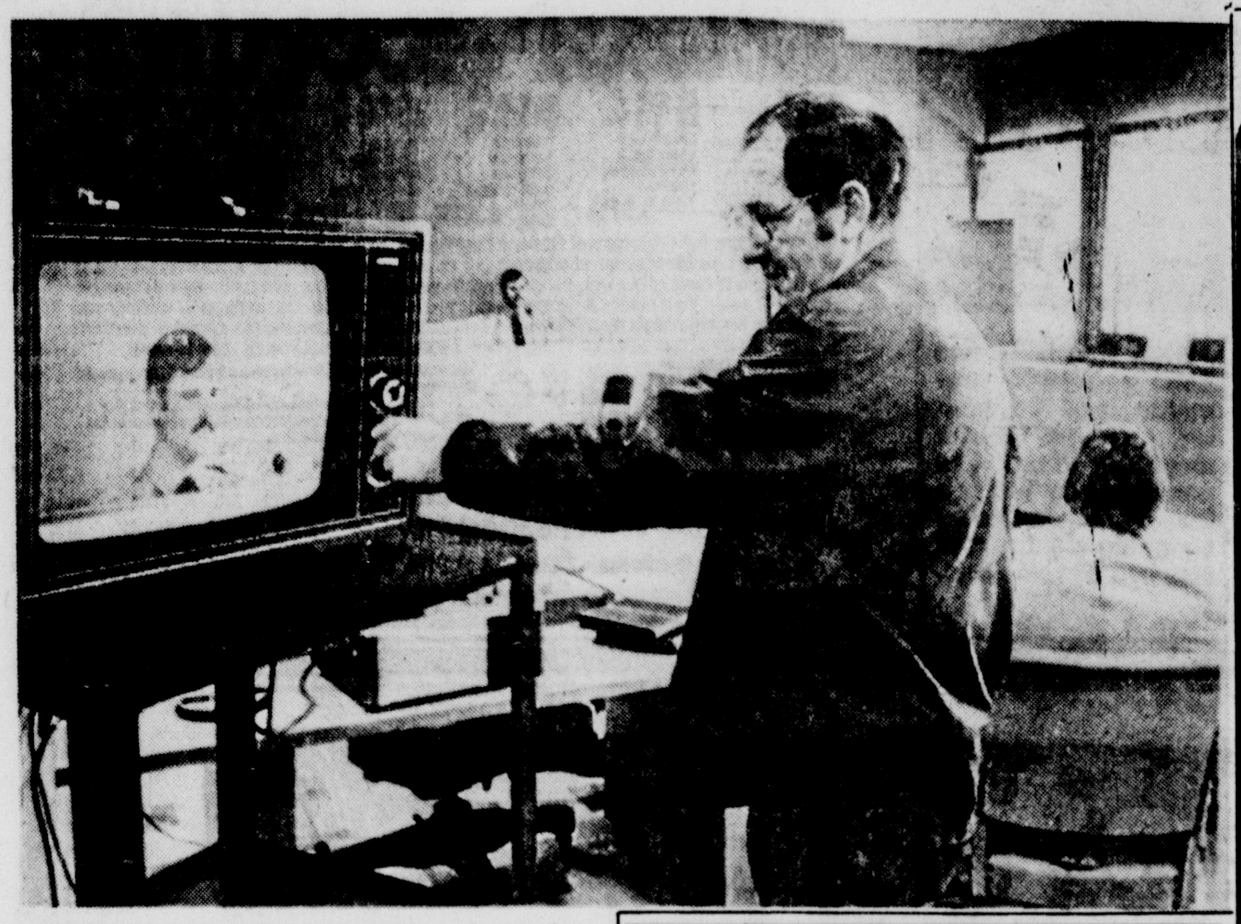
"There was one guy who would always flick the end of his nose while he was thinking," Conahan said. "It looked terrible, but he didn't even realize he was doing it."

Conahan said he teaches the young policemen to concentrate on all questions, answer forthrightly and show just as much deference to the defense attorney as to the prosecutor.

"Many policmen think the prosecutor is the good guy, while the defense attorney is the bad guy, trying to trip them up," he said.

He tells the rookies not to volunteer information to the prosecutor and not to become rattled by the defense attorney.

He said the rationale behind the program is that a policeman is an expert in his field when his testimony is accepted in court, so it should be as honest and unbiased as possible for the judge or jury.



SCREEN TEST — Gene Conahan, an instructor in the Waukesha, Wis., police department, adjusts the picture on a closed circuit television screen used to help rookies make better courtroom presentations. Using videotape, policemen can watch themselves testify.

Prosecutor calls for removal of woman judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The behavior of Municipal Court Judge Noel Cannon and her "complete lack of control over her emotions" call for her removal from the bench, the state Supreme Court has been told by a state prosecutor.

The Supreme Court has taken under submission an appeal by Miss Cannon of a recommendation by the state Commission on Judicial Qualifications that she be removed from her position.

The court heard an hour of arguments Monday by lawyers for Judge Cannon and by state prosecutors.

Dep. Atty. Gen. Kent Richland argued that Judge Cannon was subject to emotional outbursts on the bench and said her actions had sent a "chilling" pall over the public defender's office.

Judge Cannon reportedly cited five deputy public defenders for contempt in an eight-month period—a total Richland said was "a record of some sort."

But a lawyer for a Judge Cannon argued that his client is guilty of nothing more than judicial error. The attorney, I. Richard Ruman, defended her actions as those of a judge "who is human and lost her temper on occasions."

"It would be a dangerous precedent to discipline Judge Cannon for what I feel is a judicial error," Ruman told the hearing.

Ruman said the judge's conduct in court was caused by a "wild-and-woolly approach" and "anything-goes" tactics on the part of young and inexperienced deputy public defenders.

Chief Justice Donald Wright told Ruman he could only think of two reasons for Judge Cannon's behavior — illness or being "goaded beyond possible endurance."

Wright added that the judge brought the "so-called mental strain" on herself by disposing of a case every "five to eight minutes" the court was in session.

"Her behavior obviously is erratic," Richland told reporters outside the courtroom. "She indulges in her own emotional feelings and...she has been willing to use her judicial power to take whatever steps she feels are necessary."

Judge Cannon was supported in a "friend-of-the-court" brief by the Los Angeles Police Protective League, which said she has been a good judge.

U.S. still retains tough military stance in Asia

TOKYO (AP) — The United States still remains a major military power in Asia with most of its forces concentrated around Japan and Korea, the part of the continent where American interests traditionally have been the strongest.

The centers of U.S. military might in the northwest Pacific are two well-equipped infantry divisions and a string of air and naval bases in Japan, Korea and the U.S. island of Guam.

There are about 52,000 U.S. servicemen in Japan, 38,000 in Korea and another 12,000 on Guam, the U.S. territory 1,500 miles south of Tokyo, where thousands of Vietnamese refugees are awaiting flights to the United States.

The U.S. bases mostly are operating far below capacity. The idea is that if a crisis blows up units can be moved quickly from the mainland.

"Within 48 hours a squadron (of fighter-bombers) from the United States can be operational anywhere," said a U.S. air force officer in Japan.

Washington's post World War II policy has been to provide security for Japan which once dominated Asia militarily. This is based on the assumption that with U.S. protection Japan will not feel the need to rearm massively or in some other way upset the delicate balance of power in the western Pacific.

Japan has a "no war" constitution and its self-defense force is miniscule.

The United States has defense treaties with both Tokyo and Seoul. There is no sign these agreements are being reassessed by the Asian nation in the wake of Vietnam.

The U.S. government has reaffirmed these commitments, and the Chinese have indicated that American troops in Asia are welcome as a balance against Soviet ambitions.

Suspect hangs self in jail

NATIONAL CITY (AP) — A man arrested for purse snatching has hung himself in his cell, authorities here said.

The body of Gordon Lee Olsen, 32, was found in his cell over the weekend.

Deputy Coroner Mike Breen said Olsen had tied a bedsheet to a bar in his cell door and knotted the other end around his throat.

Meet Tracy: Dad tried but couldn't keep camp promise

Tracy is a shy studious girl. She gets straight A's in school and is athletic.

Monday, Tracy will celebrate her 10th birthday. Since Tracy was 8 her father has promised to send her to camp when she turned 10.

But present economic conditions at home make it impossible for Tracy's father to fulfill his promise. Tracy's father knows how important a father's promise is to a child and feels that he must do everything in his power to try and get Tracy to camp.

At the present time Tracy's father is unemployed. He was laid off his job in October. Since that time the family has been forced to sell its modest two-bedroom house in Pomona. The payments were too high and the family needed the extra money for food. There are six children in the family and Tracy is the oldest.

In January the family moved in with Tracy's grandmother, rather than seek welfare aid.

Tracy's father is somewhat bitter over losing his job. "I worked for that company for 10 years and then suddenly I got laid off," he said.

Tracy's father collects unemployment and the family lives on his weekly checks plus the money Tracy's mother receives working part time.

Tracy's father gets up every morning and goes job hunting. In addition he has sent out numerous resumes. He is hopeful that soon he may start working again.

But he knows that at the present time he can not afford to send Tracy to camp.

You can help Tracy get the birthday gift she has dreamed of.

Your dollars can send Tracy and other children like her to a week of summer camp. It can give them a healthy mind-expanding experience that will enable them to grow and cope with their environment at home.

To give, send your tax deductible contribution to the Donrey Public Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766.

Each day a list of all contributors will be published in the Progress Bulletin unless persons specify that they wish to remain anonymous.

Claremont Colleges fire two in building seizure

Claremont colleges presidents have fired James Garrett as director of the Black Studies Center and Camilla Browne as director of the Black Admissions Office.

In announcing the decision, Joseph B. Platt, chairman of the Council of Presidents of the Claremont Colleges, said the terminations become effective on July 1. However, he added, both were relieved of their administrative responsibilities on June 9.

Platt said Browne and Garrett were involved in the obstructive occupation of Pendleton Business Building on the campus on May 6 and both refused to leave when directed to do so by the chairman of the council, who, at that time was Scripps College President Mark Curtis.

Platt, who is president of Harvey Mudd College, added:

"Both have stated that they will again participate in activities contrary to the regulations of the colleges when they feel it is appropriate to do so.

"Normal staff grievance procedures are available to both. We believe that appeal to the Board of Fellows of Claremont University Center, as the final authority, is the appropriate mechanism if Browne and Garrett wish to challenge the decision of the council."

Platt said the council arrived at its decision after many days of investigation and discussion of the issues raised by the occupation of the business building.

The council has announced during the past weeks several of its actions which included the acceptance of recommendation of the Special Committee, consisting of representatives from the Black Studies Center, the Chicano Studies Center and the council, to establish five-week black and Mexican-American pre-freshman summer programs.

The council has also agreed to establish mutually satisfactory appointment, reappointment and tenure provisions for faculty members teaching in the BSC and CSC programs along the lines proposed by the special committee.

Platt said the colleges seek programs of instruction that recognize the contributions of each ethnic group to the society.

Since the two special studies programs were established in 1969 as a result of a board concern for the goal of obtaining more ethnically representive student bodies and programs of studies, the enrollment of these two ethnic groups has risen. In 1969, there were 203 blacks and 122 Mexican-Americans (4.9 per cent and 2.9 per cent of total enrollment respectively) on campus. The figures this year are 330 blacks and 229 Mexican-Americans (7.5 per cent and 6.8 per cent respectively).

Platt added "The council cannot condone the breaking of civil law nor of the college regulations. We are required to uphold both, just as those who have broken them must accept the consequences of their actions.

"Demands for anmesty are not in the tradition of effective civil rights leaders; to grant it automatically would encourage those with even the most frivolous grievances to bring them to the top and make it impossible for education to continue," added the chairman.

The council felt the disruption of business in the Pendleton building affected many people.

"People seek employment at the Pendleton Business Building and faculty and students seek services, but neither services nor employment was available on May 6," said Platt.

The dramatic methods of protest on the campus have disrupted the academic community and caused trouble in conducting its affairs, said the chairman of the council.

"We do not know the persons responsible for the 11 fires, 13 false alarms and 68 bomb threats of the past month. But we know that lives of many students were discommoded by threats of violence and occasionally by actual illegal acts," reported Platt.

"We believe that those responsible for violence and threats of violence, whatever their intent, were encouraged to make their attempts at this time because of the existing polarization on the campus."

In discussing other issues raised at the time of the BSC and CSC program protest, Platt said the council has only limited power for providing jobs or money for academic programs. The council is accountable to trustees, faculty, students, donors and federal and state governments, plus the university's own bylaws in making decisions.

"With respect to jobs, this accountability restrains us from dealing with matters of tenure in the individual colleges without faculty debate and approval," he said.

As far as money is concerned, added Platt," We must either take funds from existing programs or find new sources of funding for the purpose. Both require a great deal of consideration and review."

Pomona school personnel revamping saves $25,000

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

The personnel office of the Pomona Unified School District was reorganized by the school board Tuesday night at a savings to the district in fiscal 1975-76 of $25,000.

"This has been my concern all along," said school board President Don Donnelly, "the saving of administrative costs."

The vote on the board to accept the reorganizational plan, one of six board members had studied, was unanimous. It ended two weeks of heavy debate on the matter.

Last February, in order to have a balanced 1975-76 budget should the May 27 tax override fail, schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz recommended that the position of assistant superintendent of personnel services be eliminated. The board approved the recommendation.

After the override was passed by voters, board members went along with administrative recommendations to rehire personnel and reinstate programs and services, with the exception of the assistant superintendent of personnel position.

Donnelly and board member Gene Whitlock led the opposition to reinstating the position which Wentz kept recommending, claiming an opportunity was at hand to save money for the taxpayers.

However, they made a concession Tuesday. They agreed with the other three board members to reinstate the assistant superintendent in the personnel position, but complete the staff with one personnel assistant (which they currently have) and create a position of personnel specialist-secretary to work part-time as a secretary to the assistant superintendent.

The new plan deletes the existing position of personnel director in the district office. James Marquis, the man now holding that position, has resigned.

"As a leader of the savings team, I commend the administration for its time and effort in working this out," said Whitlock.

"I, too, favor the savings concept," said board member C. Allen Braswell. "I have a program idea for every nickel we save."

Since the current assistant superintendent of personnel, Lynn Rountree, becomes assistant superintendent of business services on July 1, the school board has the task of finding a new person to head the personnel office staff.

This year taxpayers have paid salaries of $30,698 to the assistant superintendent of personnel, $28,000 to the personnel director and $22,000 to a personnel assistant, for a total administrative payroll cost in that office of $80,000.

In other actions, the school board:

— Agreed to spend $1,000 a year for three years to have top administrators in the personnel office attend four, two-day sessions each year with Educators Selection Project in Los Angeles to become expert in the field of hiring public school personnel. The sessions are conducted by a nine-man team with expertise in the fields of psychology, testing, law, research, evaluation, screening, selection processes and affirmative action. The purpose of this service is to help the district meet the 24 recommendations relative to hiring practices made by the Fair Employment Practices Commission.

— Approved the 1975-76 district portion of $120,648 to the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department budget which includes $10,648 from Los Angeles County to provide services in Diamond Bar. The total amount will be included in the tentative 1975-76 district budget which will come to the board July 1. A publication budget is scheduled for board presentation July 20, and on Aug. 10, the board will be asked to adopt a final budget for next year.

— Listened as board representative in employe negotiations, assistant superintendent of educational services Sidney Moses, responded to proposals for 1975-76 presented by Associated Pomona Teachers' Certificated Employe Council June 10. Moses reommended the board authorize him to negotiate the 8½ per cent pay increase "since that is built into the budget," but stipulate that that be the maximum amount of dollars employes are to receive, deleting any proposed increases in fringe benefits or anniversary raises. Moses also recommended that he be directed to exclude a reopener clause which CEC had requested. The board followed his recommendations.

School board votes Chino youth site aid

By BARBARA RAUCH
PB Correspondent

Chino School Board approved a $9,400 allocation Tuesday night, to help fund a youth recreation center for the barrio.

City councilmen had allocated the same amount from the city budget for the center earlier in the month while the school trustees had postponed action pending a report on the status of the community service account.

The board had previously been told that there was an estimated $6,000 surplus in the account so they expressed some dismay to discover that there was instead a deficit of $14,607.

The unanimous vote by the board was not only to approve the allocation, but to provide the necessary funds from the general fund to balance the community service account.

The youth center is to be located at the GI Cafe at Fifth and D streets. It is expected to help eliminate gang violence in the barrio by giving the youths a constructive program.

The center is expected to cost $26,800 for the first year with $8,000 coming from the Recreation Commission budget and the remainder in equal division of $9,400 each from the city council and school board.

The program at the center will be operated by the recreation department with the assistance of an area advisory board. A center director and two part time recreation leaders will comprise the paid staff with assistance from volunteers.

A form of year-round school with open access and attendance in modules of three weeks was approved for Buena Vista High School.

Trustee Lyle Briggs stated "I can see some benefits from this program, the only thing that bothers me is the educational program. How well can the teachers keep track of the educational advancement of students in this program?"

H. W. Holland, principal of Buena Vista replied that the program would be the same individualized program that the students were now getting. "We suggested this program in order to improve the education of the students," he added.

The three week module plan allows attendance flexibility to accommodate family vacation plans, unplanned job opportunities or job cessation for the students. The program will begin July 7.

S.B. County pledges to avoid tax increase

San Bernardino County supervisors have pledged to hold the line against property tax increases when they begin public hearings July 1 on the new fiscal budget.

Officials have proposed a budget of $204,710,952, which is $334,164 higher than the current fiscal year. The present tax rate is $3 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Based on the proposed spendings, the budget would require a 28 cent tax increase, said Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino. "Each supervisor, however, has indicated he would not support a tax hike. All agency administrators are on notice that if needed, he will go back and ask them to cut from their budgets.

"The time has come to take another notch in our belts."

Robert Covington, county administrative officer, said the county this year will suffer from a decrease in programs funded from outside sources and an increase of $8.5 million in operations to be funded by the local property tax.

He estimated the present property tax rate will produce $60.7 million in revenues, which is $6.5 million less than required.

Supervisors had trimmed $25 million from original requests during preliminary hearings.

County officials blamed the fiscal problems on inflation combined with mandated programs for which no reimbursement is provided by federal or state governments.

Special Pomona budget session

The Pomona City Council will hold a budget session Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Kellogg West on the Cal Poly campus.

Although the session is not closed to the public, no public hearing on the budget will be held at the meeting.

Public hearings have been scheduled as agenda items for the council meetings on Monday and July 7.

Pomona offers Disneyland trip

The Pomona Park and Recreation Departments will sponsor a youth trip to Disneyland on June 26 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The trip is for youngsters from 8 to 12. Cost is $6, which includes transportation, admission and ride tickets and supervision.

The bus will leave from Ganesha Park at 8 a.m.

Reservations for the trip must be made by 5 p.m. Friday at the Park and Recreation office at Pomona City Hall.

New bill would boost valley revenue sharing $272,618

The nine valley cities would receive an additional $272,618 in federal revenue sharing funds if a bill boosting fund ceilings by 30 per cent for local governments is approved.

"Enactment of the bill is essential to extend revenue sharing and avoid fiscal crisis for thousands of local governments," said Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., cosponsor of the measure.

The bill would extend revenue sharing, due to expire Dec. 31, 1976, through the 1982 fiscal year.

Under present law, no local government can receive a per capita amount greater than 145 per cent of the per capita funding for the state. The proposed bill would hike this to 175 per cent.

California's share by 1979 — the first year the 175 per cent ceiling would be in effect — would be $733 million, said Tunney. Nationwide, the sharing funds would be increased to $7.2 billion.

In addition, the bill would strengthen civil rights enforcement provisions and provide for public participation in local spending decisions, he added.

The senator stressed an urgency for Congress to extend the sharing program since many cities will be completing their budgeting process in the spring and early summer of 1976.

"If Congress delays reenactment until next year, it will work a severe hardship on local budget planners," he said.

Tunney gave these local figures showing the 1975 sharing appropriations and the proposed 1979 appropriations.

Claremont, $117,279, $128,888, for an $11,610 increase; La Verne, $101,800, $111,876, for a $10,076 increase; Pomona, $1,062,936, $1,168,167, for a $105,231 increase; Walnut, $26,607, $29,343, for a $2,736 increase; San Dimas, $82,214, $90,354, for an $8,140 increase; Chino, $227,491, $250,012, for a $22,521 increase; Ontario, $627,237, $689,328, for an $62,096 increase; Upland, $200,993, $220,891, for a $19,898 increase; and Montclair, $306,163, $336,473 for a $30,310 increase.

Valley Camera Club to meet

Pat Conney, past president of the San and Wind Council, will be the featured speaker at the Thursday night meeting of the Pomona Valley Camera Club.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the First Christian Church in Pomona.

Conney will speak on the topic "What Judges Look For." He will analyze and comment on the features of a good slide or print.

The club has an open enrollment for new members. Dues are $6 per year.

Driver ed passes test

The widespread acceptance of driver education courses in the nation's high schools was given a boost by the Highway Safety Act of 1966, which stipulated that every state should have a highway safety program, including driver education, designed to reduce accidents.

In a recent survey it was found that about 83 per cent of high schools has driver ed programs, with 98 per cent of them offering one that meets or exceeds their state's standards. Usually, this is the "30 and 6" course — at least 30 hours of classroom instruction, plus six hours of practice driving, either on regular streets and roads, on a special off-street driving range, with a driving simulator or combinations of all these.

Basically, the high school student learns how to handle a car mechanically and perceptually so that he or she may drive safely, observing the rules of the road. In the past, parents taught their children to drive and often passed on to them their poor driving habits and stereotypes. This doesn't happen as often today because of driver education.

Many insurance companies recognize the value of driver education by allowing premium reductions for drivers who have passed an approved course. Actuarial tables show that such drivers have fewer accidents.

But if eight out of 10 schools have approved driver education courses, this means that two out of 10 don't have a standard program, or possibly none at all.

Moreover, with taxpayers across the country voting down school levies, in some districts the driver education program is one of the areas being affected by budget-trimming measures. This is true even though, according to the Highway Users Federation, 95 per cent of some 40,000 cars used nationwide in the programs is dealer-loaned, and even though many states reimburse schools for each student taking driver ed

Whatever an individual school district might save, cutting down on driver education is false economy for the nation as a whole.

"Good driver training can achieve a 10 per cent fuel savings — an impressive conservation measure," according to Carl Wenzinger, president of Doron Precision Systems, Inc., a manufacturer of driving simulators.

Driver training not only cuts down on accidents, he says,but also on gas consumption because students learn to start properly, brake correctly and drive in a manner conducive to fuel conservation.

Far from being a frill, says an American Automobile Assn. spokesman, driver education is the single most important course a high school student can take, and the one most immediately useful.

Mental health care milestone

A long-sought goal of mental health professionals has been realized. For the first time in the history of the state and county mental hospital system there is now the equivalent of one full-time staff member for each inpatient.

According to Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, in 1948 there were 5.2 average resident patients for each full-time staff member "and the pipedream was to achieve one-to-one. It is a good feeling to be able to say 'now we are there.' "

The increase in staff-patient ratio was accomplished despite a decrease of nearly 10,000 full-time mental health staff members during fiscal year 1974. This 4.3 per cent decline in staff was offset by a 13 per cent decrease in patient population in state and county mental hospitals, the 19th consecutive year such a decrease has been recorded.

At the end of fiscal 1974, there were 215,573 patients housed in state and county mental hospitals. This represented a 61 per cent drop from 1965, the peak year of resident patient population.

A number of factors are credited for this downward trend, including increased availability and use of alternate, nonpsychiatric care facilities for the aged, improved access to outpatient care, the introduction of community mental health centers and the use of more effective screening procedures to prevent inappropriate admissions.

Finishing election reform

I was much interested in your editorial, "Young Turks drop the ball," printed June 13. It hits at the heart of the need for finishing the job of election reform not only in Washington, D.C. but here in California.

California has been a model for the nation on many kinds of good legislation. Proposition 9 got our foot in the door. AB 808, now being considered in the Assembly can tie up the loose ends of Proposition 9 dealing effectively with the primaries where the challenger would be given a reasonable chance against the incumbent.

AB 808 eliminates the element of special interest money, thus encouraging more statesmanlike candidates to enter the race. Furthermore it provides a careful plan of public financing and qualifying of serious candidates.

In the meantime, members of Congress should be bombarded with letters from voters to put the election reform limits on themselves that they put on presidential candidates.

Political reform needs to encompass the whole political system if citizens are again to feel confident about their government.

Thieu coming to America

WASHINGTON — Confidential cables from the U.S. embassy in Taiwan report that South Vietnam's deposed President Nguyen Van Thieu wants to settle permanently in the United States.

American diplomats have done their best, however, to discourage the idea. They fear that the Vietnam issue is still too hot and that Thieu's arrival might touch off demonstrations.

But they fully expect Thieu will eventually move to the United States. As one source put it: "It's not a question of if; it is a question of when."

Thieu left office on April 21 with a withering blast at the U.S. He charged that U.S. failure to support his regime was the major cause of its disintegration.

He fled Saigon shortly before the victorious Communists moved in and he secured refuge in Taiwan. He is now ensconced in a five-bedroom house in a residential compound outside Taipei.

Behind the high walls are a swimming pool and a garden, where Thieu lolls in seeming tranquility. But the embassy cables indicate that Thieu is unhappy in Taipei and would like to join the South Vietnamese community in America.

Footnote: The Chinese Nationalists, who respect Thieu as an "anti-Communist leader," provide him with police protection. Their main function, apparently, is to keep the press at bay. Thieu has refused to give out interviews.

TELEPHONE MONITORING: The Central Intelligence Agency monitored all telephone calls between the United States and Latin America for three months, apparently without the knowledge of the telephone company.

We checked into this illegal telephone monitoring several months ago. Both the CIA and the Bell System flatly denied the story. Now the Rockefller Commission has confirmed that the calls were monitored in late 1973 until the CIA's general counsel put a stop to it.

A spokesman for the Bell System still assures us the company "had no knowledge of any wiretapping by the CIA and did not at any time provide any assistance to the agency in connection with wiretapping, eavesdropping or otherwise monitoring of any telephone calls between the United States and any foreign countries, including those in Latin America."

We have learned, however, that the Bell System provided the CIA with traffic information on calls between the U.S. and both Russia and China.

This information, a spokesman explained, "was not furnished with respect to any particular callers but rather on all calls. It included only the names, telephone numbers and locations of the parties involved and the date, time and duration of any completed calls. The information provided did not disclose the content of any conversation."

WORLD TRAVELER: The delightful if irascible Helen Delich Bentley, who is awaiting reappointment as chairwoman of the Federal Maritime Commission, hasn't spent much time on the job.

She has been too busy seeing the world. In 1974, for example, she took 36 trips to such pleasure spots as Geneva, London, Paris, San Francisco and her hometown of Reno. Her airline bills cost the taxpayers more than $15,000.

Partly as a result of her constant junketing, the cases before the Federal Maritime Commission are backlogged four years. Her fellow commissioners have pleaded with her to attend to her duties, but she has merely given them the brush-off.

Two commissioners, Clarence Morse and Ashton Barrett, were willing to go on the record. They called Ms. Bentley a poor administrator. "She's a square peg in a round hole," said Morse.

They complained that she treated the commission as her personal domain. For instance, they said she usually ties up both of the commission's available limousines on personal errands. Her chauffeur has his own office near here, they said.

Besides flying all over the world at government expense, Ms. Bentley also loves ship christenings. At one christening, she received a valuable pin, studded with diamonds and rubies from Avondale shipyards.

She accepted the gift, she told us, "as a patriotic gesture because it is in the shape of an American flag." She promised us that she would return it after she leaves office.

She has also accepted other gifts at ship christenings, including a bracelet which she gave to a niece and a large wooden frame which hangs in her office.

In the past, we have also exposed Ms. Bentley's habit of twisting the arms of shipping tycoons for political contributions. Here is a rundown:

—In 1972, she collected at least $20,000 in donations for the Nixon campaign from the shipping industry she is supposed to regulate.

—In 1974, she toyed with the idea of running against Sen. Charles Mathias, R.-Md. It was reported that her backers, under the name "Friends of Helen Bentley," solicited political contributions from the practicioners whose appearances before the commission had been listed. She denied any knowledge of the misuse of the lists.

As for her world wanderings, she said the trips were official business as she defines the guidelines. She also insisted that, so far as she knew, the commission has only two cases pending.

A White House spokesman told us, meanwhile, that she is the only person now under consideration for the Maritime Commission chairmanship.

What kind of pool am I?

"Splish-splash, I was takin' a bath, long about a Saturday night . . ."

"Uh, excuse me, Mr. President, I hate to disturb you in your office like this when I know you're probably working on some plan to save the world from starvation or depression or perhaps even nuclear war but . . ."

"No, no, Ron; that's all right. Actually, I was just going over the plans for my new swimming pool. It's going to be a real beaut."

"Well, I'm sure it is, Mr. President. But as a matter of fact, that's why I wanted to talk to you. I just wanted to make sure you really wanted to go through with it, what with all the criticism and all."

"What criticism? Don't people like the shape? Do you think maybe I should have a kidney-shaped pool, or a heart-shaped one or maybe even a football-shaped one?"

"No, that's not it. People are saying that with all the inflation in the country and everyone having economic problems so that some people are even having trouble filling a bathtub with hot water, it looks a little extravagant for you to be building a swimming pool here."

"Look, Ron, you know that I decided to order some of my friends to volunteer to pay for the pool with their own money so that I wouldn't have to wait for that do-nothing Congress to authorize me to build it—or, I mean, so that there would be no hint of impropriety."

"But won't your friends want something in return for the favor?"

"Why, of course not. Maybe they'll want to use the pool once in a while on a weekend but I certainly wouldn't consider giving them a cabinet post for something like that now, would I? Now, somebody built me my own private ski resort, well, that would be a different story and . . ."

"Let's drop that angle, Mr. President. What about the implications that you are playing around too much? If a big national crisis arises and you're out there in the pool swimming around, people will ask me where you are. What will I tell them you're doing?"

"The breast stroke, probably. Or maybe the crawl. I rarely do the backstroke."

"Oh, I give up. But at least let me persuade you to not play with your toy boats in the pool."

"Not on your life! Anybody touches one of my boats in that pool, I get right on the old red phone and call in the Marines Naval bombardment, helicopter landing, air cover — a few minutes I've got my boats back."

"All right, all right. I just wanted to make sure you weren't getting in over your head on this, Mr. President.

"I have it all figured out. First we use the pool for cultural events. You know, invite Brezhnev or Mao over to see a swimming exhibition by Esther Williams or Buster Crabbe. Then when next year's campaign starts, we use the pool as the center of our image. We talk about how there are all kinds of problems around in the country and how important continuity of leadership is, then we hit them with our slogan. Ask me what it will be."

"What will it be, Mr. President?"

"It's obvious! 'Don't change horses in mid pool.'"

Just in jest

For $8.95 you can get the silvertone beauty — for only a buck more the $9.95 goldtone model. They are bracelets which, according to the full page magazine advertisement, will give their wearers "great wisdom and strength, outstanding beauty, excellent health and riches beyond thought." And somewhere in that ad I think it was also intimated those bracelets might even cure arthritis. — Now couple all that with a simulated diamond ring, as advertised a few pages farther on for only $5.99, and what more would anyone need to make his or her life a smashing success? —Well, maybe just to be on the safe side, one should also send for that book which tells "How To Rob a Bank Legally."

There's no doubt about it. When it comes to enjoying the good life, we Americans certainly have a flair for doing it the easy way. —No sweat, no blood, no tears, no endless drudgery. —And how much better off we are than folks in foreign countries who have to improve each shining minute to get anywhere. In Japan, for instance, students often purchase special rolls of toilet paper imprinted with 800 basic bits of wisdom which when committed to memory will help them prepare for tough college entrance examinations.

CIA's watchdogs as much at fault

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The shocker in the Rockefeller Commission report to the President on the Central Intelligence Agency was its documentation of the callous abdication of responsibility — by Congress, the Treasury, the General Accounting Office, National Security Council, State Department, White House Office of Management and the Budget, the Pentagon and the intelligence community itself.

But we are talking of men, not institutions. The men who failed in their duty were prominent senators and representatives, secretaries of State, Defense and Treasury, foreign affairs advisers to the President, directors of CIA and a host of others over more than two decades and five administrations.

It is not only that these men failed to monitor errors and excesses in the CIA. It is clear they also failed to make certain that this vast and costly, yet essential, agency was making the most effective use of the great resources assigned to it. The faulty intelligence in the Bay of Pigs invasion, in Vietnam and Korea, the continual surprises we meet with in Russian missile development — all point to failures of commission by the CIA so great as to endanger our national security.

The National Security Council and two subordinate committees, the NSC Intelligence Committee and the 40 Committee, have primary executive control over the CIA. The evidence from the Rockefeller report is that these committees limited themselves to high-level directives and general approvals and disapprovals and made little or no effort to monitor or even to spot check detailed CIA activities or illegalities, or for the misuse of men and funds, except when asked by CIA.

Says the report: "The investigation disclosed no cases in which domestic activities — even those recognized by the Agency as highly sensitive — were submitted to the 40 Committee for approval."

The Army, Navy, Air Force, State Department, Treasury, Justice and a fist full of other government agencies have intelligence functions. All at one time or another come in close touch with CIA activities. None felt it necessary to report any CIA activity out of bounds. In addition, it should be noted that the secretaries of State and Defense are members of the National Security Council, and therefore duty bound to note and report missteps.

The report is harsh in its remarks on the role of the Justice Department and successive attorneys general:

"The Department of Justice abdicated its statutory duties and placed on the Director of Central Intelligence the responsibility for investigating criminal conduct and making the prosecutorial decision — clearly law enforcement powers."

The report makes clear the congressional committees responsible for appropriating CIA's enormous budgets did little or no detailed checking on the sums they were asked to vote.

The committees assigned to watchdog the CIA, in the main sat placidly and listened to the "top secret" but laundered accounts and explanations given to them by the men from the Agency. They were so titillated at being let in on secrets they hardly opened their mouths to cross examine these intelligence men on essential details of their operations.

There were sporadic attempts to remedy the situation. In 1955 a resolution to establish a Joint Committee on Central Intelligence was introduced and defeated 50 to 27. In 1966, a proposal to establish a Senate Committee on Intelligence Operations went down under a 61 to 28 vote.

In addition to this failure to oversee from the outside was finally an abdication of responsibility by several successive directors of the CIA itself. The agency was too large, too compartmented and its echelons of officials too entrenched to be easily controlled.

I am writing about a court action I sat in on.

I thought the judge was supposed to tell a person how long he has to serve at a California Youth Authority institution.

The judge told the young man I was concerned about, found guilty of burglary, that the time he would have to serve would depend on the jailer.

That doesn't seem right. — M. R., Pomona.

In a telephone conversation you said that another young man sentenced the same day was told when he would be released.

You named the judge, Charles S. Vogel of Pomona Superior Court. We asked him to clarify the sentencing procedures for our readers. He obliged, in considerable detail.

He said the only possible explanation for your confusion regarding the two young men who were sentenced was that you heard him pronounce a jail sentence in the second case.

Even though Superior Court is primarily concerned with sentencing to state prison, there are offenses and dispositions under probation that involve confinement in the county jail. In such a case, it is usually possible to calculate his probable date of release if he earns ordinary "good time" and "work time."

In reference to the first young man, the person you are concerned about, he explained that anyone referred to CYA is committed for an indefinite period.

To be eligible for a referral to CYA, an individual must be less than 21 at the time he was apprehended, must not have been sentenced to death, imprisonment for life, imprisonment for 90 days or less or for the payment of a fine, not have been granted adult probation and not be on a current grant of probation.

Many are referred to CYA through the Juvenile Court. Referrals from other courts pertain to individuals between the ages of 18 and 21.

Typically these individuals are persons who are being committed to a state institution for the first time.

"I generally consider CYA commitments for defendants who do not appear to be firmly committed to criminal values and patterns but who are in need of a 24-hour custodial program for rehabilitation," Judge Vogel stated.

Such programs offered by CYA include psychological counseling and educational and vocational opportunities.

Judge Vogel emphasized the term "referral." The Youth Authority may reject a court referral. It is not possible, under the law, for a court to sentence any defendant to CYA for any specific period of time. If the CYA accepts the referral, the court loses jurisdiction over the individual.

Maximum terms of commitment when an individual is convicted of a misdemeanor in a non-juvenile court and goes to the CYA are two years or his 23rd birthday, whichever occurs later.

If an individual has been convicted of a felony and committed to the CYA, he must be discharged when he reaches his 25th birthday.

There are certain exceptional circumstances which allow for a further detention upon the petition of the CYA if the individual appears to be particularly dangerous to the safety of others.

The reason the CYA determines the term of commitment is because it is in the best position to make assessment as to the progress of the particular individual committed to its program. That is a conclusion made by the state legislature when it adopted provisions of law establishing the Youth Authority.

Judge Vogel outlined other aspects of sentencing for Action Line readers. These will be published in a future column.

Ann Landers

Onion advice — real tearjerker

Dear Ann Landers: Your sudden departure into "household hints" seemed somewhat inappropriate. Maybe you did it because you saw an opportunity to toss in a little behavioral science.

A reader asked how to slice onions without crying. You told her to keep her mouth shut. Then you added, "That's good advice, even if you aren't slicing onions."

Well, I took your advice and cried anyway. I then called my mother-in-law and told her that Ann Landers's household hint on onion-slicing didn't work. She suggested a real fail-safe trick she learned from her grandmother. Please pass it on, Ann.

To keep dry-eyed while slicing onions, always cut the root end off first and continue from that end. — Smiley Smith.

Dear Smiley: Ordinarily I am not in the kitchen slicing onions, but after that lousy advice I gave about ironing bedsheets and towels, I decided to do some personal research.

I just followed your mother-in-law's advice and cut a large Bermuda onion per her instructions. My eyes are now so red and swollen I can barely see to type this answer. Also my nose is running. Give my regards to your mother-in-law.

Dear Ann: I'm a 13-year-old girl who has lived through a lot. Ever since my parents were divorced (six months ago) I can't get over it.

My father loves me and I love him, but my mother won't let me see him. I beg, cry and throw things but it doesn't do any good. Once I asked her, "Why can't I see Dad?" and she screamed, "You just can't let a single day go by without mentioning that skunk can you? Get it through your head that you can't see him because of the rotten way he treated me."

Can you help, Ann? — Miss Him Like Crazy

Dear Miss: I wish I could — but unfortunately there are some unanswered questions that need to be answered.

Did the court give your dad visiting privileges? If not, why? Has your dad made an effort to see you?

You probably know the name of the attorney who handled your mother's divorce. I suggest that you contact him and tell him how you feel. He might be able to solve your problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that when a man marries for the second time — or the third or fourth — he can wear anything he wants, but when a woman has had even one previous marriage she is told that a white gown and veil is in "poor taste"? How come? Who made up those cockeyed rules? Other women, no doubt. Men couldn't care less.

Does the pastel dress (you recommend) serve as a symbol that the bride is tainted? Why can't she look like a brand new bride on her wedding day even though she has been married before?

This is just one of the cruel, barbaric customs that has kept women subservient. Moreover, it's the brand of narrow thinking that will keep women down forever. You, Ann Landers, with your archaic advice don't help much. — Irate In Illinois

Dear Ill.: Sorry, dear, but one just doesn't kick centuries of tradition in the teeth. The bridal veil and white gown are for the first time around.

If a divorcee (or widow) wants to wear the ceremonial garb, no one will arrest her. But it IS in poor taste and unless a woman has a pretty tough hide, I don't recommend it.

Erma Bombeck

Paranoid about dialing

It has taken Americans nearly 100 years to figure out the urgency of Alexander Graham Bell's first phone message, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you!"

Historians would have us believe the inventor had spilled the acid of a battery on his clothes and was summoning help.

I don't think that was the case at all. I prefer to believe the poor devil was trying to figure out if it was cheaper to dial before 8 a.m. (except Alaska or Hawaii) or after 11 p.m. (except Sundays) on an interstate call (if he dialed without directory assistance) at a savings of 15 cents (unless he was using his credit card).

Since Ma Bell began her campaign to save me money, I have become paranoid about dialing a phone number. I keep seeing the face of the operator on television with half a phone growing out of her ear, admonishing, "Dial direct! Save 60 per cent on nights and weekends! Lower rates on shorter distances! Talk one minute to Nashville for 22 cents!"

The other Sunday I found myself setting my alarm for 3 a.m. and direct-dialing a person in Nashville I never liked much and talking for four minutes because I saved $1.25. In these times, it was a bargain I couldn't afford to pass up.

In fact, I'm going to call him every Sunday until I save enough to call my sister at a civilized hour during the week with an operator to announce me.

I have been so impressed by the phone company's dedication to save me a few bucks during these grim times that the other day I got a chance to reciprocate.

An operator from the phone company called me and asked if I had made a long-distance call from North Carolina and if I could supply her with the number I had called as it had not been recorded.

"How did you get my number?" I asked. "It's unlisted."

"From directory assistance," she said.

"Shame on you!" I said. "That's an extra. Do you know if you had dialed me on a weekend instead of prime time during the week you could have saved 32 cents on the first minute?"

"But I . . ."

"Besides, if you call me for assistance three more times this month, you will be charged 20 cents a call. That all adds up. I assume you are calling from a business phone which is charged full rates, which means each additional minute we talk is costing you 40 cents. Frankly, dear, I'm going to do you a big favor and hang up. I don't think you can afford me."

Dr. Lamb

Protein needs of a family

DEAR DR. LAMB — We are on a low income food budget, but do not want to resort to food stamps. However, I am concerned about my children, ages 10 through 14, and want to be sure they get enough protein. We have a small amount of meat every other day in stews, casseroles and an egg or cheese dish or corn chowder on the off day. We have hot cereal with milk for breakfast and a peanut butter or tuna sandwich and milk for lunch.

How many grams of protein a day do the children need? How much would my husband need? He was moderately active until unemployment hit.

DEAR READER — Since your children are entering the rapid growth age of 14 and over you should give them and your husband about the same amount, a minimum of 56 grams of good, complete protein a day. You can estimate 10 grams of protein for each cup of milk (8 ounces). A good, cheap source of protein is non-fat dry milk powder which you can use for cooking and drinking. You can improve its flavor by allowing it to stand a day in the refrigerator before using for a beverage.

A pound of separable lean, raw meat, fish, or poultry, not counting bones, fat or skin (the edible portion) will contain about 100 grams of protein. Mature bean seeds are a good source of protein and with milk and meat part time will be adequate. One cup of drained, cooked Navy beans contain about 15 grams of protein.

For more information on proteins write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019, and ask for The Health Letter number 3-6 on Proteins. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read several articles recently that said some of the medicines used to treat high blood pressure cause women to be more prone to breast cancer. Would you please tell me if either Esidrex or Valium are in this group?

DEAR READER — Neither are. The medicines containing reserpine or rawfolia serpentina are the only ones in question on this score. Esidrex is primarily a diuretic and helps to eliminate excess salt and lowers blood pressure some. Valium is a tranquilizer and helps lower blood pressure in some people by helping them avoid excess emotional tension.

Your question prompts me to make two observations. No one should stop taking medicine for high blood pressure on his own initiative, regardless of news stories. It is better to go to the doctor and let him change your medicine if he finds you are taking a large enough amount to require a change. There are a variety of medicines that can be used now, and it is possible to switch, if that is indicated.

And, anyone taking a tranquilizer for any reason, including treatment of high blood pressure, should eliminate all caffeine-containing beverages, specifically including coffee, tea and colas. You can use one of the decaffeinated brands of coffee. The caffeine in coffee has essentially the opposite effect of tranquilizers. It doesn't make good sense to buy tranquilizers and go home and wash them down with "liquid go pills" in the form of coffee or tea.

Jacoby's bridge

South trapped in 5-spade bid

By Oswald & James Jacoby

A trapper cuts a fine figure in the North woods. He is a miserable object at the bridge table.

North's opening bid was quite sound although in the minimum range and the spade response certainly didn't hurt it any. North might well have made the slightly optimistic jump to three spades, but he decided to make the conservative bid of just two.

This bid should have conveyed the message, "Place the contract if you can do so. If you want any further bid or bids from me you can invite game or slam and I will take action."

In response to that message, South jumped to four spades. As far as South knew he had placed the contract at game. However, North revalued his hand and decided to make one more bid. He cue bid hearts!

South had been trapped. He wanted no part of a slam and merely returned to five spades. North passed this and it was up to South to try to make 11 tricks instead of just 10.

Actually, six might make. Just place king and one spade in the East hand. Furthermore, five was a pretty good contract. It only went down because West was sitting in back of South with the king-jack and another trump.

This was unfortunate indeed, but it didn't make either North or South any happier.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Thursday, June 19, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be too possessive and demanding of a loved one today. It could cause a rift difficult to heal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Tie a string around your finger to remember to do something today that you've promised your mate. She's counting on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're still not in full gear with your productivity. Stop looking for excuses. Get down to work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This evening you'll let your guard down a bit where social disciplines are concerned. You could overindulge in some manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you want to keep peace at home today, set your crown aside. Pitch in like all the rest. Being a straw boss won't win points.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be complimentary today to one who really deserves it, though you feel she never pats you on the back when you've done something noteworthy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A friend who always borrows things but is slow returning them will have her hand out again today. Try to say "no" diplomatically.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A friend who promised you a favor will have to back off. Don't be angry. She'll be as disappointed as you are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep all your dealings out in the open today. If you try to do something coy, no matter how harmless, you'll get caught.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Watch out for a friend today who tells tales behind peoples backs. She could involve you in an intrigue you're better off without.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't take sole credit today for something another had a hand in bringing about. There's room in the spotlight for both parties.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It would be unwise to look to a person who has proved to be unreliable to bail you out of a problem. Find a new source.

Your Birthday June 19, 1975

You will make some changes for the better this year. They'll have a direct effect upon your work or career. Slow in coming about, they'll be worth the wait.

Soviets devise electro-sleep

Was 27 years ago that doctors in the Soviet Union came up with something called electro-sleep. They taped electrodes to the eyelids and mastoids of volunteers to send mild currents into their heads. Both tensions and anxieties promptly went away, those experimenters reported, and said volunteers dozed right off. American researchers now are thinking about trying to put anti-insomnia machines on the market.

WILLARD HUNTINGDON WRIGHT was bright. Too bright, his doctor thought. So in 1922, said doctor confined Willard in a lonely room inside a Paris clinic. Notion was to cure that patient of his melancholy, his addiction to sedatives, his extreme physical weakness. The doctor opined that Willard intellectualized himself through a hypochondria into a real illness. So he refused to let Willard do anything there in solitary except read detective stories. Shucks, said Willard, or words to that effect, I can write better stuff than this. He dreamed up a fellow named Philo Vance, one of the great storybook sleuths, and wrote his way back to good health under the pseudonym of S.S. Van Dine. Remember him?

It'll be tough

Ford vows crime bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford told Republican congressional leaders Tuesday he will submit soon a "very tough" crime control bill making mandatory prison terms more commonplace for federal offenses.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said the mandatory sentences would apply principally to perpetrators of violent crimes and repeat offenders. He said skyjacking and drug dealing would be placed in the mandatory sentencing category.

White House officials said they expected Ford to unveil his crime recommendations later this week.

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona said Ford also indicated he will veto a housing bill now on his desk that the administration estimates would cost $2 billion.

One section of the measure would provide interest subsidies for about 400,000 mortgages.

Reagan considers challenging Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan left open Tuesday the possibility he may challenge President Ford for the 1976 Republican nomination and said he hopes "every day of my life" Ford doesn't ask him to be his running mate.

At a press conference before he spoke to the National Federation of Independent Businessmen, Reagan repeated his earlier call for an open GOP convention next year, saying "it would be good for the party to have that happen."

Asked if he felt that Ford was the only Republican who could be elected president in 1976," he replied, "I still think we should have an open convention."

The former California governor was also asked how he would respond if Ford asked him to be his running mate in the 1976 election.

"Let me just say that every day of my life I hope that doesn't happen," Reagan replied.

He repeated his earlier statements that he would decide by the end of the year whether to challenge Ford and said "it's a very fluid situation" in the Republican party.

Reagan, who was a member of the Rockefeller Commission investigating the Central Intelligence Agency, discussed the alleged CIA effort to assassinate Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

But he said he has "no way of knowing" how high in the Kennedy administration knowledge and approval of it went.

He said there had been witnesses who said that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy tried to head off such an effort but added "we have no way of corroborating that."

Reagan said he opposes such assassination efforts as "immoral" and said he doesn't think the United States should be involved in them.

Supervisors bar limit on desert use

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors has decided not to limit off-road vehicles to certain areas of the desert.

In a 4-0 vote Tuesday the board turned down pleas by environmentalists that the U.S. Bureau of Land Management has been too easy on motorcyclists and dune buggies.

The board decided that federal regulations were tough enough to protect the desert areas in the county.

Scout moves up to Eagle

Jack P. Sowin, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sowin, 715 Wellesley Drive, Claremont, has been honored as an Eagle Scout at a court of honor at the Old Baldy Council Scout House at Claremont.

Sowin, a sophomore at Claremont High, as his Eagle service project conducted a fire safety survey involving 129 homes in Claremont and reported his finding to the Claremont Fire Department.

The project also involved offering a first aid course to residents.

Sowin has been an honor student since he was in junior high school, is a member of the California Scholarship Federation, has received the "A" student award at the high school, and is a member of the Wolfpack soccer and water polo teams.

A member of Troop 405, Sowin has served a senior patrol leader, assistant senior patrol leader, quartermaster, patrol leader, and assistant patrol leader in his 4½ years of scouting.

He earned the Buckskin Award in the junior leadership training program, is a member of the Order of the Arrow, has served on the staff at the camporee at Firestone Park, and will serve this summer at Holcomb Valley Scout Camp.

Belly dancing classes

The Montclair Recreation Department will again offer belly dancing classes as part of its summer program, beginning Thursday at Montclair High School.

Classes will be held each Thursday night in room 81 of the high school. Beginners should register at 7 p.m. this week and intermediates at 8:30 p.m. The first lesson will be given for beginners from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and from 8:30 to 10 p.m. for intermediates.

Turkish and classical Egyptian styles of belly dancing will be taught. The classes will also include instruction in Middle Eastern music and rhythms, pre-dancing exercises and costume and jewelry designing.

Miss Mary Fransen of Upland will be the instructor. She has danced professionally at the Olive Tree in Whittier and the Sultan in Anaheim.

Crippled visiting Catalina

Ninety young men and women from the Crippled Children's Society in Claremont are now in Catalina on a two-day vacation tour.

Accompanied by Steve Noceti, recreation director at the Claremont center, the group of young adults boarded the Big White Steamship at San Pedro Tuesday for the trip.

There will be a boat tour of the harbors and Cherry Cove Isthmus and an island tour plus opportunities for swimming, sunning and shopping.

The group will return on Thursday.

A busy summer schedule of activities at the rehabilitation center has been arranged for handicapped persons of all ages. Dances, beach outings, parties, swimming and day camp are among the programs scheduled.

All services are free to the physically disabled and inquiries regarding registration may be made to the Crippled Children's Society at 621-4727.

The administration of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt created the Tennessee Valley Authority, an emergency land development to deal with the Depression of the 1930s.

Contract for Citrus Park delayed

Upland awards street, irrigation line work

Contracts were awarded for three projects in Upland by the City Council at its meeting this week. But a contract for improvements at Citrus Park was postponed for further study.

The contract was awarded for the grading and paving of Seventh, Eighth and Ninth streets between Sinclair Avenue and Mountain Avenue to Asphalt Sealcoating and Paving Co. of Montclair for $13,055, the lowest of three bids submitted.

A contract was awarded to C. P. Construction Co. of Ontario, whose bid of $7,451.80 was the least of the two bids submitted, for the installation of an irrigation line on Mountain Avenue between 13th and 16th Streets.

The contract to resurface and install gutters on Redding Way north of 11th Street was awarded to E. C. Construction Co. of El Monte whose bid of $10,333.30 was the lowest of four submitted to the city.

The council postponed the awarding of a contrac for the improvements at Citrus Park to allow for further study of the eight bids submitted.

The work at Citrus Park includes improving the tiny tot play area, landscaping, lighting and additional parking.

Because some housing tracts being developed in northern Upland are designed with back yards and easements facing major streets, the city is faced with problems of open space maintenance.

Therefore, the city is attempting to establish open space maintenance districts which would require that the tracts involved pay an annual fee for the maintenance of these easements which are to the rear of certain homes in the tracts but adjacent to the street.

Travers estimated that the first tract to be affected by such an ordinance, the Victoria Park Estates which backs onto Mountain Avenue, would be charged about $21 per household annually.

This figure seemed agreeable to representatives of the developer present at the council meeting.

Wife of '20 grad gets B.A.

Chase Harper, 72, was graduated from La Verne College 50 years ago this month.

His wife, Lydia, received her bachelor of arts degree in business administration from the same college last week.

Mrs. Harper was enrolled in the college's CAPA program, an accelerated curriculum for mature students.

A cave consultant and developer of commercial caves in northern New York for 30 years, Mrs. Harper met her husband three years ago when she first came to California.

While a student at La Verne, Mrs. Harper developed "New Horizons" — a program which recruits retirees as volunteer tutors for young students. She was also instrumental in getting area senior citizens interested in going back to college.

Her husband is an architect specializing in retirement communities. He designed Hillcrest Homes and a 22-acre section of Leisure World, Laguna.

A TIME FOR BUSSING — Chase Harper, a member of the Class of 1925, kisses his wife, Lydia, upon her graduation from La Verne College with the Class of 1975. She was enrolled in the college's CAPA accelerated program.

JOHNSON BROS. FURRIERS EXPAND INTO LEATHERCRAFT

Five years experience in the same location, exploring the needs and desires of their customers and expanding to meet the growing interest in leathercraft has caused Johnson Bros. Furriers, 342 N. Towne Ave. to be ever enlarging and increasing inventories for their customers. Owner Marvin Johnson, feels the reasons for success are friendly, helpful service, quality products and reasonable prices. Leather and supplies are available for making virtually any project from a belt or purse to a beautiful suede coat. Leather has been popular for years as it is a rich-looking, durable material to work with.

Quality finished leather products are also available and so are a variety of fur items.

Rabbit furs are sold in all quantities for making purses, pillows, hats, coats or whatever you desire. Rabbit fur jackets and bedspreads are also available at reasonable prices. You can come in and have a coat made personally for you in the color and style you wish.

If you need a new coat, purse, belt or maybe a pair of sandals with summer coming, if you want a unique gift for a friend, or perhaps you want to start a hobby for gifts or money-making projects, come to Johnson Bros. and look around.

TANDY ANNOUNCES PLANS TO SEPARATE CORPORATION INTO THREE DISTINCT PUBLICLY HELD COMPANIES

Fort Worth, Tx — Speaking before members of the financial community in Los Angeles recently, Charles D. Tandy, chairman and chief executive officer of Tandy Corp. (NYSE), parent company of the nationwide Radio Shack store chain, announced Board approval of a plan which would separate the businesses of the corporation into three distinct publicly held companies. Shares of the newly-created companies would be distributed directly to shareholders of Tandy Corp. in the form of a tax-free dividend. The distribution is scheduled for late Sept., 1975.

Under the plan, Tandy Corp. would carry on the consumer electronics operations, represented by Radio Shack, Tandy International Electronics, Tandy Electronics manufacturing and Allied Electronics, as its sole business.

The two new companies are tentatively named Tandycrafts, Inc. and Tex Tan - Hickok, Inc. Tandycraft's primary operations will consist of the Tandy Leather Company, Color Tile, American Handicrafts and Stafford-Lowden divisions. Tex Tan - Hickok's primary operations will consist of the Tex Tan and Hickok divisions.

Regarding Radio Shack, which will become the sole business of Tandy Corp. under the new plan, Tandy stated: "For the nine months ended March 31, our Radio Shack sales were up 33%, and earnings were up 50% over 1974. For the March quarter, sales were up 42% and earnings were up 63%."

"We have been told that our Radio Shack sales record this past year has been remarkable," Tandy continued. "We have been told that our results have been impossible in view of what has been happening to the grand old names in retailing."

"Radio Shack did $12,000,000 in sales in 1964 and $361,000,000 ten years later. We feel that most of the hard, pioneering work is behind us. Our task is now to continue developing market penetration by doing what we are doing. Our rough guess of the size of the U.S. market for the products we sell, and let me repeat . . . for the products we sell . . . is about $6 billion this year."

Radio Shack presently operates more than 3,000 stores and authorized sales centers in all 50 states and Canada. Their overseas division, Tandy International Electronics has grown to over 300 stores in Australia, Belgium, Great Britain, Holland, and Germany.

"AUTUMN IN THE EAST" INCLUDES BICENTENNIAL EMPHASIS

A new fly/motor coach tour has been announced by Mrs. Jane Hillsen, owner of Hillsen's Holiday Tours. Autumn in the East will start from Pomona/Claremont and fly from Ontario to Chicago.

Henry Ford's Greenfield Village will be enjoyed by tour participants, where they will see early American homes, factories, and the old river boat, The Swanee. Next, the awesome spectacle of Niagara Falls is a never to be forgotten thrill. Fall color unfolds as the group travels through the Adirondacks and the resort towns of Saranac and Lake Placid. The Green Mountains and White Mountains are painted red, orange and gold in early October. A cable car ride to the top of Cannon Mountain provides an unexcelled view of the Presidential Range, valleys and lakes.

New England seaports and lighthouses provide striking scenes for camera buffs on the tour. The three night visit in Boston includes luncheon at the Wayside Inn, city touring, plus a fall day down the South Shore to the Adams House, home of two presidents, and a visit to Plymouth Plantation.

The Cornelius Vanderbilt mansion, "The Breakers", in Newport, R.I., is the finest of the multi-millionaires' fabulous homes, and it will be included before the trip southward to New York City. A two night stay in Philadelphia will include touring with emphasis on the Bicentennial celebration already underway on the East Coast. Ample time is also included in Washington, D.C. for a most comprehensive visit plus luncheon at famous Holgate's Restaurant. Pennsylvania Dutch Country, with a visit to an Amish home and Penn. Dutch dinner make this tour a comple delight.

The tour departs September 29 and will return on October 18. For our complete colorful brochure call or write Hillsen's Holiday Tours, P.O. Box 3, or 102 Orange St., Redlands, Calif. 92373. Phone 793-2411.

Carousel: . . .

. more than .

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — I turned a bend in Central Park and suddenly came upon 58 horses (I counted them later) galloping in controlled fury, up and down and around, to the tune of "When the Angels Sing," played on an organ somewhere.

I moved beside the railing and observed the sturdy and brightly saddled steeds in dumb pursuit of each other, until they finally ran out of steam and song. After a catch of breath, they began again.

"East Side, West Side" was now their impetus. It is the same song so touchingly melodramatic when the horses lope onto the track for the running of the Belmont Stakes, several miles and perhaps not so many realities removed from this Central Park scene.

But the song I now thought of watching this wooden show was "The Jockey on the Carousel." Only a few of the strikingly colorful horses had riders this delicious spring morning; a handful of boys and girls, with a mother sitting demurely but vigilantly side-saddly, and two young women in blue jeans who had chained their bicycles to a nearby fence and mounted, for 15 cents, upon a sentimental lark.

. . just a . .

"The Jockey on the Carousel" was written by Jerome Kern and Dorothy Field for a 1930's movie called, "I Dreamed Too Much." Now, the image here of a begoggled and booted jockey, up hard on the thickly painted mane and lashing the wooden flank, was disarming.

"Now what about the Jockey on the Carousel?
He was so unhappy!
Near to him tied to a prancer
There was a dancer
Beautiful and ver-y, ver-y proud,
She was as dainty as
A fluffy little cloud
Her toe, just so, was pointed to the crowd,
Of course!
Though the jockey beat on his horse and rode a-pace,
He could not reach his love! He never saw her face."

Each stiffened horse looked forever furious. Teeth bared to the gums, tongues whipped rigidly to the side, legs in long, eternal lunges.

. . . ride

I decided to enter the race at the first halt. I came from out of the sun into the cool tomb of a new world, so frozen still now in its surrealistic gaiety.

I mounted a yellow-oaken-haired stallion. I fingered the reins. They were leather. They were, yes, real. The stirrups were embarrassingly short.

The music began. The race was on: My hard steed and I began the chase to "Beer Barrel Polka." I wanted to ride past the wave of galloping horses ahead of me. It was surprisingly frustrating for some ludricrous reason not to be able to.

I glanced back and saw another herd advancing upon me. It was odd. Was I leading in the race? Or was I trailing? Or was I somewhere in the middle of the pack? Then I thought, But why should I care at all?

The ticket-take walked surely through the rotating bob of the race. He stopped me as the park swirled green, brown and blue behind him. He looked up quizzically, I thought.

I felt I had to say something.
"I," I began, "I had always wanted to be a jockey."
"You're too big," he replied, taking my ticket and moving on.

"He was sad, the poor little lad,
His pony was exhausted from a chase
That never got them anyplace!"

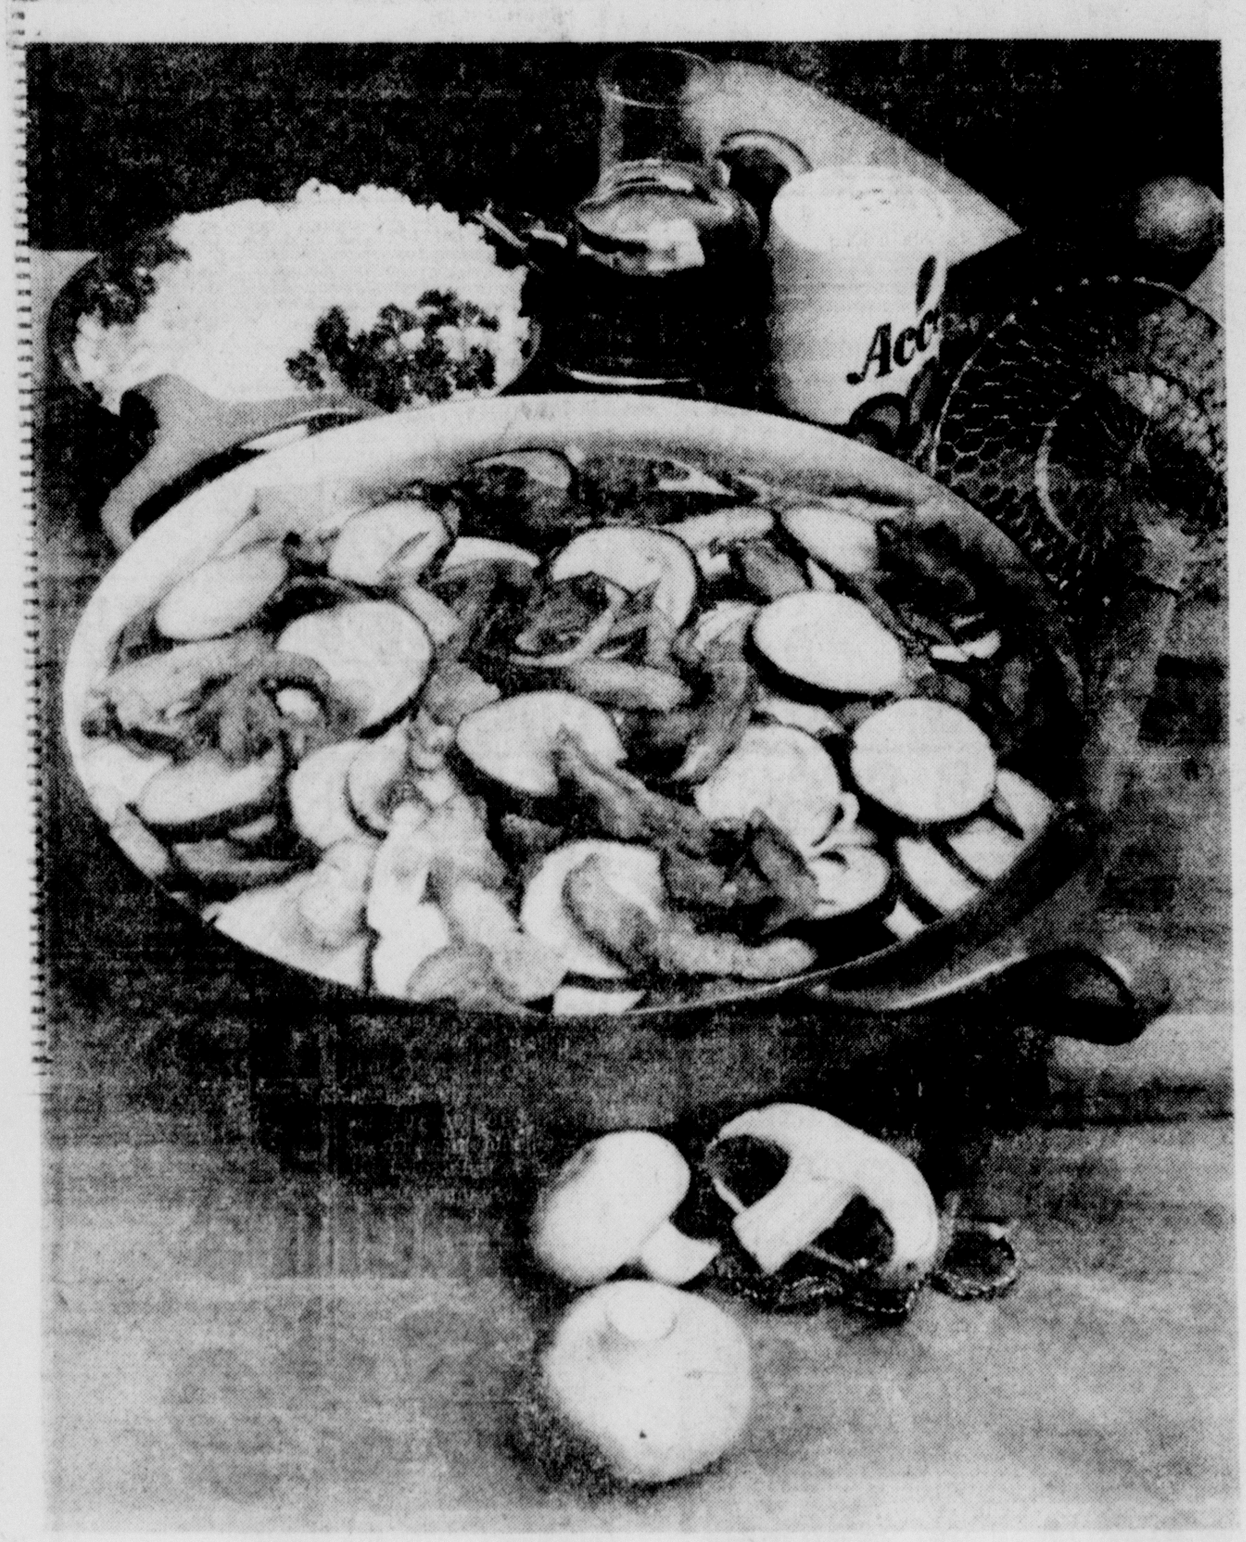
Fuel conservation

Stir fry: a way to beat the energy crunch



FUEL AND FLAVOR SAVED WITH THIS STIR FRIED PORK AND ZUCCHINI DISH

If you are a thoughtful person (and most of us are) you like to do your best to conserve fuel in the present tight pinch.

What can a person do at home to avoid wasting fuel? Cooking offers several opportunities to cut back without undue inconvenience.

Top-of-range cookery conserves fuel more effectively than oven cookery. A one-pot meal atop the range uses less fuel than three pots for different courses in a meal. Small pieces of meat cook faster than large ones, such as roasts. When you do use your oven, plan to cook each item in the meal in the oven such as a casserole and a dessert, or cook two desserts at once, one for a subsequent meal.

A timely way to cook now is the classic oriental stir-fry method in which food is cut into small pieces, usually strips, then quickly cooked in oil, and served. The standard oriental utensil for this kind of cooking is the wok but a large skillet also will do the job.

You undoubtedly had stir-fry dishes in Chinese restaurants so try an easy but interesting one at home such as a succulent pork and zucchini stir-fry. It's a delicious combination of flavors, yet it is made with familiar ingredients. Another fine stir-fry recipe with a touch of glamor, though not implying high cost, is green and gold tuna, a great combination of easy-to-get vegetables along with readily-available canned tuna.

Enjoy these fuel-saving treats and bring new variety to your menu.

PORK AND ZUCCHINI STIR-FRY

1 tablespoon salad oil
1 pound pork shoulder, cut in strips
¼ cup chopped scallions
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
3 cups sliced unpared zucchini (about 3)
1 tablespoon sherry
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme

In wok or large skillet, heat oil. Add pork and cook over high heat, stirring constantly, until lightly browned. Add remaining ingredients, cover and cook 5 minutes over medium heat. Serve with rice, if desired.

4 servings.

GREEN AND GOLD TUNA

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/3 cup chopped onion
2 cups thinly sliced pared carrots
1 bunch fresh broccoli, cut into flowerlets (3½ cups)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna

In wok or large skillet, melt butter. Add onion and cook until tender. Add carrots and water, cover and cook 10 minutes over medium heat. Add broccoli, lemon juice, Accent, salt and pepper. Cover and cook 5 minutes. Add tuna and cook 1 minute longer.

4 servings.

KNOX BLOX™

New finger-size gelatine snacks.

Knox has a nifty new snack idea that's a knock-out with kids. It's firmed up, finger-sized, fruity gelatine squares. They're firm enough to never melt or get mushy even at room temperature. But still have enough wiggle to tempt any tot. And a snap to make. Just add Knox® Unflavored Gelatine to any flavored gelatine and your Knox Blox will stay firm until the last block is all gobbled up. Now, isn't that a better idea than candy?

4 envelopes Knox Unflavored Gelatine
3 packages (3 oz. ea.) flavored gelatine
4 cups boiling water

In large bowl, combine Knox Unflavored Gelatine and flavored gelatine; add boiling water and stir until gelatine dissolves. Pour into large shallow baking pan (for example, 13" x 9") and chill until firm. Cut into squares to serve. Makes about 100 one inch squares.

But not the magnet it once was

USA: it's still a lure

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The United States is still the land of opportunity to a sizeable number of people in the world, despite all her troubles of late. They'd like to move to America if they could.

That's the indication of a random sampling of opinion in 39 countries around the world. The sampling was done by bureaus of The Associated Press.

Some 35 per cent of 283 people interviewed said they'd like to emigrate to the United States, but few of them could see any prospects of that happening.

Their major reason was hope of improving their standard of living — rather than a search for freedom or other similar values.

In practice, fewer people are filing for immigration visas to the United States, a survey of U.S. embassies and consulates reveals. One of the reasons is the difficulty in meeting U.S. requirements that immigrants be sponsored or have a job before visas will be issued.

Rising economies in much of the developed world also have accounted for some of the decline in those seeking immigration visas.

One general rule seemed to emerge: Those with the best chance of getting into the United States were not applying, and those with the least chance are discouraged by the requirements.

The AP sampling also showed that the events of the last 10 years — from Vietnam to Watergate, from street crime to riots — have taken some of the gloss off the American image.

Still many of those interviewed see America as an exciting place to live, a land of order, and most especially, opportunity.

The sampling of street opinion showed that the desire to move to the United States was lowest in Eastern Europe (13 per cent) and Western Europe (33 per cent) and highest in Latin America (58 per cent), the Mideast (61 per cent), Asia (43 per cent) and Africa (53 per cent).

But in all these areas the samples are so small that they are more interesting for the opinions they represent than for the actual figures.

Some are naive, some are flattering, and some are full of hate.

In Cairo, housewife Khadiga Hassan, 30, wants to emigrate to the United States. Why?

"No one there has to wait in line hours at stores to get essentials. Electric machines such as vacuum cleaners, washing machines and ovens would save me lots of time in the house. Definitely I would love to go to the United States, a country where you find everything easy."

In Tel Aviv, Egyptian-born Raphael Sabban, 44, a typewriter mechanic, says, "I'm too close to this country (Israel), even though a lot of things need changing. But the United States is still a powerful magnet, and if Israel did not exist, I would choose to live in America."

Eva Eklund, 21, an unmarried hairdresser in Stockholm, wants to go to the United States. "There has been an idea about this in my head since I was 12 or 13," she said. "I have been curious about the country all the time."

Many West Germans and other West Europeans cited the social security of their countries as a main reason for staying. But foremost in the words of most who declined was the simple attachment to their native culture.

A West Berlin widow said, "I feel fine in Germany and like being in Berlin. I am very German in my ways, very thorough."

Donald McLeod, 48, a London businessman, noted the changes through the years.

"I suppose most people with ambition have considered at one time or another emigrating to the United States," he said. "I certainly did once but I felt uneasy. The Vietnam war and what it did to the nation — the violence and demonstrations, the campus shootings and the corruption of government and administration — have confirmed my fears.

"However this problem appears to be ending for the Americans and people may once more come to regard the United States as a land of opportunity and a bastion of freedom in a world that seems to be falling under Communist rule.

"Myself, I still prefer Britain."

Paolo Cardin, 24, a machinist in Milan, sees changes, too.

"America was the promised land two generations ago," he said. "Now in Italy we have highly industrialized areas in Milan and Turin where a worker's salary equals that in many other countries. And here we can live as Italians and speak our own language."

Jack Sloan, 35, single and unemployed in the working class area of Belfast, ran counter to most of the Irish replies. They tended to favor the United States as a potential home.

"You must be joking," he said. "Look at the dole queues out there, the crime, the racial problems. Give me Belfast — bombs and bullets — anytime."

In Copenhagen, Ole Rohwald, 22, a chimney sweep, said to the question of going to America, "Not on my life. They would have to kidnap me like they are kidnaping Vietnamese children right now. The U.S. society is rotten what with Nixon walking about free with a nice pension."

A 24-year-old girl in Brussels, a student, said she'd like to visit the U.S. but not live there.

"I like American dynamism, positive, pragmatic attitude and reactions," she said. "... But Americans are children. Women are still treated as more inferior than here. People are pressured like lemons ... Ambition, drive to boss, the meanest motives are used for promotion."

In Hong Kong, Leung Chichoy, a 35-year-old taxi driver, said, "I would certainly like to emigrate to the United States if I had a chance. I realize that the streets of America are not paved with gold, but I'm convinced if I work as hard there as I am here, I would be able to lead a better life..."

Julio Cesar Caceres, 23, a law student in Lima, Peru, says, "I want to go to the United States and yet I don't want to. A sense of justice exists there and one does not have to submit to the many dictates of government like in Latin America ... I don't want to go because I think that by staying behind in Peru I can still struggle for better justice for all."

And so the opinions wandered, from hatred of American ways to love of Americans ways, from a desire for American luxuries to a shunning of those same luxuries.

Bank robbers: they have their problems, too

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The way some lawmen tell it, today's run of the mill bank robber could be more the object of pity than fear.

"Young and dumb," was the way today's bank holdup men were described by William Sullivan, chief FBI agent in Los Angeles.

"We've had guys write holdup notes on the back of their own utility bills. Or run out of a bank so excited they can't find their getaway car."

Some statistics: Of 37 persons killed during bank holdups throughout the United States in 1974, 24 were would-be robbers.

The average bank haul is about $1,500 — less than half what it was 10 years ago. Between 70 and 80 per cent of bank robbers are caught.

One FBI study showed bank robbers' average income worked out to be about 40 cents an hour based on the amount of prison time the robbers did. And of course that assumes the robber managed to keep the loot.

The smooth, well-planned operations so often shown on movie screens and television tubes are in a definite minority, Sullivan says. And more than half the robbers are usually unarmed, though they may simulate a gun, he added.

Item: One fellow walked into a Salt Lake Rity bank, strode up to a teller, cleared his throat and demanded money. While the teller collected it, the would-be robber fainted.

In another botched operation, two men armed with shotguns walked into another bank and ordered everyone to lie on the floor. Everyone did and the bandits, apparently in panic, fled without a dime.

Where have you gone, Willie Sutton?

Charles Ogle, an FBI supervisor, said: "Twenty years ago, the bank robber was looked up to by other inmates in prison. He was a big shot, and bank robbery was viewed s the class robbery. Not any more."

Still, bank robberies have increased nearly threefold since 1960. Officials attribute the higher rate to the economy and the drug problem, as well as the growing number of banks.

"Twenty years ago, most banks were downtown," Sullivan said. "Now you also have branch banks in the suburban areas, with easy access to freeways. Convenient targets."

Sullivan says another myth of bank robbing is the cool, successful robber who drops from sight until the heat is off.

In San Bernardino, Calif., police noted a man, obviously drunk, racing a friend down a street in a wheel chair. He turned out to be the man wanted in a recent bank robbery.

Technology is helping the good guys. Surveillance cameras set up in about 60 per cent of the nation's banks have proved invaluable.

Shooting four frames a second of the bank robbers in action, the film often is a clincher when presented as evidence in court.

Understandably, bank robbers don't like the cameras much and occasionally they try to shoot up the $1,600 machines. The usual result is a crisp, fullface picture of a man firing a gun at the camera, which is encased in quarter-inch-thick steel.

Even if a lucky shot hits the camera lens, the film survives intact.

One ex-convict was told by friends in prison that if he rubbed mercury on his face, he would be invisible to the camera. Not realizing it was a joke, the man got some blue ointment with mercury in it, spread it on his face and robbed a bank.

Instead of being blind to the camera, the camera took an unusually sharp picture of the robber that helped send him back to prison.

Some banks also are using a tear gas device that can be hidden in the loot and then triggered by remote control once the bandit turns to leave.

In one such case the bandit had the money tucked in his belt and when the grenade went off, he quickly ripped all his clothes off in an effort to dissipate the gas.

ENERGY . . . . . the power struggle

NAVAJO HORSEMAN IS DWARFED BY HUGE POWER TOWERS CARRYING NEW MEXICAN ELECTRICITY OUT OF STATE

SANTA Fe, N.M. (AP) — They're stringing power lines across New Mexico, this once somnolent Land of Enchantment, like there's no manana.

Only a few years ago the long drive up the state's northwestern edge, from Gallup to Farmington by way of Shiprock, was made in solitude across a silent desert of distant buttes silhouetted against a vast expanse of cobalt sky. This is the Navajo reservation, and the only hint of human activity was an occasional flock of sheep, often unattended, and an occasional hogan far off the road.

Today, sheep still graze but mobile homes are pulled up alongside the hogans and a pickup is parked out front. The traffic on the road, now a highway, seems as heavy as that on Route 66.

Today, the view of towering Shiprock itself — or, in the native tongue, Winged Rock, the remains of the great bird that brought the Navajos down from the north — is interrupted by a forest of utility poles, as if sprung up overnight after a rain, and by mile after mile of high voltage wires held aloft by the steel arms of massive structures which the Indians say resemble giant kachians, ritual dolls, marching in grotesque procession to the horizon.

Coal brought this change. New Mexicans have not yet decided whether it is boon or bane.

Near Farmington is the Navajo Mine. It produces 25,000 tons of coal a day to fire the two million-kilowatt Four Corners power plant, built in 1970, and the smaller San Juan plant. Last year the mine produced 7 million tons of coal. That made it the largest producer in the Western Hemisphere — and it has barely been tapped.

There's the rub.

According to plans already drawn, environmental impact studies already made, the mine in the next few years could be the reason for erecting upon these lone and level sands the second largest city in New Mexico — a busy energy colony supplying other states far and near with not only electricity but synthetic gas made from coal, and then 25 years later, when it is predicted that the last bucket of coal will be gasified, the colony would become ... What? The Western Hemisphere's largest ghost town?

A nation starved for energy and a state starved for jobs (unemployment is 8 to 9 per cent) could both benefit. Temporarily. After that, only the state, not the nation, would be stuck with the Ozymandian remains: a colossal hole in the ground and masses of dislocated families.

Ten Western governors, fearful of just such a fate befalling any one of their states, have formed a coalition for the very purpose of flexing a unified muscle against the onrushing energy developers.

Significantly, they elected the new Mexico governor, Jerry Apodaca, as the first president of the new organization. Nowhere to date has the predicament been exposed in such stark terms or more disagreeable alternatives.

For his part, Gov. Apodaca feels that if New Mexico's riches are the nation's riches, then New Mexico's problems are the nation's problems.

Two months ago he put together a state Energy Resources Board which will begin functioning July 1. A message requesting the legislation to set up the board explained its purpose:

"We send out of our state 55 to 60 per cent of electricity produced here, 75 to 80 per cent of gas generated here, and 85 to 90 per cent of petroleum pumped here ... New Mexico will do its fair share and more to help our nation solve its energy crisis, but not at the expense of our people while others enjoy the benefits of our sacrifices."

The warning wasn't just rhetoric.

Q: "Is it OK for a dog to eat cat food?"

A: Not really, because cat foods aren't usually formulated to contain the vitamins and minerals a dog needs. But if your dog insists on eating cat food, try fooling him with a can of Blue Mountain Chicken 'n Liver 'n Egg dog food. He'll love the chicken 'n liver combination that is a favorite of cats and think he's getting a can of cat food. You'll love it because your dog will be getting the complete nutrition he needs, from a real dog food.

Power struggle . . .

Just recently the legislature enacted a new tax, also to take effect July 1 and to continue for nine years, on all electricity generated in the state.

If the electricity is sold to New Mexicans, however, the amount of the generation tax will be credited against the customary state gross receipts tax on the sales. That means, in effect, that the new tax will apply only to electricity leaving the state; the roundabout way of collecting it was deemed prudent to avoid the question of restraint of interstate trade — although both big out-of-state shippers have dropped hints about suing.

Further, half the new tax money, about $4 million a year, will go toward building roads — sturdy, lasting ones — that will be needed in the remote and roadless area of all that energy development, a step toward a permanent city rather than a jerry-built company town.

In the view of the governor and legislature, roads and other facilities necessary for a town created by industrial development ought to be paid for mainly by the developers (and therefore, ultimately, by the eventual users) of the product, not solely by New Mexicans.

This new way of thinking, catching on rapidly in the West, is a far cry from the traditional American notion that industry must be lured with tax breaks and other incentives. The irony is that New Mexico, where industrial development is high on the list of state priorities, should be among the first to put it into practice.

The best estimate is that the electric generation tax could add as much as 40 cents to the monthly electric bills of Arizonans, Californians and all the others on the receiving end of those scenery-spoiling transmission lines.

Should that happen, it would be a major test of the resolve of the Western governors' coalition, of which Gov. Raul Castro of Arizona is a member along with other governors whose constituents would partly foot the New Mexico bill.

The other half of the tax money will be used, fittingly, to reduce the cost of utilities for New Mexicans on welfare and to pay the tax credits for electricity sold within the state.

The Western states aren't the only political units with an interest in the direction the coal boom takes.

The Navajo tribe, upon whose land all that tantalizing coal sits, is also a political unit — without, alas, representation in Congress. "When the seventh child asks to be heard," said Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald, "few listen."

Leases for the Navajo coal were contracted long before MacDonald took office: one, in 1957, with Utah International Inc. (UII) now totals 31,000 acres and contains 1.1 billion tons of strippable coal; another, in 1968, with El Paso Natural Gas Co., covers 40,000 acres containing more than 700 million tons.

What the Navajos got in the bargain — with the sanction of the U.S. secretary of interior, who is a party to all Indian leases — was a royalty of 25 cents a ton.

"We got taken," MacDonald said, "but that's in the past. What we have to talk about now is how best to deal with the consequences."

That narrows down to whether to get what they can out of that massive energy colony with its 25-year life span, or try to stop it. At present, MacDonald leans toward the former, though all of his studies are not in yet.

What is proposed is a cluster of seven coal gasification plants at an isolated place on the reservation called Burnham, 40 miles south of Farmington by a nearly impassable dirt road, where now stands a single trading post patronized by about 35 Navajo families who speak little or no English, make a living in the time-honored Navajo way, herding sheep, and travel a minimum of three miles to the nearest water supply and 25 miles to the nearest paved road.

Four of the plants would be built by Western Gasification Co. (WESCO), a joint venture of Pacific Lighting Co. of Los Angeles and Eastern Transmission Corp. of Houston. El Paso Natural Gas would build the three others.

Chairman MacDonald has worked out deals with both companies that would pay the tribe $30 to $40 million a year for, as he explained, "the privilege of doing business on the reservation." Royalties alone on the coal would bring in only $1 to $2 million a year.

WESCO would buy its coal from UII, the company that already supplies the Four Corners Power Plant from its Navajo lease. El Paso would provide its own coal from its own lease.

"The coal is going to be mined anyhow," MacDonald said, "They already have the leases. But with the money we can get from the gasification plants, we can ease the burdens of dislocation. The best way would be to develop new industries to replace the plants when they close."

The seven plants would hire about 7,500 persons, the nucleus of a community which would attract others to run the filling stations, libraries, drugstores, schools, bowling alleys, hamburger joints and all the other amenities of civilization. Including the water works.

And there's another rub.

This new community would be built on a mile-high arid plateau where not much more than prickly pear and tumbleweed grow, where it takes 25 acres to graze one sheep, where annual rainfall is less than six inches — not enough, it should be noted, to reclaim strip-mined land.

The gasification plants would not just use water, as in an electricity plant cooling system, but literally consume it. One step in making synthetic gas is to combine oxygen and steam with burning coal. The water would come from the San Juan River, a tributary of the Colorado.

WESCO has access to 44,000 acre feet of water a year, an amount assigned by the Bureau of Reclamation to UII in 1968. El Paso, however, needs 30,000 acre feet a year and so far hasn't been able to get title to it. Until it does, its plans are stalled.

The question of who is entitled to how much water out of the Colorado involves claims by seven states, a treaty with Mexico, planning operations of more than 20 federal agencies, agreements with numerous industries, farmers and Indian tribes, including the Navajos who have a new 110,630-acre irrigation project to worry about.

MacDonald some time back organized a Navajo Water Commission to put together a brief on water rights. The Navajo argument includes a 1907 Supreme Court ruling that Indian tribes have "prior and paramount" rights to water originating from, flowing through or adjacent to their reservations. The San Juan runs through the Navajo Reservation.

"When the big fight comes — and it will be soon — we'll be ready," MacDonald said.

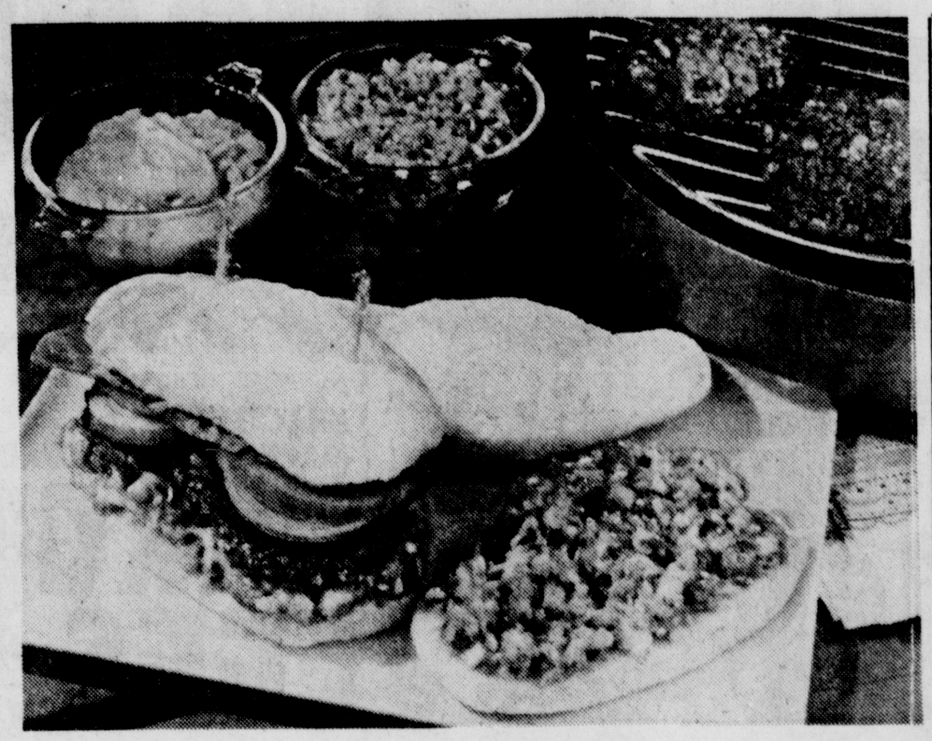
'Pit Gourmet' sandwich wins top honors

Pitzer College's snack bar manager national finalist



CHICAGO — Take your burgers South-of-the border for a smashing summer meal. That's what Barbara Jesttes, a snack bar manager at Pitzer College, Claremont, Calif., did to create her winning entry in the 1975 National Sandwich Idea Contest.

Mrs. Jesttes said she constantly is creating new sandwiches to please the palates of her customers. "Pit Gourmet," of Mexican inspiration, was one of these creations — her first entry in the National Sandwich Idea Contest.

To create her entry, Mrs. Jesttes combined refried beans and avocado sauce with that all-American favorite — hamburger and onion. The resulting sandwich is a sure-fired winner.

If 'Pit Gourmet" tingles the taste buds of the final judges and is selected one of the 'Top Four" for 1975, it will win Mrs. Jesttes $500 cash, plus an all-expense trip to New York City for a coronation luncheon. At the luncheon, one of the "Top Four" winners will be crowned Sandwich King or Queen for 1975. If "Pit Gourmet" brings this honor to Mrs. Jesttes, she will win an additional $500 cash and World Travel for two.

All of the "Top 20" recipes and their creators are featured in a leaflet distributed widely to the public and the food service industry.

Mrs. Jesttes has had several food service positions and said, "I entered this profession because I love to cook and work with people."

She hopes someday to open her own fast food sandwich and "shake" shop. In this capacity she wants to offer customers "an entirely new concept in food and beverage."

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the National Sandwich Idea Contest. It was begun in 1956 to seek out and reward talented food service professionals, using readily available American food products. It continues in this tradition today.

The 1975 sponsors are the United Dairy Industry Association, Kansas Wheat Commission, National Live Stock and Meat Board, National Wheat Institute and Wheat Flour Institute, in cooperation with the National Restaurant Association and the Council on Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Education (CHRIE).

PIT GOURMET
6 sandwiches

- 1½ pounds ground beef
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 6 enriched French rolls Mayonnaise
- 1 can (15½ oz.) refried beans with sausage
- 3 tablespoons green chili salsa
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded processed American cheese
- 6 thin slices Bermuda onion
- 12 slices tomato
- 6 lettuce leaves Guacamole Sauce

Mix ground beef and salt. Shape beef mixture into 6 patties. Refrigerate. Make Guacamole Sauce. Split rolls and spread with mayonnaise. Combine beans, salsa and cheese. Spread a rounded 1/3 cup of bean mixture on bottom half of each roll. Broil on grill beef patties to desired doneness. Top bean mixture with a cooked patty, 1 onion slice, 2 tomato slices, 1 lettuce leaf and approximately 1/3 cup Guacamole Sauce. Close sandwich.

Guacamole Sauce:

- 2 large avocados, mashed
- 1½ teaspoons finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon lime or lemon juice
- ¾ teaspoon seasoned salt
- 4 drops hot sauce

Combine avocado, onion, lime juice, salt and hot sauce; mix well.

NOTE: Two cans (7¾ oz. each) frozen avocado dip may be substituted for Guacamole Sauce.

Garnish with Jalapeno peppers.

Don't throw away toothbrushes when they've outlived their usefulness. They come in very handy for getting at hard-to-clean areas around woodwork, edges of sink and faucets and small areas around the kitchen stove. They also work well as a nail brush or as a brush to clean jewelry.

—C.H., Holliston, Mass.

To keep fresh vegetables such as lettuce, cucumbers and bell peppers crisp, wash and drain them, wrap in paper towels and put into plastic bread wrappers in order to retain their moisture while in the refrigerator.

—R.B., Chillicothe, Tex.

Inordinate overuse of low gear is one of the worst gas gulpers in a car. This also adds to both air and noise pollution. Some drivers use low gear when traveling at higher speeds than are recommended.

—A.J., Honolulu, Hi.

Old telephone directories, mail order catalogues and similar printed matter are often usable for innumerable jobs where paper towels are generally used. Of course, this is only recommended if you don't have access to a paper recycling center.

—F.H., Molokai, Hi.

Often you can avoid the unnecessary use of a sewing machine by doing simple repair jobs by hand.

—E.F., Burlington, Va.

Pick a pretty roll of wallpaper at a closeout sale for very little money and see how many ways you can use it. Vinyl or paper wallpaper can be used for shelf lining or wrapping paper. If used for wrapping, tie the package with yarn instead of ribbon. Of course this tip also holds for any wallpaper you might have leftover from a home decorating project.

—A.G., Hingham, Mass.

If you install central air conditioning, make certain you insulate cold air ducts that pass through uncooled spaces, such as an attic.

—K.G., Hingham, Mass.

Never use a window or attic fan in an air conditioned area. It just forces the cooled air to the outside and wastes energy.

—R.L., Yankton, S.D.

Don't turn your air conditioner on to a colder setting than normal in the hope that it will cool more rapidly. It won't cool faster but it will cool to a lower temperature, thus using more energy.

—S.C., York, Neb.

HAMBURGERS NEVER...tasted so good!

"Woody's" Cook-in' Sauce is unique because we discovered a way to allow the full bouquet of flavor to remain in its natural state – until you do the cooking. The result – the most exquisite barbecue flavor your palate has ever tasted! So the next time you're shopping, pick up a jar of "Woody's" Cook-in' Sauce in the barbecue section.

Western Burgers

- 2 lbs. lean ground beef
- 5 tbsp. Cook-in' Sauce
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. black pepper (fine)
- 1-1/2 cups chopped onions

Thoroughly mix together the ground beef, "Woody's" Cook-in' Sauce, salt and pepper. Shape into 12 thin patties. Place a filling of chopped onions on 6 patties and top with remaining patties. Press edges together to seal in onions. Grill in your electric skillet or over a hot bed of coals.

Enjoy yourself!

Shot in head 5 times

For Susan, life beginning anew 8 years later

UKIAH (AP) — Nearly eight years after she was raped, beaten, shot and left for dead beside a road, Susan Bartolomei is making progress in her determination to learn to walk and talk again.

She has taken a few steps in a suspension walker that holds her upright in what looks like a parachute harness.

She communicates with sign language, using the hand she discovered she could move after coming out of a seven-month coma following the attack. She was unable to speak and mostly paralyzed from the neck down by five bullets in the head.

"She's in very good spirits most of the time," said her mother, Mrs. Angelo Bartolomei, wife of a store clerk. "This is something that most people marvel at.

"She's very definitely making progress. You wouldn't notice it unless you were with her all the time. It's little things like getting an elbow up a tiny bit higher."

Susan was kidnaped Aug. 21, 1967. Her boyfriend, Timothy Luce, 17, son of the Lake County district attorney, was murdered. She was left in a ravine near Sonora.

Thomas Braun and Leonard Maine, both 18 at the time, were convicted of the crime.

Braun's death sentence was reduced to life by a U.S. Supreme Court decision, and he is in San Quentin. Maine is serving a life sentence at Deuel Vocational Institution at Tracy.

Officials said neither is likely to be paroled. Even if they were, the state of Washington has claims on them for similar convictions in a series of murders, rapes and robberies.

For her 25th birthday recently, Susan went in her wheelchair to a friend's house for a dinner party.

She can eat with her parents at the table in her wheelchair. She has a brother, Robert, 21, who is in Alaska working on a construction project.

Her parents have put a lounge chair in the family van so Susan can go on occasional shhopping trips or outings.

"We don't do enough for fun," said her mother. "We're so busy at therapy we really don't have time."

A physical therapist prescribes bicycle exercises Susan can do in her bed, and helps her move from bedroom to living room in the walker.

"What we have to do is strengthen her legs for walking," her mother said.

Damage to eye muscles made it difficult to read. Her hearing was also affected, but her mother says she can understand most everything now.

Since she started her recovery, she completed high school with A's in two courses. Still, education is secondary to her physical rehabilitation.

DETERMINATION — Susan Bartolomei, now 25, takes a step in a suspension walker in her efforts to overcome after effects of five bullets in her brain. Although still badly crippled and unable to talk except by sign language, it is a far cry from eight years ago when she lay in a coma seven months, then was unable to move from the neck down when she regained consciousness.

She surveys old buildings for posterity

By JEAN BARNES

There is so much more about Kim Spurgeon than meets the eye that it is difficult to know what to say first.

Meeting her, she seems very much a part of today's world. Her blonde hair is worn long and loose, she has an natural and relaxed manner, accompanied by a creative and inquiring mind.

And though she lives in the present, she is greatly concerned with both the future and the past. An architect, Kim specializes in preservation and restoration. For most of each year she is an assistant professor of architecture at Kansas State University at Manhattan.

But with the close of the spring term, she will pack her gear and head for San Diego. There she will supervise a team of student architects in surveying and documenting historic old buildings for the city.

Her team will be one of about 14 throughout the United States working under the Historic American Buildings Survey (HABS), a program of the National Park Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior in cooperation with the American Institute of Architects and the Library of Congress.

Her interest in preservation was aroused when still a student at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., and she later received a master's degree from Columbia University, New York City, specializing in preservation and restoration.

"My first summer, in 1970, I worked for the New York State Historic Trust and we spent the whole summer documenting the John Jay homestead including about 20 outbuildings," she explained. "I didn't know what I was getting into but I liked it very much."

So much so, that in 1973 she worked with a team in Bloomington, Ind. and she met her favorite building — the West Baden Springs Hotel. Built around a tiled courtyard, the hotel had a 200-foot dome which had to be documented with the assistance of computers, she said.

In 1974, Prof Spurgeon became the first woman project supervisor in the 40-year history of HABS. Her summer was spent in San Mateo County, documenting such diverse structures as a lighthouse, the Menlo Park train station, a church and a bank.

Each team consists of a supervisor, draftsmen and a historian. It costs about $20,000 for a team and costs are shared by HABS and the local community, she pointed out. The team can survey about ten buildings in the summer months.

HOLT and INDIAN HILL, POMONA

California —— Plumsville, USA

More than 90 per cent of plums marketed across the nation are grown in California — 20 varieties of them.

Plums grew wild in China more than 2,000 years ago.

Europe was introduced to plums from the East centuries ago and developed its own varieties.

California entered the plum growing market only 105 years ago and now has a virtual monopoly on them within the United States.

Japanese or Asian plums always are bright red, crimson or pinkish yellow with a yellow interior. European plums, by contrast, always are blue or purple. European plums also are smaller than the Japanese variety.

Besides eating plums fresh from market as a snack, the fruit is excellent poached, made into sauce, fresh sliced with sugar, pickled, canned, frozen or made into jam, syrup or sherbet.

Of the 20 varieties grown for market in California, the most popular plum is the Santa Rosa followed in order by Red Beaut, El Dorado, Wickson, Laroda, Nubiana, Late Santa Rosa, Sim-Ka (also marketed under the names of Arrosa and New Yorker), Queen Ann, Kelsey, President and Casselman.

Plums begin appearing in markets during late May and are available through September.

A variety of recipes is available through the California Plum Commodity Committee, 701 Fulton Avenue, Sacramento, Calif. 95825. There is no charge for recipes.

PLUM PARFAIT — This tangy summertime treat is a simple but zestful way to spruce up the dinner table. Plum syrup shown here as an ice cream topping also can be used as a topping for sherbet, shortcake and pudding. Just slice a pound of plums and mix with a cup of sugar. Let stand until juices form. Add a stick of cinnamon and cook about 20 minutes over very low heat until fruit is tender. Mix a tablespoon each cornstarch, water and lemon juice and stir into sauce. Cool and refrigerate until ready to use.

Simple math stumps America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans are unable to do such simple calculations as figuring out how much change they should receive after making purchases, according to a survey by the U.S. Office of Education.

This finding, and others of a similar nature, has led a congressional investigatory agency to recommend expansion of the Adult Education Act of 1966.

The agency, the General Accounting Office, reported Friday that the 1966 program has had some beneficial results but "little impact on reducing illiteracy among adults."

The 1966 program was designed for Americans 16 years or older who have never finished high school.

Medical schools begin looking at sexuality

BALTIMORE (AP) — Freshmen medical students at the University of Maryland campus here are required to take a course on sexuality.

Frederick J. Ramsay, associate dean of student affairs and a group discussion leader in the class, said it's an effort to help students deal with their own attitudes and to better communicate with their future patients.

Dr. Sharon Satterfield, co-director of the course here, said one purpose of the course is to fill the gap between what doctors should know about sex and sexuality and what they actually know.

Medical schools have failed to prepare their students to meet this intimate role with their patients, she said.

The course, Intimate Human Behavior, draws largely on films showing a wide range of heterosexual and homosexual activities. The sexual acts seem natural, not clinical or as performed by actors in a pornographic movie.

Attendance at the movies and lectures is not required, but attendance at discussion groups is mandatory. The course is offered on an optional basis to nursing and social work students.

Medical student reaction to the course's presentation and structure has been mixed. Complaints include the required attendance, the subject matter and presentation, the feeling that students are being encouraged to engage in "true confessions," and the lack of new material.

The films were made by Multi Media Resource Center of San Francisco, which is an outgrowth of sex forums begun by Glide Memorial United Methodist Church in San Francisco.

"Of course it was controversial," said the Rev. James H. Corson, a United Methodist official in California. "For a long time nobody would talk about sex. That's one of the problems medical schools had. They didn't talk about it either."

Medical schools across the country have been ordering the films, which are available only to professional groups, as part of candid courses on sexuality.

Fresh vegetables . . . it's how you cook 'em

Fresh vegetables taste so good, they titillate your taste buds, and they bring you important vitamins and minerals.

Are you serving them often enough? The meal perks up for flavor, texture, color, nutrition, when fresh vegetables are on the menu. And they are easy to prepare, though there are some unfortunate and unfounded ideas around that they are a lot of trouble.

Some say they would serve fresh vegetables more often if they knew more about cooking them. These directions from the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association should take care of that problem. Preparing and cooking fresh vegetables is quite easy. There are three basic ways to consider.

METHOD I. To Cook Vegetables in Water.

Use as little water as possible.
Add vegetable.
Bring to a boil rapidly.
Cover the pot.
Lower heat to keep vegetable simmering.
Cook only until tender . . . not mushy.

Vegetables to cook by this method include most of those on the market such as asparagus, green beans, broccoli, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, spinach, mustard greens, Swiss chard, kale, collards, parsnips, potatoes, yellow crook neck, white button, butternut and zucchini squash.

METHOD II. To Stir-Fry Vegetables.

In a heavy skillet, heat about 2 tablespoons oil or butter, and add about one pound of cut up vegetables. Stir over high heat for 3 to 5 Minutes till crisp-tender.

Vegetables especially good to cook by this method include celery, green pepper, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, mushrooms, onions, zucchini, eggplant. Vegetables cooked this way have quite a different taste and texture, a new treat to try.

METHOD III. To Cook Vegetables by Baking.

POTATOES:
Scrub potatoes of baking size and prick in a few places with a fork. Bake at 425 degrees F. 45 minutes to 1 hour.

SQUASH: (Butternut,
Cover the pot.
Cut in half, discard seeds, and place squash in a baking pan; add water to about ½ inch. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 45 minutes.

SQUASH: (Hubbard)
Cut into pieces. Place in pan as above, and cook accordingly.

Preparing fresh vegetable for cooking sometimes is mystifying the first time around. Most vegetables need a little mild barbering before going into the cooking pot but try to confine the action to a light trim. Broccoli calls for trimming off the rough, dry part at the base; then slit the stem upwards so that the broccoli stem will cook in about the same time as the flowery head. Cauliflower calls for slicing off the coarse underpart and cutting off the stalks that cup the head. It can then be cooked whole or in pieces in water.

Most vegetables do not require peeling, with carrots the exception. The peel on such vegetables as eggplant, zucchini and yellow crook neck squash has both flavor and good nutrition so don't discard it.

Fresh Mushrooms

Fresh mushrooms win popularity with everyone. Some people have missed this marvelous vegetable because they are not sure how to prepare it for cooking. Here is the story. Choose white mushrooms with firm, closed caps. Count on about 4 moderately large mushrooms in a quarter pound. Allow 1 pound of mushrooms for 4 servings as a vegetable or side dish. Remember that mushrooms shrink and lose volume during cooking. To clean mushrooms, either rinse quickly with cold water or wipe with damp cloth. Do not soak in water and do not peel. Trim end of stem, then cut whole mushrooms into lengthwise slices, or remove stems from caps, and use stems for other uses.

To cook mushrooms: slice 1 pound fresh mushrooms (if small, leave whole). Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in large skillet; add mushrooms and cook slowly over moderately low heat, stirring occasionally.

Corn Is Exception

While most vegetables are cooked best by basic methods, fresh corn on the cob is a law unto itself. It is practically a religion with discriminating eaters to cook fresh corn to perfection and that requires the following procedure.

Fresh corn requires little cooking, and it is important to cook it only until the milk in the kernels is set. Most vegetables become softer with longer cooking but corn does not; it becomes firmer or tough when overcooked.

Cook only 1 ear of corn per person at a time. Half fill a large kettle with water, add 1 teaspoon salt per quart of water, and bring to a boil. Add corn and boil, covered, just until milk in kernels is set, 3 to 6 minutes. Remove ears with tongs and serve immediately with butter or favorite sauce. Then cook second batch.

Since cooking time will vary with the size and even sometimes with the variety of corn, it can be helpful to cook a "test ear" to determine the exact cooking time needed. If it is necessary to cook corn ahead of the serving time, turn off the heat when the corn is added to the boiling water, then cover and let stand until ready to serve.

Another vegetable that is an exception to the rules is the artichoke, that fascinating object that looks like an ornamental top to a bedpost more than it looks like something to eat. But it is to eat, and a very delicious vegetable, too. Here is the way to cook artichokes.

Allow 1 artichoke per serving. Wash artichokes, and cut ½-inch off top of each artichoke. Cut off stems. Using scissors, cut off sharp tips on leaves. Add artichokes to boiling salted water to cover in deep saucepan. Add 1 thick lemon slice for each artichoke. Cover and cook about 30 to 40 minutes or until an outside leaf pulls off easily. Using 2 large spoons, remove artichokes.

Photographs terrorist atrocities as a deterrent

Belfast horror: in living (or dead) color

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — As an ambulanceman in Belfast the past eight years Robin Shields has assembled a grisly portfolio of photographs that would turn the stomach of many a strong man.

The slides and prints show in clinical, horrific color what a terrorist bomb or sniper's bullet will do to the relatively fragile human body.

Shields, a quiet, bespectacled man whose hobby is photography, takes his camera on his calls and snaps in the hospital or morgue the gruesome aftermath of a pub bombing, a shooting spree. He is not turned on by the violence or the pictures. He is repelled. And he hopes other people will be too.

Shields has had the pictures printed and mounted at his own expense to show to church and civic leaders. He hopes these people, whom he calls "the establishment," may exert some influence in halting the sectarian war that has festered in this British province for nearly six years — taking the lives of more than 1,200 persons and injuring or maiming for life thousands of others.

"I have seen things that you have to see to believe," he said in an interview. "You talk about man's inhumanity to man — the depths of depravity these fellows get up to. You have to actually see it to believe it, so you do. It's horrible beyond words.

"People think that in doing this job you get hardened to it," said Shields, 39, now a training officer in the center of Belfast. Known locally as the "Scoreboard," it gives a day-today update of persons killed since the violence broke out in August 1969.

"Coming past there tonight I happened to look at the figure, and it's something like 1,217," Shields said. "That means there's 1,217 homes tonight where there's sons, there's daughters, there's husbands missing, through no fault of the people themselves. They didn't ask for this to happen."

Shields said the toughest part of his job is facing the relatives of people killed by terrorists. He told of having to pick up the body of a 5-year-old girl killed by a bomb as she was on the way to the corner store to buy a package of potato chips.

Shields told of the day known as "Bloody Friday," July 21, 1972. Thirteen persons were killed and 130 others injured that day when 22 bombs went off within 80 minutes in the center of Belfast. Throughout the afternoon his ambulance picked up the dead, the dying, the maimed.

"Five years ago when somebody was shot here, or in an explosion here, people were horrified — horrified to the core that it could happen in Belfast," Shields said. "But tonight if somebody goes out and gets shot, indifference and complacency is such that it's just another fact and figure. The establishment can sit in the comfort of their offices. But it might be different if the establishment, on that particular night, could have gone down to the mortuary and seen the end product of Bloody Friday."

Shields said his pictures might do the next best thing.

"If somebody's lying there with a gunshot wound or a victim of an explosion . . . I don't stop to ask if he's a Catholic or Protestant . . . A Catholic or Protestant, they're both human beings and in my eyes, one's as good as the other."

Shields, who has four children, worried over the effects of years of violence on his own and other children. He told of a grassy playing field near the house where he used to live. When shooting would start in the area, he said, the playing children would hurl themselves flat on the grass, wait till it stopped, and then continue with their games.

"They've never known any other kind of life," he said.

During his work Shields himself has often been subject to considerable danger. He holds a Queen's commendation for crawling on his belly into a field to aid a soldier shot in the chest. For a half-hour he and another ambulanceman lay with the soldier as terrorist bullets zipped through the grass all around them. The soldier died minutes after they got him to an armored vehicle.

Shields is a Protestant but he says his religion is irrelevant to his work.

"If somebody's lying there with a gunshot wound, or a victim of an explosion," he said, "I don't stop and ask if he's a Catholic or Protestant. As far as I'm concerned it's a person who requires medical aid. A Catholic or Protestant, they're both human beings, and in my eyes one's as good as the other.

No body, but trial starts

RIVERSIDE (AP) — A parttime student at the University of California campus here has gone on trial for the alleged murder of a fellow student whose body was never found.

Robinson Huff, 42, of Sunnymead, was indicted earlier this year in the disappearance and apparent slaying of David Cole, 23, also of Sunnymead. His trial began here Monday.

Police said Cole's blood-spattered car was found last October in a UC Riverside parking lot. Prosecutors said most of the evidence linking Huff to the crime is circumstantial.

The trial is expected to last five weeks.

Boyfriend gets baby

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Custody of an infant delivered by Cesarian section after its mother had been killed may be awarded to the woman's boyfriend.

A county welfare spokesman said Wednesday that authorities probably will recommend that Bill Hooks, 41, a self-employed Hollywood painter, be granted custody of the infant boy born May 16. Hooks reportedly told authorities he is the father of the child.

A nurse, Norma Armistead, 44, has been charged with murder in the slaying of the child's 28-year-old mother, Kathryn Viramontes, of Van Nuys.

The word caliber, used in reference to a gun, is the diameter of the bore or barrel.

What's going on around here

FLORIDA VACATION — Margaret Earle of 1382 W. Orange Grove St., Pomona, will spend her summer vacation helping scientists study the effects of pollution and development on the dying coral reefs off the coast of southern Florida.

She will assist Dr. Richard H. Chesher, president of the Marine Research Foundation. She and other participants will live aboard a boat and make research dives to survey the extent of damage to the reefs and gather samples for laboratory analysis.

BEST SPEAKERS — Jim Goda and Bill Ward were selected as best speakers at the Pomona Toastmasters Club 12 recent meeting. Others honored were Larry Coulson, spark plug winner; Fred Stephensen and Bill Ward, best table topic speakers; and Coulson, best evaluator.

DOG SHOW — The Pomona Valley Kennel Club will sponsor an all-breed "evening match" July 5th at Washington Park in Pomona. Entries will be taken from 2 to 4:30 p.m., with judging to start at 5 p.m.

The entry fee is $3.50 per dog, with trophies and ribbons to be given the winners. Proceeds will be given to a humane society and for dog research.

For more information, persons may contact the kennel club, 2120 E. Petunia St., Glendora.

CREDIT UNIONS — California credit unions posted a record $4.4 billion in assets last year, a 15 per cent hike over the previous year. Shares also increased by 15 per cent and membership was hiked by 7 per cent to 3.5 million, reported the California Credit Union League.

The league operates from its main office in Pomona and branch offices in Oakland and Sacramento.

GETS PROMOTED — Jack E. Sanford of Hacienda Heights has been appointed superintendent of Union Pacific Railroad's California division with headquarters in Los Angeles.

He will be chief operating officer for 400 miles of main and branch lines between Los Angeles and Las Vegas. Sanford joined Union Pacific in 1969 and had served as assistant superintendent prior to his promotion.

NEW BRIDGE — A new bridge on Arrow Route across Deer Creek in Cucamonga will soon be constructed.

San Bernardino County supervisors have awarded a contract to E. L. Yeager Construction Co., which submitted a low bid of $118,113. The project includes a 28-foot bridge with four traffic lanes and sidewalks on both sides, said Supervisor Daniel Mikesell.

Work is expected to start within three weeks. The road will be closed for from 69 to 90 days. Completion is scheduled for September.

NEW NAME — The San Bernardino County Welfare Department has been renamed the Department of Public Social Services.

County officials said they believe the new name will be more representative of the full spectrum of services provided. In addition to public assistance, the department provides adoptions, foster home services, resource development, rehabilitation and employment services, hospital social services and homemaker aid.

KINDERGARTEN FOR PUPPIES — A kindergarten puppy training class will start June 21 at Colony Park in Ontario. The eight week course, for dogs six months old and less, will be held on Saturdays from 3 to 4 p.m.

Becky Carpena, the instructor, will discuss the care of young dogs. Persons will be charged $10. They may register at the Ontario recreation office, 217 S. Lemon St.

Kissinger's down, Ford up in poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's over-all job-rating is decreasing while President Ford's is on the rise, a Harris survey says.

A 56-37 per cent positive rating for Kissinger reflects a loss of 12 percentage points since last March, the pollster said. A year ago, Kissinger registered his record high of 85-10 per cent.

Love's BARBECUE COCKTAILS LOVES Wood Pit Barbecue Foothill & Garey, Pomona

WENDELL B. SELL, president and chief executive officer of Hoffman Electronics Corp., El Monte, has again been named chairman of the board of United Way in Region 2. The area includes Pomona and San Gabriel valleys. He became chairman in 1973.

Activity signups in Chino

Registration for summer programs sponsored by the Chino Recreation and Parks Department is being conducted.

A variety of activities, ranging from yoga to cake decorating, will be offered at various schools in Chino, starting Monday. Those interested should register at the Parks Department office in the Community Building.

Classes will be offered at Walnut, Gird, Marshall and Glenmeade elementary schools.

Tiny tot classes, cake decorating, guitar instruction, yoga, a dog obedience course and dance programs are scheduled.

Yoga will be under the direction of Ishwara Harvey of the Kundalini Yoga Institute in Pomona. Classes, open to both men and women, will be held Tuesday evenings at Marshall School.

Dog obedience classes will continue under the direction of Betty Regan. They began last week, but late entry into the class is permitted.

In addition to the special classes, the Recreation and Parks Department will conduct a variety of summer sports programs this year.

Tennis and golf instruction, women's exercise, trampoline, open basketball and other programs are available for signups. A coed volleyball league will start Friday.

A gym program, offering volleyball and badminton, will be held on Friday nights.

Also, the expanded swim program offered by the parks department will get under way Monday at the Chino High School pool. Preschool and tiny tots may register for lessons, to be held for two weeks. Adults may take lessons through the Chino Adult School on Tuesday evenings at 6:30.

A lifesaving program for junior and senior lifesavers will be held Thursdays at 6:30 p.m., and the recreational swimming program will be conducted on weekends from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., and weekday afternoons from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Further information on all programs may be obtained by calling 627-7344.

Open 'psyches-up' Trevino

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — The Medinah Country Club's No. 3 course measures 7,132 soggy yards, but the 75th U.S. Open this weekend will be won, insists Lee Trevino, on the six-inch space between the ears.

"It's all psychic," the ebullient Mexican-American said. "The Open, more than any other tournament. That's why I like to play in this one. About 90 per cent of the guys psych themselves out of it before they ever tee up the ball."

The 35-year-old one-time fairway hustler from El Paso, Tex., is fit and feisty—his old garrulous self—as he takes bead on the title he won in 1968 and 1971.

Only one man is more highly regarded—that's Masters winner Jack Nicklaus—in the field of 150 which tees off Thursday over the oak and maple-lined layout where Sam Snead blew another one and Cary Middlecoff won in 1949.

Nicklaus, bidding for the second leg of a professional Grand Slam that also includes the British Open and American PGA, is the tournament favorite at 6-1, followed by Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller at 8-1, and Gary Player, Hale Irwin and Tom Watson at 10-1.

If Trevino had his druthers, the tournament would come down the stretch Sunday with he and Nicklaus battling head to head.

"I like this head-to-head stuff," he said. "It's a comfortable feeling to know you only have to beat one man, even if that man is Jack Nicklaus, who is the best in the world.

"The Open is a chokers' tournament. Everybody chokes. When I start choking I psych myself up. I say to myself, 'Hell, one of us is going to win. It's going to be me.' I say, 'If I'm choking, he may be choking worse.'"

Trevino's history since he quit hustling bucks by playing with a taped-up Dr. Pepper bottle on a Texas driving range and went for bigger game has been to choke less than almost anybody.

He personally has robbed Nicklaus of at least three majors—the two U.S. Opens he's won, with a playoff in 1971, and the British Open in 1972 at Muirfield.

No other man has looked the Golden Bear squarely in the eye in so many big tournament clutch situations and come away to brag about it—although Trevino never gets prissy where Jack is concerned.

"He is the best," Trevino said. "He's a plugger. If he takes a double bogey, he keeps fighting. He never relaxes pressure on you for a single second."

Of all the top pros, Trevino says only South Africa's Gary Player can match Nicklaus' ingrained competitiveness.

"Gary is a grinder," he said. "He's made more money the last 15 or 20 years by scrapping for birdies on the final holes when he's out of contention than most of the guys have altogether.

"He'll be headed for a 77 and he'll grit his teeth and shoot a 75, picking up perhaps $500 or $1,000 in extra bucks. He's something else."

Trevino is high on Johnny Miller, saying, "He's very strong for a skinny guy, terrific hands and legs. He's been playing since he was a small kid. He has control of the ball. He knows what he is doing."

Of the relative newcomers, 25-year-old John Mahaffey impresses Trevino the most: "Great natural ability, really knows how to maneuver the ball. I don't understand why he doesn't win more than he does."

Trevino's title chances apparently have been bolstered by the thundershowers which have drenched the par 36-35—71 course for the last 10 days. Two heavy showers chased practicing golfers Tuesday.

Nicklaus, winner of a record 15 major crowns, prefers a hard, dry course because he can fly a towering arc to the green, holding where pitch-and-run specialists such as Trevino might have difficulties.

"I like wet courses," Trevino said. "Both of the Opens I won were on wet courses. But if the fairways are really soggy, that would help Jack. He's a picker of the ball. I'm a digger and, off soggy fairways, I would hit a lot of fat shots."

Trevino goes into the tournament with his confidence at its zenith.

"In last year's Open, I was in lousy shape," he said. "I went to Hartford the week before determined to lose seven pounds. I gained 10. I was around 191. Now I am around 183. I feel great. But the thing that pleases me most is that I am rested and I've got my putting stroke back.

"I have been at home for 10 days working on my game. I had got in the habit of punching my putts. I had no idea about depth or distance.

"I always said the putter has to love the ball—carress it, stay with it longer. So I got my long, sweeping putting stroke back. The whole game of golf is keyed to that flat stick.

"If you're not putting, you start pressing with your other shots. Your whole game goes sour."

UP FOR GRABS

The South's Mike Medeiros of Montclair High (31) battles with the North's Scott Woodland of Royal Oak (41) for a rebound in Tuesday night's Second Annual Pomona Valley High School All-Star Basketball Game, sponsored by the La Verne Rotary Club. Also involved in the action is the South's Dan Pearce of Ontario High (hidden behind Woodland) and the North's Mike Toomay of Claremont High (left). The South won, 130-109.

Kessler: he's taking a rest

Three valley athletes are currently beginning their professional baseball careers in Billings., Mont. Larry Pekarcik (Damien), Frank Pastore (Damien) and Paul Moskau (Azusa Pacific College) became members of the Cincinnati Reds' organization within the past month and are now working out at Cincy's rookie team in the Pioneer League.

This area seems to be a favorite spot for the Reds, since many players have been drafted and/or signed by the club.

However, one valley star from a few years ago who is in the Reds' organization is sitting at home waiting to get back out onto the diamond again.

Brad Kessler, who led Claremont High to two consecutive San Antonio League championships, is recuperating from a back injury at his home in Claremont.

He's been home for a full month now and still has six weeks to go before he can get back in uniform.

Being out of action isn't getting Brad too depressed. But the fact that a couple of injuries has kept him out of action is making his bid for the majors a little frustrating.

"I've talked to a few scouts," Brad began. "They told me they had the same problem and still made it all right."

So Kessler is a bit optimistic about his future.

First an ankle

The husky former Claremont outfielder broke into pro ball two years ago, but injured his ankle and didn't see too much action his first year. Last season he moved up to single-A ball in Tampa, where he batted .238 and clubbed nine home runs while driving in 49 runs.

The Reds' first-round choice in the 1973 summer draft, Brad was elevated at the beginning of this season to the Reds' double-A club in Three Rivers, Canada.

"Playing pro ball wasn't what I had expected my first year," Kessler admitted. "They make it kind of tough on you. But as I mature, I learn to like it.

"It's really competitive," he added. "But I haven't been very consistent. I guess I'm never really satisfied unless I batted 1.000. Too many times I'd gone on a cold streak. But I tried not to let it get me down. That's where experience comes in. And that experience is the big difference between playing double-A and triple-A or triple-A and the major leagues."

In his first year of pro ball, Brad missed the last three weeks of the season with an ankle injury, the same injury he sustained while playing football for Claremont High in his senior year.

Last year he played in 119 games, primarily in left field.

"If there's one thing I don't like about playing pro ball is the traveling," Brad confessed. "Traveling wasn't too bad last year. But in double-A ball there are some 10- and 11-hour trips."

A chance to play

Being injured, Kessler has already missed nearly 60 games this season. Since he'll be out for another six weeks, he figures he'll make his return with about 40 games remaining.

"I hope to play some winter ball again," the SAL's Most Valuable Player in 1972 said. "They don't keep any statistics there. It's just a place for rookies and veterans to keep in shape or to get back into shape.

"Gary Nolan was out there last winter, working on his shoulder," Brad reported. "That's one guy who will really sit down and talk to you. He's 26 and he's just like a kid.

"Pete Rose is like that too," he continued. "I don't like to see him getting all that bad publicity out here. He'll sit down and talk to any kid."

Speaking of Rose, the coaches during Brad's first year tried to change his batting style a little — resembling Rose's crouch at the plate.

But Brad didn't care for it, and it

Dodgers gain on Cincinnati

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Andy Messersmith stayed home Monday night because of the flu.

The Houston Astros wish the Los Angeles right-hander had stayed home Tuesday night, too.

"I feel a lot better now," Messersmith said after polishing off Houston 6-1 on four hits. It was the eighth time in nine career decisions Messersmith has defeated Houston and the seventh time in a row.

Further, the victory, coupled with Cincinnati's loss to Atlanta, enabled the Dodgers to get to within 2½ games of the first-place Reds in the National League's Western Division.

The Dodgers, who collected 12 hits in Tuesday night's victory—their biggest offensive since May 30—will try to sweep the three-game series with Houston tonight when Burt Hooton, 5-5, goes against the Astros' Tom Griffin, 3-6.

Ron Cey powered a three-run homer in the first inning off loser Dave Roberts, 3-9, who has lost five straight, and Steve Yeager hit a bases-empty shot in the fourth.

"It's great to see us swing the bat and get some runs up there," said Messersmith, 10-3, who is nearly a month ahead of his 20-win pace of a year ago. He didn't win his 20th game last year until July 13.

For seven innings Messersmith allowed the Astros just one hit, a fourth inning double by Bob Watson. But he lost his shutout in the eighth when he walked two batters and gave up a run-scoring single by pinch hitter Enos Cabell.

"That wasn't a very good inning," Messersmith said, smiling. "I was rushing and my control wasn't too good."

The biggest out of the game was getting Roger Metzger to line out, leaving two runners aboard. "He hit it right on the button," Messersmith said. "If that ball falls in it makes it 5-3 and (Cesar) Cedeno is up as the tying run."

Manager Walter Alston said he was pleased to see the Dodgers hit the ball again, but he added it didn't mean the club had completely shaken the month-long slump that has caused it to fall out of the lead in the West.

"It's a start," he said, "but it doesn't mean we've got all that momentum going again. You can't judge by one game. But at least it is a start."

Cey's homer, his ninth, followed singles by Dave Lopes and Jim Wynn. Metzber also missed getting a doubleplay on Steve Garvey's grounder that would have ended the inning.

Yeager's homer, his third, in the fourth made it 4-0. Joe Ferguson knocked in a run in the fifth with an infield out and then Garvey's doubled home Lopes in the eighth.

Cedeno robbed Tom Paciorek of a two-run homer in the eighth when he leaped high against the centerfield wall to spear his long drive.

South All-Stars win easily

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

It wasn't the most artistic victory Mike Wells had coached, but he'll take it.

Wells, the valley's 1974-75 High School Basketball Coach of the Year, piloted the South All-Stars to a 130-109 victory over the North Tuesday night at Claremont High in the Second Annual Pomona Valley High School All-Star Basketball Game.

"I thought we could have played better," the Garey High coach commented after his team's record-shattering triumph. "We didn't play under control as much as I had hoped. But I guess you have to expect that in this kind of game."

The South club, now 2-0 in the classic's two-year history, broke the game record for most points scored with its 130 total. In fact, nearly every record from last year's inaugural was snapped Tuesday night.

Probably the most impressive record-setting performance was turned in by the North's Roger Gubichuk of Alta Loma High. The 6-foot-1, 185 pound guard scored 29 points in the loss to break Cleve Porter's old record from last year of 24.

Roger also established records for most field goals made and most free throws made. In the losing effort, Gubichuk hit 11 of his 22 attempts from the floor to break Porter's FGM record of 10. He also connected on seven of his nine tries from the free throw line to clip Todd Ervin's mark of six free throws made.

Another impressive performance was turned in by the South's 6-foot-7 center Steve Nichols. "Big Red" (referring to the red hair on his head and chin) set a record for best field goal percentage in hitting seven of his nine tries from the floor. That figures out to a .778 shooting percentage, which topped Ervin's .667 of a year ago.

"Big Red played a good game tonight," Wells boasted. "If we had one standout, he was it. You know, I think he'll do a good job for MSAC (Mt. San Antonio College). When we had our lead cut to 11 points, we fed the ball to him and he helped us pull the game out."

Nichols, who paced Rowland High to a second-place finish in the Montview League this past school year, finished the game with 16 points — a tie for second highest for the South.

Valley Player of the Year, Delbert McDonald of Garey High, led the South with 21 points, while Walnut's Cliff Manning added 16.

There were two other standouts on the North team besides Gubichuk. One was Pomona High's Danny Wilson, who seemed to be all over the floor all night.

Coming off the bench, the 5-10, 142 pound Red Devil guard scored 19 points and five rebounds. His quickness played a big part in a North rally late in the game.

The other North star was Charter Oak guard Roosevelt Morris, who tallied 16 points and nine boards. His fluid moves and "soft" touch on jumpers made him look very impressive.

It looked as though the South was going to turn the game into a quick rout when it ran an 8-1 lead after hitting its first four field goal attempts.

But North head coach Jeff McCall called time out and regrouped his Yankees. And sure enough, it worked.

Paced by Gubichuk's seven points, the North caught the South at 18 and made a game of it until early in the second period.

After trailing by four at the end of one quarter, 34-30, the North slowly faded. Four free throws by Mike Medieros of Montclair High and one by Ontario's Dan Pearce gave the South an 11-point bulge, 46-35, midway through the second stanza.

The Rebels eventually settled for a 16-point lead at halftime, 66-50.

Both teams battled evenly in the third 12-minute stanza, but then the North made its move.

The Yanks trimmed the lead to nine points, 101-92, by outscoring the South, 11-2, in the opening minutes of the final quarter. McCall's troops were able to stay with the Rebels for a while, clinging to a nine-point deficit at 107-98.

But then the Garey duo of McDonald and Billy Evans went to work. The all-CIFers scored the next 10 points for the South (Evans three field goals and McDonald four free throws) to widen the game to 17 points, 117-100.

The South then coasted the rest of the way to win going away.

Evans finished up the night breaking the record for most field goal attempts in one game. He tried 23 times, snapping Curt Oldenkamp's mark of 21, but connected on only seven of them.

The North's Wilson established a mark for most free throws attempted (10), while the South's Donald Barnes tied the record for most assists (nine).

Sherman, Doktor sign with Tigers

Pomona-Pitzer catcher Biff Sherman and USC shortstop Phil Doktor are among 16 players signed by the Detroit Tigers following the June draft, scout Dick Wiencek of Claremont announced Tuesday.

They have both reported to the Tigers' rookie club at Bristol, Va.

Sherman, who hit .404 during his senior year, was drafted by the Tigers on the 24th round of the regular draft. As a junior in 1974, Sherman hit an amazing .516 to win the Progress Bulletin trophy as the top hitter among the valley's colleges.

Doktor, a product of Claremont High and Citrus College, hit .260 for the Trojans and drove in 36 runs. He was a first round choice in the secondary draft.

Sid Gordon dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Sid Gordon, a 13-year major league baseball veteran, died of a heart attack Tuesday in Central Park. He was 56.

The former star was playing ball in the park when stricken. He was taken by the police to Lenox Hill Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The Brooklyn-born Gordon began his career with the New York Giants in 1941, was traded to the Boston Braves in 1950 and later went to the Milwaukee Braves and Pittsburgh Pirates before closing out his career with the Giants.

His career totals included a batting average of .283 in 1,475 games. The third baseman-outfielder collected 202 home runs, including 30 in 1948 and hit above .300 in 1950 and 1954.

Angels' defense hurts Figueroa

KANSAS CITY (AP) — California Manager Dick Williams crouched down in his office and let out a little whistle.

"The Royals were picking up what our pitcher was going to throw in the early innings," Williams explained Tuesday night after the Kansas City Royals edged the Angels 3-2 behind Steve Busby's five-hit pitching. "They were letting their batter know by whistling."

The Angels' pitcher, Ed Figueroa, yielded all of the Kansas City runs in the first inning but the uprising wasn't entirely his fault.

"We caught on to what they were doing about the fourth inning," Williams continued, "and then we put a stop to it."

The Royals neither denied nor confirmed they had knowledge of what Figueroa, 5-3, was going to throw. One coach said he "can't whistle."

Vada Pinson and George Brett, who had three hits, led off the Royals' first with singles. Amos Otis reached first on a fielder's choice, grounding to Figueroa, who threw to second where Brett was safe because there was nobody there to take the pitcher's throw.

The bases were loaded for John Mayberry, whose ground ball was bobbled by Orlando Ramirez for an error that allowed Pinson and Brett to score and Otis to move to third. Hal McRae drove Otis home with a sacrifice fly.

Figueroa loaded the bases in the second with one out but struck out Mayberry and McRae. After that, Fugueroa allowed only two singles and none after the fourth en route to a six-hitter.

Williams was high in his praise of Figueroa.

"He was great," Williams said. "He's developing into a consistent pitcher ... one of the most consistent in the league. We just beat ourselves."

Busby went the distance for his ninth victory in 14 decisions. He held the Angels to three hits going into the ninth inning and at one point retired 11 batters in succession.

Busby walked Joe LaHoud to start the ninth. Lee Stanton singled, and Billy Smith ran for Lahoud. Dave Chalk's single sent Smith home, and Ellie Rodriguez sacrificed Stanton to third and was safe on a fielder's choice.

Dave Collins grounded out, scoring Stanton with Chalk going to third and pinch runner Morris Nettles to second. Busby struck out Rudy Meoli and got Jerry Remy on a game-ending ground out.

"I never thought about taking Buzz out," said Royals Manager Jack McKeon. "No, I never considered it."

Chino, Pomona score victories

Chino's American Legion team scored an eight-inning run to nip Upland, 2-1, at Chino High Tuesday night, while Pomona Post 30 tallied four times — also in the eighth—to down Tri-City, 7-3, at Ralph Welch Park.

Tom Bright tripled and scored on a Paul Belmudes single in Chino's half of the eighth inning, giving pitcher Randy Hobbs his fourth win without a loss.

Keith Mundee started the game for Chino and gave up only an unearned run and three hits through six innings.

But Hobbs was even more impressive as he allowed no hits and fanned five batters in three innings of relief work.

Mundee scored Chino's first run in the fourth inning when he walked and came around on Bobby Townzen's triple.

Upland scored its only run in the top of the first inning on a walk to Marty Borbato, and infield single by Andre Viane and a Chino throwing error.

Meanwhile, reliever Mike Forstyth picked up a win when his Post 30 teammates blew open a 3-3 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning.

John Souza led off the frame with a walk and stole second. He moved to third on a single by Keith Glover and both runners scored on Mike Wooten's triple. Robbie Franklin then doubled home Wooten, went to third on a grounder and scored on a Dave Lahar single.

Wooten helped bring Pomona back from a three-run deficit with a two-run double in the sixth inning.

Chino (9-2) will travel to Fontana for a 6 p.m. game today while Pomona will take on Arcadia at Whittier Narrows at 6:30 p.m. and Upland will host Colton in an 8 p.m. contest at Memorial Park.

NHL ponders fate of two clubs

MONTREAL (AP) — An atmosphere of tension overwhelmed the National Hockey League's summer meetings here as the Board of Governors tried to iron out a growing pile of problems while taking time out to honor its individual award winners, hold an intraleague draft and name five inductees to the Hall of Fame.

It was a most hectic day for NHL President Clarence Campbell, with an equally gruelling one scheduled for today, when the critical situations with the Pittsburgh Penguins and California Seals will be approached—with no great hope of solution.

Campbell said Tuesday the Penguins' questionable future may not be decided until the next league meeting in mid-August, although "we will be dealing with California in the morning and Pittsburgh in the afternoon (today)."

While the outlook was indefinite, the grim facts were concrete: the Penguins are in debt for $7.3 million, their offices have been seized and locked by the United States government and there are no "very active candidates" to buy the drowning franchise.

And there was no chance the league would support the Penguins next season as it has the Seals. "We already are their most gentle creditors," said Campbell, noting the team owes the league $1 million. "While we are full of good sentiments, we're just fresh out of money."

The Seals, who have been owned by the league for two years, have a prospective buyer: San Francisco businessman Mel Swig. But the long-reported imminent sale of the club seemed no more credible than it was months ago.

"I'm very hopeful that the situation can be worked out," said Swig, "but I may have to ask for another extension. We are trying to build a 20,000-seat arena, but until I know I can build it, it's tough to make a decision. That decision should be made by the city of San Francisco by June 30."

With decisions being put off continually, the lucky people who formulate the schedules were ordered to set up contingency 1975-76 calendars for 16, 17 and 18-team leagues.

Added to the serious goings-on was the Board of Governors' decision not to let defenseman Greg Neeld play for the Buffalo Sabres, who selected him fourth in the recent draft of junior players. League by-laws ban a player from competition if he has less than 25 per cent of his vision in either eye, and since Neeld lost his left eye in a hockey-related injury in 1973, the Board voted 13-3 with two abstentions that Neeld — protective face-mask and all — would not be permitted to play for the Sabres.

So much for the bad news. As serious as things were Tuesday, there were smiles for four individual trophy winners and five former stars newly elected to the Hall of Fame.

Bobby Clarke, the hard-working center who led the Philadelphia Flyers to a Stanley Cup title, was named the league's Most Valuable Player. Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins was awarded the James Norris Trophy as the top defenseman; Marcel Dionne, late of the Detroit Red Wings but presently a free agent, won the Lady Byng Trophy for the top combination of sportsmanship and ability, while Eric Vail of the Atlanta Flames was named Rookie of the Year in balloting by the Pro Hockey Writers Association of America.

Orr now has 16 individual awards in nine seasons. In addition to eight Norris Trophies, Orr has won the Hart three times, the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP twice, two Art Ross trophies for scoring championships, and the Rookie of the Year.

Two former Chicago Black Hawks and three former Toronto Maple Leafs were the latest additions to the Hall of Fame. Glenn Hall, who earned the nickname "Mr. Goalie" during his prime years with Chicago, joined teammate defenseman Pierre Pilote in the Hall. Ace Bailey, Gordie Drillon and George Armstrong, the other inductees, played the bulk of their careers with Toronto.

The intra-league draft, which could easily have been cancelled for lack of interest, lasted all of 10 minutes. The New York Rangers chose young Dale Lewis from the Los Angeles Kings' organization, then forward Hartland Monahan was chosen by Washington from the Rangers for the $40,000 claiming price.

Pittsburgh, because of its "situation," was not permitted to take part in the draft.

In the only trade of the proceedings, the Montreal Canadiens sent goaltender Wayne Thomas to the Maple Leafs for a first-round amateur choice in 1976.

Controversial game hits B.L.

The first half of Big League play ended last week with Pomona American A apparantly the winner with an 8-2 record while Diamond Bar No. 2 and Glendora-South Hills were tied for second at 7-3.

But at a meeting Monday night, league officials upheld a protest filed by coach Clint Parks of Diamond Bar No. 2 after a 5-4 loss to Ted Greene on June 7.

Tonight's games
Glendora-South Hills vs. Pomona American B at Simons Jr. High, 5:30 p.m.
Pomona American A vs. Diamond Bar No. 1 at Walnut High, 5:30 p.m.
Diamond Bar No. 2 vs. Pomona Southwest at Ralph Welch Park No. 2, 7 p.m.
Ted Greene vs. Pomona National at Ralph Welch Park No. 1, 7 p.m.

According to league administrator Bob Castaldi, the protest was upheld because the umpire at that game did not allow Parks to employ a league rule which permits the use of a designated pinch runner once per inning throughout any game.

Thus the game between Diamond Bar No. 2 and Ted Greene will be replayed as the first game of a doubleheader July 2 at Ralph Welch Park. If Diamond Bar No. 2 wins that contest, it will be tied with Pomona American A for the first-half title and a playoff between the two clubs will be scheduled. The winner of that playoff will then play the second-half winner for the league title.

If Diamond Bar No. 2 loses the rematch with Ted Greene, Pomona American A will win the first-half title outright and will meet the second-half champion in the league title game.

Second half action continues tonight when Pomona National battles Ted Greene at Ralph Welch Park (7 p.m.) to determine the leader in the league. Both hold 2-0 records, as does Diamond Bar No. 1.

Sports briefs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Horst Muhlmann, who owned one of the most accurate field goal kicking percentages in National Football League history, was traded by the Cincinnati Bengals Tuesday to the Philadelphia Eagles for an undisclosed draft choice.

Muhlmann, a former West German soccer star, converted 120 of 186 field goals attempts— an average of almost 70 per cent—during his six years with Cincinnati. Only Jan Stenerud of the Kansas City Chiefs has a better career average.

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS Inc. announced Tuesday it has purchased the telecast rights to the July 6 $350,000 match race between unbeaten filly Ruffian and Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Jim Gideon, a righthander pitcher with the University of Texas, signed with the Texas Rangers of the American Baseball League Tuesday shortly after leading the Longhorns to the College World Series championship.

The Rangers top draft choice, Gideon is a junior with a 17-0 record this season. He was signed by Ranger farm personnel director Hal Keller for an undisclosed amount.

NOTTINGHAM, England — Americans Jimmy Connors, Arthur Ashe, Cliff Richey and Stan Smith all advanced to the second round of the $103,500 John Player International Tennis Tournament.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Paul "Tank" Younger, a star with the Los Angeles Rams in the 1950s as the first player out of a black college to make it big in the National Football League, has been named assistant general manager of the San Diego Chargers.

DENVER — Guard Monte Towe of North Carolina State signed a contract with the Denver Nuggets of the American Basketball Association.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jesse Richardson, former All-Pro defensive back with the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League, died here Tuesday of a kidney disease which first afflicted him about a year ago. He was 44.

Richardson signed with the Eagles in 1953 and played nine seasons in Philadelphia. He joined the Boston Patriots of the American Football League in 1962, playing three seasons at defensive tackle before becoming a defensive line coach in 1965.

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Seattle's National Football League franchise will be known as the Seahawks when it begins play in 1976.

The name was selected Wednesday by Seahawks General Manager John Thompson and the owners of the NFL franchise from 20,365 entries which suggested 1,741 different names for the team.

The Seattle Seahawks' colors will be blue, green and silver with the emblem a takeoff on an Indian design of the osprey—a fish-eating hawk of the Northwest.

Stalwick selected for Shrine grid team

Kent Stalwick of Claremont High has been named to the North squad in the 24th annual Shrine All-Star Football Classic to be played Saturday night, July 26, in the Rose Bowl.

Stalwick, 6-2, 185 pounds, was selected for the Shrine game as a defensive back. He also starred as a linebacker and quarterback for the Wolfpack last season, and in fact was chosen the Most Valuable Offensive Player of the San Antonio League and was named to the first team offensive squad of the Progress-Bulletin All-Valley High School Football team.

As a quarterback, he completed 60 of 148 passes for 818 yards and seven touchdowns. He also rushed for 707 yards on 128 carries.

Stalwick, who will play for Stanford in the fall, will get a look at two of his future teammates — Chuck Evans of West Covina and Gordon Ceresino of Notre Dame — in the Shrine game. Stanford, USC, UCLA and University of Nevada, Las Vegas, have each landed three players from the 28-man North roster of outstanding graduating seniors.

Southland racing

GARDENA — Oren Prosser of Agoura will be trying for his second straight sweep Friday night at Ascot Park in the NASCAR Open Competition Super Stock program on the half-mile dirt oval.

Prosser, five-time Saugus Speedway champion, easily captured the 30-lap feature last week, as well as the trophy dash, his heat race, and fast time in qualifying. Prosser's qualifying time was one of the fastest ever turned in on the Gardena half-mile by a stock car at 23.68 seconds.

GARDENA — Rick Mears, winner of many major off-road events, will be returning from Mexico where he competed in the Baja 500 last week and will attempt to capture his third straight sprint-buggy main event Saturday night at Ascot Park.

Mears, who, along with his older brother Roger, has dominated the off-road racing scene for the past several years, has won the last two features in the SCIDA Sprint Buggy and Baja Sedan program on the wild steeplechase course.

SAN BERNARDINO — Champion Ivan Baldwin and Yucaipa racing star Cal Edwards will return to Orange Show Speedway Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. in late model stocks competition.

Baldwin held off a surge by Edwards two weeks ago at the Orange Show.

IRWINDALE — United States Racing Club limited stock car racing competition moves to the ultra-fast half-mile oval at Speedway 605 in Irwindale Friday night, sharing the doubleheader program with the modified stock machines.

Fastest qualifiers will take the green flag in the twin trophy dashes at 7:30 p.m. to start off the evening's 12 events of high speed competition on the "fastest half-mile in the west."

IRWINDALE — Fantastic speed and wheel-to-wheel competition will be on tap for sprint car racing fans Saturday night at Speedway 605 when the California Racing Association presents its once-a-month clash on "the fastest half-mile in the west."

The Irwindale oval will shake with excitement with the fastest qualifiers line up to start off the eight event program at 7:30 p.m. with a trophy dash followed by heat races, semi and 30-lap main event.

CORONA — The annual Fourth of July race at Corona Raceway will be bigger and better than ever. This year as six divisions of Stock Cars compete July 4 and 5 with Figure-8, quarter mile oval, half mile oval, Novice Figure-8, Street Stockers, Destruction Derby and Powder Puff drivers along with a gigantic fireworks display fill the Raceway arena for two days of action-packed thrills and spills.

On the Corona agenda this weekend includes the half-mile and short track motorcycles tonight at 7:30 p.m. Motocross Thursday and Friday nights at 7:30 p.m., Bicycle motorcross Saturday at 10 a.m., and then Figure-8 Oval, Street Stocks, Powder Puffs and Novice Figure-8 Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

MOORPARK — Following their racing program of a few weeks ago that was responsible for bringing out the largest spectator attendance and riding fields of the current season, American Motocross Enterprises of Reseda will again ignite the fuse for dirt-track motorcycle competition Sunday on the European-style obstacle courses at Valley Cycle Park in Moorpark. In their most recent endeavor on the new one-and-a-half mile, all-terrain circuit at Valley, the AME drew a whopping group of 312 racers, among whom were 64 of the nation's top-ranked professionals.

Sunday's first event in a daylong series of slip-and-slide heat races are slated to ramble from the starting gate at 9:30 a.m.

SAUGUS — Saugus Speedway has scheduled the top thrill racing show of the year Saturday night. Over 60 of the top Figure-8 drivers from all over the southland will be at Saugus to compete in the California Figure-8 Open Championships. Such California favorites as Jose Tanasi, Herman Karns, Nick Thomas, Ed Farro and Earl Ashmore are expected to compete against the ORA champions of Bill Killian, Bill McKnight, Terry Leidholdt and Allen Thacker for the largest purse ever for the Figure-8 Open.

Gates open at 5 p.m., with time trials set for 6 p.m. Trophy dashes are slated for 8 p.m.

CIF selects Walnut girl

Diane Johnson of Walnut High has been named to the 1975 CIF Girls All-Star swim team for the 200-yard individual medley. She will receive a Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation award for her selection at the CIF girls athletic awards program

Also to be honored at that program as athletes of the year in their respective sports are Jayne Guengerich of Warren (softball), Laurie Edwards of West Covina (swimming), Leida Hunter of Centennial (track and field) and Denise Corlett of Marlborough (badminton), who was earlier named the player of the year in volleyball as well and selected for the All-Star basketball team.

Drags set Sunday

IRWINDALE — The 8th Annual Corvette National Drag Races, originally planned for Orange County International Raceway, has been moved to Irwindale Raceway Sunday, it was announced this week by track general manager Steve Evans.

The event, promoted and run by the Corvette Club of Southern California, begins at 8 a.m. and runs until approximately 6 p.m. Entries close at 12:30 with aliminations slated for 1:30. Entry into the races is only $1.

Gate fee is $3.50 for adults and $1 for kids 6-12. Those prices include a pit pass.

Take the Irwindale Ave exits from the 210 Freeway, just one mile east of the 605 Freeway in Irwindale.

RICHARD PETTY

Richard eyes 2nd million

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Stock car's "King" Richard Petty has moved to within $27,347 of becoming the sport's first $2-million career winner with his second-place finish in Sunday's Motor State 400.

National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing figures released Monday also show he has moved to a commanding lead in the race for the Grand National championship.

Petty raised his point total to 2,449 as he followed David Pearson across the finish line at Michigan International Speedway.

Dave Marcis finished third in the race and held second place in the standings with 2,008 points. Darrell Waltrip is third with 1,976.

They are followed by James Hylton 1,964; Richard Childress 1,860; Benny Parsons 1,837 Cecil Gordon 1,826; Elmo Langley 1,681; Pearson 1,664, and Walter Ballard 1,641.

In the second leg of the race for the point title, Petty leads with 851, followed by Waltrip with 697 and Hylton with 664.

Petty has won $148,675 this year. Pearson is second with $98,635 and Parsons third with $73,500.

The next race is the Firecracker 400 at Daytona International Speedway July 4.

Charley Taylor of the Washington Redskins has scored 73 touch downs on pass receptions in 11 years of pro football.

Hang Ten race Sunday

Auto racing

CARLSBAD — America's 500 cc Motocross Champion, Jim Weinert of Laguna Beach, is hoping that a change of team for 1975 will bring him success in the race that he most wants to win — the Hang Ten United States Motorcross Grand Prix, slated for Carlsbad Raceway, near San Diego, Sunday.

It's the most important motocross race in the United States, drawing some 40,000 fans and being seen by millions more via ABC Television's "wide World of Sports" show.

After taking the No. 1 plate over for 1975, Weinert quit the Kawasaki team that helped him to victory and chose instead the bumble-bee yellow and black livery of the Yamaha team squad.

Already it looks as though his choice was the right one for him. He swept to the overall victory in the opening National Championship motocross of 1975 last week in Bruceton Mills in West Virginia. Now he hopes for a repeat of that effort at Carlsbad on Sunday, though his is under no illusions about the difficulties. "I got to be National Champ by beating the best in America," says the guitar-playing Weinert. "But to win this one I have to beat the best in the world, including World Champion, Heikki Mikkola of Finland, former three-time World Champ, Roger DeCoster of Belgium, and about 20 other European team riders. It don't come easy.

An interesting sidelight on Weinert's change of allegience is the rider that Kawasaki has chosen to replace him. It's young Gary Semics from Lisbon, Ohio, who, barely out of his teens, startled everyone by leading last year's Hang Ten Grand Prix in the heavy-weather opening laps. Slate him as a "dark horse" possibility for this year's race.

In fact, added credence to the possibility of a Kawasaki win in the Hang Ten classic came in the Italian GP on May 11th (another of the rounds in the 500cc World Championships). Victor in the first heat was Kawasaki's Christer Hammargren of Sweden, though reigning World Champion, Heikki Mikkola (Husqvarna) took the second and best overall score.

This hoisted the "Flying Finn' to a healthy lead in the Championship table, with 52 points. He leads last year's Hang Ten Grand Prix winner, Gerrit Wolsink (Suzuki) of Holland (36 points) and 1972 winner, Sweden's Ake Jonsson (Yamaha) who has 28. Out of the luck in Italy was three-time World Champ, Roger DeCoster of Belgium, who was leading both races but was put out with mechanical bothers in each of them. He is presently fourth in the standings with 27 points and is aiming for a win at Carlsbad to put him back in contention.

Inland Speedway opens tonight

SAN BERNARDINO — San Bernardino's newest sporting attraction, Inland Motorcycle Speedway, showcasing many top professional motorcycle raceriders in weekly head-to-head competition, is scheduled to kick off its initial season tonight at the National Orange Show Fairgrounds.

Racing will be conducted every Wednesday night beginning at 8 p.m., featuring 23 races of scratch and handicap competition among three divisions, plus a special intermission presentation.

Inland Motorcycle Speedway, owned and operated by American Raceways and sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association, will give local cycle enthusiasts, as well as the many expected new fans, an opportunity to witness one of the fastest-growing spectator sports in the country during its 15-week season. The "Class A" bikes, weighing approximately 200 lbs., run on a mixture of alcohol and nitromethane and have the capability to accelerate from 0 to 60 m.p.h. in three seconds.

The soon-to-be-completed oval is 500 feet in circumference, complete with a landscaped infield, concession stands, ample free parking and an initial seating capacity of 3,200. The speedway is located on the southeast portion of the fairgrounds, accessible from Arrowhead Ave., off Orange Show Road.

Admission prices are $3 for adults, $2 for juniors (12 to 15), $.50 for children (6 to 11) and free under 5.

1976 BOAT SHOW SET

NEW YORK (AP) — Exhibitors are reserving space in record numbers for the 1976 National Boat Show to be held Jan. 10-18 in the New York Coliseum. Show director Frank Scalpone says reservations are 16 per cent ahead of last spring.

Lifters seek AAU titles

CULVER CITY — The cream of the nation's weight-lifters, including shot put world record holder Al Feureach, will compete in the National AAU Weight-Lifting Championships Friday through Sunday at Culver City Auditorium.

Action is slated Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday at 1 p.m., Sunday at 1 p.m. The Mr. America physique contest will be the climax of the big weekend of muscle activity at 8:30 p.m. Sunday evening.

The meet is expected to provide a good look at what the U.S. will offer for the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games. Nearly all the defending titlists will be on hand to attempt to retain their crowns.

41 enter Pocono

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — U.S. Auto Club officials reported Tuesday a record 41 entries have been submitted for the June 29 Pocono 500 race for Indianapolis-type cars.

USAC said additional entrants were expected before qualifications for the 33-car field are held this weekend.

Practice at the track near Long Pond, Pa., begins Wednesday.

USAC Executive Director Dick King said rules changes aimed at lowering the cost of competition apparently are effective, bringing back some people to racing.

USAC events last year and earlier this year were plagued by short fields. Beginning with Indianapolis last month, King said, there have been adequate entries for each event despite the absence of some top teams.

Girls club wins crown

The Southern California Cheetahs girls track club won the team title in the 12-13-year-old division at the state championships last weekend in San Mateo.

Two individuals and two relay teams placed first in the Cheetahs' championship effort.

Charm Bishop won the javelin with a throw of 124 feet, 8 inches and took second in the discus at 104-3. Barney Carral won the 440 in a time of 584. and ran the 440 anchor leg for the winning 880 medley relay team.

Also running on the victorious 880 medley relay squad were Janet Ballard, Dawn Peters and Vicki Almeida. The time of the race was 1:49.3.

The Cheetahs' mile relay team of Lisa Peters, Della Equipilag, Debbie Jensen and Cathy Partida won that event in a time of 4:04.5.

Also in the 12-13-year-old bracket, Ballard placed third in both the 100 and 220, Equipilag took third in the 440, Partida was fourth in the 880 and Lisa Erickson came in sixth in the 220 hurdles.

In the 440 relay, the Cheetahs' "A" team of Almeida, Pam Newton, Dawn Peters and Marisa Morel scored a second and the "B" squad of Equipilag, Sheila Baker, Tracy McMurray and Jensen came in sixth.

Newton, McMurray, Morel and Baker placed fourth as the Cheetahs' "B" entry in the 880 medley.

In the 16-18-year-old division, Carol Flournoy placed second in the 1500 meters and sixth in the 800 meters, Pam Green ran fourth in the 400 meters and sixth in the 200 meters, Debbie Fleetwood took fourth in the 100 meters and Laura Janousek was third in the mile walk.

Janousek, also came back to record a fourth in the women's division mile walk.

Competing among 14-15-year - olds, Mairsha Erickson and Kalua Bell scored fourths in the 880 and 440 respectively.

Acquatics win easily

Coach Gary Troyer's Mt. Baldy Aquatics novice team swamped Bellflower Swim Club 306-154 in the first meet of the Inter-Valley Conference summer league competition hosted by the locals.

In the six & under age group, five-year-old Sheila Bellomo swept the field in all events with wins in the 25 yard back (24.8), 25 breast (30.6), 25 fly (27.4) and 25 free (21.3). Bill Schwartzer added with wins in the 25 fly (47.6) and 25 free (33.5). Schwartzer teamed with Erin Agy, Jane Grail and Heather Ryan to take the free relay in 2:35.1. Bellomo, Schwartzer, Agy and Stephanie Schmidt won the medley relay in 2:45.0.

Mark Patrick captured the 25 back (21.5), fly (21.0) and free (19.0) while Tom Van Horst took the breast in 26.0 in the seven and eight group. Mt. Baldy won both relays as the medley team of Patrick, Van Horst, Lori Castleberg and Amy Lansford clocked a 1:38.0 and the freestyle team of Patrick, Van Horst, Lansford and Kathie Haase swam a 1:20.9.

Nine & 10 stand-outs were Irene Mons, who won the 50 breast (46.4), fly (37.9) and free (34.4), Patricia Bellomo in the 50 back (40.0) and Derek Jones in the 50 fly (36.2), back (38.1) and free (32.6). Bellomo, Mons, Joe Neal and Bob MOore combined to capture first in the medley relay (2:31.4).

Christine Morandi (11-12 group) clocked a 35.2 to take the 50 fly, while Rusty Lansford won the 50 breast (40.2) and freestyle (29.6). The 11-12 relay team of Morandi, Lansford, Donna Sedgewick and Rich Ford took both the medley (2:21.8) and the freestyle (2:06.8).

Laura Ford was the only winner for the locals in 13-14 competition as she splashed home first in the 50 fly with a 30.4.

The 15-17 year olds were well-represented by Terril Jones as he took the 50 back (33.1), breast (33.1), fly (31.5) and free (27.1). Andria Wolfe won the 50 back (34.1) and fly (34.2). Carrie and Cindy Banwell earned blue robbons in the 50 breast (37.4) and 50 free (27.1) respectively.

The next meet for the MBA will be against Alta Loma and Bainbridge at the Pomona College Pendleton pool June 19. All area novice swimmers interested in joining the team may do so during any daily work-out held at El Roble Jr. High (6:30 and 7:30 p.m.), Upland, High School (5:30 p.m.) and Montclair High School (5:30 p.m.) For information, call Mrs. Dolores Weck at 982-3430.

Amores placed on Forum card

HOLLYWOOD — Orlando Amores, 5th ranked bantamweight in the world from Colon, Panama, will replace Africa's, Sully Shittu in a 10-rounder against 2nd rated Carlos Zarate on Friday night's Forum championship card headed by the featherweight title bout between Bobby Chacon and Ruben Olivares.

Shittu, of Ghana, had to withdraw because of illness said promoter Don Fraser, who signed Amores as a replacement. The 26-year-old Panamanian has a 33-4 record and has KO'd former banty champion Enrique Pinder and decisioned highly regarded Famoso Gomez.

Zarate, of Mexico City, is unbeaten in 32 fights while having won 31 by knockout.

Another 10-rounder on the championship program matches leading featherweight contender Art Hafey of San Diego and Nicaragua's, Yambiro Blanco. Hafey is third rated while Blanco is ranked fourth.

In the title fight, Chacon, of Sylmar, 26-1 with 24 KO's, is a 10-8 favorite to avenge the only setback of his record when defending his WBC featherweight crown against former champion Olivares, 77-5-1 with 70 KO's.

Jack Nicklaus says he will defend his Tournament Players' title in the tournament at Fort Worth, Tex., in August.

U.S. aquatic trials begin

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Swimmers throughout other areas of the world have been grabbing the laurels once owned by those in the United States and today Uncle Sam's lads and lassies start the recoup process.

A field of 200 opens competition in the five-day U. S. trials for the World Aquatics Championship team.

Twenty-four men and 21 women will make the trip to Cali, Columbia, for the international meet, July 18-27.

First day races, with the preliminaries starting at 11 a.m. PDT and the finals at 6 p.m., will have the men's 200-meter freestyle, 100-meter breaststroke and 100-meter butterfly. The gals compete in the 200-meter individual medley and the 100-meter breaststroke.

The freestyle races, with world record holders Tim Shaw and Shirley Babshoff heading the lists, draw the most interest.

Shaw is the favorite in the 200, 400 and 1,500 meter events of his specialty after setting world records in all three last year at the AAU national championships in Concord, Calif.

Babashoff is entered in six events — all four freestyle races and both individual medleys.

So both will see action in this opening day.

Shaw still holds the 200-meter world record although some of his other marks have been bettered.

"I can't predict who will make the finals," the Long Beach native said of the 200-meter race. "It's going to be tough."

Shaw holds the world mark at 1:51.66.

Jim Montgomery of Madison, Wis., Bruce Furniss of Santa Ana., Calif., and Tim O'Donnell of Menlo Park, Calif., are expected to be Shaw's top competition.

Already this year, Jenny Turrall of Australia has swum an 8:43.48 for a record in the 800-meter freestyle, bettering the listed world mark of 8:47.50 by American Jo Harshbarger last fall.

East Germany's Kornelia Ender has lowered the record in the 200-meter freestyle to 2:02.27, a mark previously held by Babashoff at 2:02.94. Canadian teenager Nancy Garapick has taken the 200-meter backstroke supermacy with a 2:16.33, bettering the listed 2:17.35 by East Germany's Ulrike Richter.

"The East Germans swim long course meters all year round which means they have more chances to set world records," the 18-year-old Miss Babashoff commented. "I think I can better my time in the 200 meters."

Long course races are swum in a 50-meter pool.

John Hencken, the world record holder in both the 100 and 200-meter breaststroke, appears the class of his field in those events. But Southern California's Mark Chatfield is back after being sidelined several weeks of the training period with an injury.

Six promoters given licenses

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Six new boxing promoters' licenses were issued Tuesday by the California State Athletic Commission.

The unusually large number was approved despite a warning by the commission that each of the promoters would probably lose money.

The licenses go to Laraine Gadol, Manila rancher who with matchmaker Peter Alvaraz wants to stage bouts in the Cow Palace of San Francisco; Albert Nunez, in Stockton Memorial Auditorium; Van Connolly, Eureka Auditorium; Jack Barnett, Los Angeles Sports Arena on available Saturdays; Promociones Almaraz in East Los Angeles and Joe Gagliardi, San Carlos and Stockton.

Olympic ready for Saturday

LOS ANGELES — Mexico City's sensational knockout artist Gerardo Aceves, 15-0 with 11 knockouts, headlines the Olympic Auditorium's Saturday night card against the Philippines' Kid Pambalag, 18-2 with 12 KO's.

This will be the first Saturday night show the Olympic will present regularly. The past 10 years Olympic boxing has been held on Thursday nights.

Channel 11 will televise weekly boxing from the Olympic beginning Saturday.

Aceves, billed as the 'new' Mando Ramos because of his style and looks, knocked out Jorge Altimirano in one round in his last fight six weeks ago. Altimirano went 10 rounds, losing a close decision to Frankie Duarte in April.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

WARDS guarantees its passenger car tires for specified miles when used on passenger cars, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of defects, normal road hazard failure, or premature tread wearout, WARDS will: 1. During first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free. 2. During the remaining mileage, replace for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

For adjustments, return tire to Wards with Guarantee Booklet.

Prorata charge based on price in effect at time of return at branch to which returned, including Federal Excise Tax.

Los Angeles is leading city in boxing world

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Art Aragon, the one-time Golden Boy of boxing, declares, "I want to tell you, there is no place in the world like Los Angeles for fights. This is the capital, this is the great boxing capital.

"Where else could a youngster like Bobby Chacon make $150,000 for a fight? He might even fight me and make that much. Forget New York."

Aragon, now 47, operates a bail bond business and follows boxing avidly.

Chacon, 22, defends his World Boxing Council featherweight title Friday night at the Forum in nearby Inglewood against Mexico's former champion, Ruben Olivares, who gets $60,000 for his challenge.

That will be the 34th title boxing match during the past 10 years in Southern California, just one of the reasons Aragon, boxers and boxing officials consider the area as the Boxing Capital.

On Saturday night, the Olympic Auditorium in Los Angeles celebrates its 33rd anniversary of a weekly boxing card, switching to Saturday from its usual Thursday.

"We put on fights every single week and we develop fighters," declares Mrs. Aileen Eaton who started in the business with her late husband, Cal. "And we have the best fighters here. The people of Los Angeles are aware of boxing as a major sport."

Rival promoter Don Fraser at the Forum hopes for a $440,000 gate for his Chacon-Olivares promotion. The largest gate in the area was $475,000 at the Forum for the second fight between Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton on Sept. 10, 1973, after Norton had beaten the current champion in San Diego.

"That fight was a one-shot deal," says Fraser, who, like the other promoters, generally feature boxers in the lighter weight classes. Olivares in 18 bouts in the area has drawn gates of about $3 million.

Ruben likes to box in Los Angeles, saying, "I might have made as much money fighting elsewhere, but I like it in Los Angeles. The Mexican people here and the Los Angeles people are just great.

"George Parnassus was kind to me when he was alive and he got me to the championship, so I have a special feeling coming to Los Angeles."

The Greek-born Parnassus, who died this year, promoted fights for decades and his formula was matching an outstanding local boxer with a star from Mexico.

Fraser, who worked with Parnassus, generally follows that formula. Chacon hails from Sylmar, Calif., and the only loss on his record was a ninth round knockout by the Mexican Olivares.

Mrs. Eaton points to the arrival of Adolph and Edwin Viruet as showing the Los Angeles boxing superiority over New York.

"We all get together and chipped in our bankroll to come West," says Joe DeMaria, manager of the boxing brothers. The pair, born in Puerto Rico had given up on getting money fights in the East.

Back in 1951, Golden Boy Aragon fought Jimmy Carter for the lightweight title here but lost in 15 rounds. Recently the list of champions fighting for their crowns includes Raul Rojas, Mando Ramos, Olivares, Chucho Castillo, Lionel Rose, Curtis Cokes, Jose Napoles.

The boxing income in Southern California has been consistent.

Robert Turley, chief executive officer of the California Athletic Commission, says that gross receipts from boxing matches in Southern California the past five years have totaled $9,549,236.

Taxes paid to the state on these bouts was $477,031 and paid attendance was 1,614,337.

"I believe Southern California must be considered the capital in boxing," says Turley who also is vice president of the World Boxing Council.

Mrs. Eaton says the weekly fights at the Olympic make money for the boxers but not for the auditorium. However, she explains, the money is made with championship bouts and matching youngsters who made their reputations in the weekly televised shows. The big bouts generally are not televised locally for the home sets.

She points out that the lighter fighters have been getting big purses. Mando Ramos got $100,000 for his unsuccessful lightweight title defense against Ismael Laguna of Panama.

"You know," adds Aragon with a laugh, "I even got $90,000 for fighting Carmen Basilio. I spent almost that much with doctors for repairs."

That fight drew $256,521.

Chacon was just starting grade school at the time. "I'm glad to have grown up in the Los Angeles area as far as boxing is concerned," he says. "Here now there is only me and Muhammad Ali as champs.

"Here in LA I think I'm being well taken care of. Right here there is the best chance for young fighters in the smaller weight classes, but really, a fighter makes himself wherever he is."

The old Main Street gym, not far from the city hall, still draws its clientele, including the great ex-champ Sugar Ray Robinson, who now heads a Youth Foundation. Robinson works out regularly and he once threw one of boxing's famed blows — a single left hook that landed on Bobo Olson's jaw and ended a middleweight title fight at old Wrigley Field.

You could even see some of the former boxers in movies or television filmed in Hollywood. Several get roles in the films which gives an added incentive for settling and fighting in this area.

Jerry Quarry started here and Archie Moore fought here defending his light heavyweight title, and so did Davey Moore, once king of the featherweights...and Luis Rodriguez and Sugar Ramos and Mushy Callahan, and the names go on and on...and they keep going on in Los Angeles.

New show is on air

A new sports program with heavy emphasis on Southern California sports will be broadcast on KSOM Radio (1510 AM and 93.5 FM) at 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Hospital auxilians present contribution

Pomona Valley Community Hospital was recently presented with a check for $25,000 by Mrs. Phyllis Rathbun, president of the hospital auxiliary. The presentation was made at the annual meeting of the hospital.

The check is the first payment on a pledge of $150,000 made by the auxiliary. Funds will be used for the purchase of electronic monitoring equipment for the Intensive Care and Critical Care units in the new Critical Care Center of the hospital.

Officers for the Auxiliary were installed at their June luncheon meeting held at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona. They include: Mrs. Gerald S. Rathbun, president; Miss Edith Frances Eells, vice president; Mrs. Walter Fuhrman, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Kinne, Jr., corresponding secretary; Virginia Parker, financial secretary; Mrs. George Mickel, treasurer; Mrs. Maxwell Fonda, director for one year; and Mrs. Harold Roe, director for two years.

San Dimas woman is cited

Mrs. Dorothy Hawk of San Dimas was recognized by the YWCA of Greater Pomona Valley as the Woman of the Month for May.

She was honored for her outstanding contribution in the field of the performing arts. Mrs. Hawk has been a community leader for approximately 25 years, giving much of her time and talents to PTA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Little League and San Dimas Community Hospital Teen Volunteer program. She has been active in San Dimas Coordinating Council, San Dimas Woman's Club, Pomona Valley Community Concert Aociation and has aided juvenile probation camps in the area.

Her association with the YWCA goes back to the days of the Chorale Belles, a women's musical group that performed throughout the valley.

M-O Junior installation held at valley restaurant

Installation of officers for the Montclair-Ontario Juniors was recently held at Squires Restaurant in Ontario. Mary Ann Dietz, past president of the Montclair Vista Women's Club installed the new officers including: Mmes. Russel Nelson, president; Sue Yoakum, first vice president; Kathy Anderson, second vice president; Sue Hammond, third vice president; Barbara Thornhill, secretary; Carol Diess, treasurer; Pat Pyles, parliamentarian; Carol Wahl, publicity; and Judy Wolf, coordinator.

Mrs. Diess, past president, presented an engraved plaque and charm to Mrs. Yoakum, who was elected by a secret ballot as the Woman of The Year.

Mrs. Yoakum, past president, served this year as the membership and federation chairman. She headed up club projects which included a joint membership luncheon with the Montclair Plaza and the Community Resource list which was made and distributed by the club. She also helped with the March of Dimes Baby Shower, the Montclair Plaza Survey and other club projects. Because of her work, a first-place federation award was won on the district level and third-place federation award was won on the state level.

An engraved silver perpetual trophy was presented by Mrs. Diess to the outstanding chairman, Mrs. Barbara Thornhill. She will be serving this year as the District Mental Health Chairman.

Four women representing the Montclair-Ontario Junior Women's Club recently returned from the State Convention of the Junior Membership of the California Federation of Women's Club held at Woodlake Inn in Sacramento.

Students plan piano recitals

Students of Pomona piano teacher Marguerite Green will present four recitals this week in Pattison Hall, Scripps College.

At 7:30 tonight four graduating high school seniors will play solo piano and two-piano, eight-hand selections.

The seniors are Janis Deneen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Deneen of Pomona; Kim Reno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reno of Montclair; Kathy Voss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Voss of Upland, and Haide Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Wilson of Pomona.

Miss Deneen, Miss Reno and Miss Wilson received honorable mention and 10th level in the state examinations of the Music Teachers Association of California this spring. Miss Voss received honors and advanced level and was chosen to play at the Young Artists Guild recital at the MTAC convention in Oakland June 29.

A reception honoring the four girls will be held at the home of Mrs. Green after the recital.

Miss Voss will present a solo recital at 7:30 p.m. Friday, performing works by Bach, Beethoven, Scriabin, Villa-Lobos and Kabalevsky. A reception will follow.

Elementary and junior piano students will play solo piano, duets and two-piano, four-hand works at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Intermediate and senior students will be heard at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in two-piano, eight-hand selections. MTAC certificates of merit and awards will be presented.

Taking part will be Greg Barding, David Brown, Shelley Chandler, Mary Carroll, Phillip Davis, Teri Gray, Heidi and Heather Hodges, Diane Ingram, Anne Maddock, Kathy Murphy, Celia and Frank McKinley, Ricky Navarrette, Leslie Stiles, Kim and Kelly Rexroth, Suzanne and Darrell Scott, Carol Stickels, Stephanie and Jennifer Sharp, Janice and Shari Whipple, Debbie Smith, Kathy and Maryann Wilkinson, Miss Deneen, Miss Reno, Miss Voss and Miss Wilson.

The first newspaperwoman was Madame Doublet de Persan (1677-1771) a widow of Paris who never left her apartment for 40 years but held parties daily at which each guest was required to give her a tidbit of news. She then produced a handwritten newspaper

The first book of fairy tales for children was published in France in 1697 and included the story of Cinderella.

Rapid transit urged

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A rapid transit line from the San Fernando Valley to Long Beach has been urged by the state Senate.

The Senate passed a resolution Monday urging the Southern California Rapid Transit District to give that route priority.

Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, author of the resolution, said the route would provide access to rapid transit for more people in the Los Angeles area than any other.

A gnu (pronounced noo) is a large, ox-like African antelope with high shoulders, a bushy, horse-like tail and a long, sad-looking face. Long, thin legs and a tuft of chin whiskers add to its queer appearance.

There are two kinds of gnus — the silvery-gray brindled gnu and the smaller, dark-colored white-tailed gnu.

Brindled gnus are found living on the open grasslands of central Africa. When frightened, the gnu prances about, leaps into the air and kicks its heels, then dashes away with a toss of its head.

Like other antelopes, gnus are fast runners and can run at speeds up to 40 miles an hour to escape an enemy.

The white-tailed gnu is nearly extinct. Once found in vast herds roaming the plains of South Africa, white-tailed gnus today are kept and protected in zoos and in special parks so they won't disappear from the earth. Gnus are also known as wildebeests.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF HEARING
NOTICE OF THE PROPOSED ANNEXATION OF PARCELS 201-75 THROUGH 209-75 TO THE CONSOLIDATED SEWER MAINTENANCE DISTRICT

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles, State of California, on the 3rd day of June, 1975, adopted a Resolution of Intention wherein it found and determined that lateral and/or collecting sanitary sewers have been installed within the hereinafter described territory in the County of Los Angeles; that no other provision has been made for the maintenance and repair of such sewers; that no part of said area is now included within a sewer maintenance district; that said area is in need of sewer maintenance, and should be included in a sewer maintenance district; and, declared its intention to order, in accordance with Chapter 4, Part 3, Division 5 of the Health and Safety Code, as amended, of the State of California, that the hereinafter described territory in the County of Los Angeles be annexed to, included within, and known as the Consolidated Sewer Maintenance District of said County, formed June 3, 1929.

Said territory shall consist of that portion of said County included within the following described exterior boundary lines:

Parcel 201-75

Beginning at the northeasterly corner of Lot 15 of Tract No. 28478 as shown on map filed in Book 815, pages 90 and 91 of Maps, in the office of the Recorder of the County of Los Angeles, said corner being an angle point in the boundary of Consolidated Sewer Maintenance District as same existed on February 27, 1975; thence southerly in a direct line to the intersection of the westerly line of Lot 32 of Tract No. 701 as shown on map filed in Book 16, pages 110 and 111 of said Maps and a line parallel with and 495 feet northerly, measured at right angles, from the southerly line of said last mentioned lot; thence southerly along said boundary and following the same in all its various courses to the point of beginning.

Parcel 202-75
